

List of Figures

Figure I-1.	Satellite Image of Lower East Coast Regional Water Supply Plan Study Area.	I-4
Figure I-2.	Map Indicating Areas Covered by Various Models.	I-5
Figure I-3.	Six Water Use Directives Derived from State Law.	I-8
Figure I-4.	Regional Planning Boundaries.	I-13
Figure I-5.	Areas Outside the Plan Boundary with Significant Relationships to the Lower East Coast Planning Process.	I-14
Figure I-6.	Variation from Annual Average Rainfall Within the South Florida Water Management District.	I-17
Figure I-7.	Examples of Potential Ground Water Contamination Sources. ..	I-20
Figure II-1.	The Hydrologic Cycle	II-3
Figure II-2.	Average Monthly Distribution of Annual Rainfall for the Lower East Coast Developed Area, 1915-1985.	II-5
Figure II-3.	The Central and Southern Florida Project Features Within the Lower East Coast Planning Area.	II-10
Figure II-4.	C&SF Project Facilities for the Delivery of Water Supply.	II-12
Figure II-5.	Regulation Schedule for Lake Okeechobee.	II-15
Figure II-6.	Regulation Schedule for WCA-1.	II-17
Figure II-7.	Regulation Schedule for WCA-2A.	II-17
Figure II-8.	Regulation Schedule for WCA-3A.	II-18
Figure II-9.	Generalized Hydrogeologic Framework of the Lower East Coast.	II-20
Figure II-10.	Units of the Surficial Aquifer System within the Lower East Coast Study Area.	II-21
Figure III-1.	Comparison of Historical and Current Everglades Vegetation Patterns.	III-5
Figure III-2.	Color wetlands map.	III-16
Figure III-3.	Estuary Systems Within the Lower East Coast Region.	III-19
Figure III-4.	Lake Okeechobee Littoral Zone	III-24
Figure IV-1.	Lower East Coast Overall Water Demands for 1990.	IV-1
Figure IV-2.	Comparison of Overall Water Demands in the Lower East Coast for 1990 and 2010.	IV-3
Figure IV-3.	Comparison of Population Estimates and Projections in the Lower East Coast for 1990-2010.	IV-5
Figure IV-4.	Lower East Coast Public Water Supply Demand, 1990-2010. ...	IV-7

List of Figures (Continued)

Figure IV-5.	Lower East Coast Agricultural Water Demand by Crop Type for 1990.	IV-14
Figure IV-6.	Lower East Coast Agricultural Water Demand by Crop Type for 2010.	IV-14
Figure IV-7.	Comparison of Agricultural Demand in the Lower East Coast for 1990-2010.	IV-15
Figure VI-1.	Conceptual illustration of Aquifer Storage and Recovery Project Utilizing Treated Water.	VI-20
Figure VI-2.	Potential Sites for New Detention Areas.	VI-22
Figure VII-1.	The Major Water Budget Subbasins of the Lower East Coast.	VII-2
Figure VII-2.	Comparison of Estimated Historical Annual Average Inflows and Outflows for the Overall Lower East Coast Region.	VII-4
Figure VII-3.	Comparison of Estimated Historical Annual Average Inflows and Outflows for Lake Okeechobee.	VII-5
Figure VII-4.	Comparison of Estimated Historical Annual Average Inflows and Outflows for the EAA.	VII-6
Figure VII-5.	Comparison of Estimated Historical Annual Average Inflows and Outflows for the WCA System.	VII-7
Figure VII-6.	Comparison of Estimated Historical Annual Average Inflows and Outflows for the LEC Developed Area.	VII-8
Figure VII-7.	Comparison of Estimated Historical Annual Average Flows and Outflows for Eastern Everglades National Park.	VII-9
Figure VII-8.	Comparison of Naturaland Managed System Overland Flow for September 30, 1988.	VII-13
Figure VII-9.	Comparison of Naturaland Managed System Ground Water Flow for September 30, 1988.	VII-14
Figure VII-10.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Ponding Depth Patterns at the End of a Normal Wet Season	VII-18
Figure VII-11.	Difference Between Managed and Natural System Water Levels at the End of a Normal Wet Season ..	VII-19
Figure VII-12.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Ponding Depth Patterns at the End of a Normal Dry Season.	VII-24
Figure VII-13.	Difference Between Managed and Natural System Water Levels at the End of a Normal Dry Season.	VII-25
Figure VII-14.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Ponding Depth Patterns for an Extreme Wet Condition.	VII-28
Figure VII-15.	Difference Between Managed and Natural System Water Levels for an Extreme Wet Condition.	VII-29

List of Figures (Continued)

A. OVERVIEW

Figure VII-16.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Hydroperiod Patterns for a Normal Rainfall Year - 1985.	VII-34
Figure VII-17.	Difference Between Managed and Natural System Hydroperiod Patterns for a Normal Rainfall Year - 1985. ..	VII-35
Figure VII-18.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Hydroperiod Patterns for a Low Rainfall Year - 1989.	VII-38
Figure VII-19.	Difference between Managed and Natural System Hydroperiod Patterns for a Low Rainfall Year - 1989.	VII-39
Figure VII-20.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Hydroperiod Patterns for a High Rainfall Year - 1983.	VII-42
Figure VII-21.	Difference between Managed and Natural System Hydroperiod Patterns for a High Rainfall Year - 1983.	VII-43
Figure VII-22.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Average Annual (1980-89) Inflows to the WCA System. ...	VII-46
Figure VII-23.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Average Annual (1980-89) Outflows from the WCA System.	VII-47
Figure VII-24.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Annual Average Inflows to the Lower East Coast Developed Area.	VII-49
Figure VII-25.	Comparison of Natural and Managed System Annual Average Outflows from the LEC Developed Area.	VII-50
Figure VII-26.	Comparison of Natural and Managed Annual Average (1980-89) Inflows for Eastern Everglades National Park. ..	VII-53
Figure VII-27.	Comparison of Natural and Managed Annual Average (1980-89) Outflows for Eastern Everglades National Park.	VII-54
Figure VII-28.	Major Features of Water Management System in General Area of Shark River Slough.	VII-56
Figure VII-29.	Comparison of Natural System and Managed System Monthly Flows Across the 20 Mile Tamiami Trail Section.	VII-57
Figure VII-30.	Comparison of Natural System and Managed System Average Monthly Flows to Shark River Slough.	VII-58
Figure VII-31.	Proposed Stormwater Treatment Areas in the Everglades Agricultural Area.	VII-59

This draft working document includes seven sections:

- I. Introduction. This section includes a description of water supply goals, objectives, and policies as they apply to regional water supply issues. It also identifies the study area, past water supply studies and related information.
- II. Regional Water Resources. This section provides a description of the water resources in the study area.