SUPER SENIOR: Former SGC-UP Chief Justice Bill Buchanan will be getting his Bachelor degree in religious studies. Buchanan is planning to take a year off from school and then return to FIU as law student or employee of the University.

Farm life wasn't for him, FIU sure was

BEN F. BADGER JR.
Asst. News Director

When Omar Bill Buchanan III started his college journey in 2000 he had no idea how long his quest would be or how many twists and turns would be involved.

Buchanan started at West Point, an extremely prestigious military academy that requires the recommendation of a senator or house representative to enroll.

The farm boy who grew up in Meadow, Fla. received not only a recommendation from Rep. Daniel Miller, but also received a ringing endorsement from Sen. Connie Mack III and Sen. Bob Graham.

His plan was to become the next great military legend, but due to an accident while playing football, Buchanan was forced to leave West Point.

In addition to the rigorous curriculum, there were physical requirement as well.

"I could have forced the door open for a few more months," Buchanan said. "But I didn't."

After leaving West Point, Buchanan spent the next year in several odd jobs including skydiving. But he would have an epiphany while working on a farm.

"One day I was working on a farm and looked over to my uncle, who was like 60 at the time, and I said I have to get out of here," Buchanan said.

With nothing more than a transcript and his possessions Buchanan moved to South Florida, knowing only a handful of people. One of his first stops was FIU where he was accepted on the spot.

From the start Buchanan was very active on campus, even living in the dorms. Before long he had managed to intertwine himself with the core of

Athletics' graduation rates rebound

JONATHAN RAMOS
Asst. Sports Editor

In the spring of 2007, FIU did not meet the minimum requirement that student athletes are supposed to set in the classroom.

The Golden Panthers were penalized by the NCAA academic progress rate and dealt with the loss of nine scholarships, the most in Division I.

What a difference a year makes.

FIU is set to graduate 44 student athletes at the conclusion of this semester, the highest number the University has ever graduated in a single semester, which caps off a very successful academic school year.

For Athletic Director Pete Garcia, it's business.

"That's why we're in business," he said. "Our number one priority is to Pay attention: life may throw you a free drink

I remember it like it was yesterday. It was one of the very few times in my life when I woke up refreshed and energized. My mom had already picked out the perfect outfit by the time I got out of the shower. I can still remember the smell of my new, blue plastic Power Rangers lunch box, which she had already

Six years and three major changes later, I leave no wiser academically than I did when I walked in. Of course that's hyperbole, but I realized that college is as much about the experience as it is about filled with a sandwich, frozen Kool-Aid cooler, a banana and a Little Debbie brownie.

Then came the annoying pictures: outside the house with the new outfit and book bag, with my sister and parents outside the school, etc.

Yeah, my first day of col-

We all have a story to tell, now it's time to find an ending

GEOFFREY ANDERSON, JR.

First, a word to the graduates: For many of us, college was the best of times and it was the worst of times.

As we sit here together at commencement waiting to get on stage, I can honestly say that these past few years at FIU - four or five for some, six to eight for others and more than that for the unlucky - will remain in our minds for quite some time.

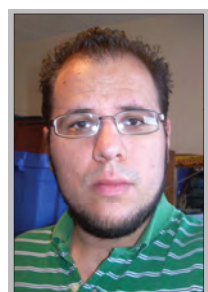

Maybe you'll recall all the times your face lit up when you found a lone parking space on campus (thank you, Miami-Dade Youth Fair). Perhaps you'll remember all the new friends you made each semester, the same ones you never saw again after finals week.

Most likely, you'll just look back and be glad that last-minute term papers and cramming are things of your collegiate past (unfortunately, your procrastination habit isn't).

To all the parents in attendance, I congratulate you: not for picking up this newspaper, but for producing a fine son and/or daughter who will soon - if he or she isn't doing so already - contribute to our society in a particular area of expertise.

Your offspring have worked exceptionally hard to be here today, so please be very proud of them. Some of them worked even harder at getting you tickets to this special ceremony, so please be grateful, too.

At the beginning of the semester, I was asked to write this graduation column. I'd never written one before - surprise - but because I had four months to think of a central theme, I wasn't too worried.

Four months later, I'm just as confused as I was back then. You see, I can't predict the future. I don't know what's going to happen to me or to any of you after we say our goodbyes to this university. What expert advice could I possibly give you if I'm just like you, wearing an uncomfortable and extremely hot cap and gown?

Well, there is one thing I can share with you.

About a year ago, I had the privilege of taking a Print News Workshop course taught by Pro-student leaders.

While at FIU he has served as president of the Student Programming Council, president of his fraternity Sigma Phi Epsilon, an upper division representative and most recently the director of internal affairs and chief justice for the Student Government Council.

"For as long as I can remember he has been in student government," said Marbely Hernandez, president of SGC-UP.

Hernandez also said that Buchanan was the only person she could ever have thought of to manage internal affairs for her administration.

When it came time to finally appoint a chief justice for the judicial branch of her administration, Buchanan was again the

"He brought in accountability," Hernandez said. "I think it's his favorite word."

Jose Toscano, SGC-UP advisor, wished that Buchanan had served as chief justice from the start of the Hernandez administration.

"Bill was a great resource because of the history he brought in," Toscano said. "I think it's a tremendous loss to Student Government [that Bill is graduating]."

Arthur "AJ" Meyer, SGC-UP vice president, also saw Buchanan as an invaluable resource.

"He is a very close friend of mine and has taught and guided me a lot," Meyer said. "We have worked on many initiatives and lobbied together a lot."
Now that college is over for Buchanan, he plans to take a year off and hopefully return to FIU as either a law student or an employee.

"I go wherever God leads me," Buchanan said. "I know it sounds cliché, but that's what brought me to Miami and that what has kept me at FIU. I have relied a lot on my faith to lead me where I go."
After seven years of hard labor and some time off, Buchanan will be graduating with a B.A. in religious studies and a 3.7 GPA.

His degree, however, is by far overshadowed by his longtime involvement with student life.
Many of Buchanan's friends would classify him as a "super senior." But more importantly, a great friend.

"He is a great guy to be around and is definitely going to be successful," Meyer said. "You can never judge a book by its cover."

For now, just sit back and relax: this is your day to savor. Congratulations and good luck.

Student athletes have higher Fall GPA than regular students follows a Fall semester that saw FIU's student athletes have a higher cumulative GPA (2.90) than the student body. Also in the Fall, 41 percent of student athletes earned academic honors and 59 of 352 athletes made the dean's list. Less than one percent of Fall classes were dropped.

FIU's student-athletes have benefited from a budget increase at the Student-Athlete Academic Center (SAAC), and a commitment from administration.

"It is a combination of the coaches we have hired and the administration," Garcia said. "But the overall credit goes to [FIU President] Modesto Maidique, who has been very supportive since the day he hired me."

Garcia credits Maidique for his drive to push the program forward.

"Does he want to win?" He wants to win at the highest level. He is very competitive and he wants to win at everything, and nobody can underestimate his commitment to the students and student-athletes at this university," Garcia said.

"When he hired me he asked me what we need to be successful on the field and in the classroom and I told him. He has applied it and now you see the results."

In Garcia's eyes, the academic success of athletes is just a small part of the administrations vision for the university.

"My wife graduated from here some years ago and it was nothing more than a commuter school," he said. "Now it's starting to take the shape and attitude of a regular university."

Six years in college is a double loop of emotions

to class when it seems like the world is crashing down around or skipping class to get drunk at the beach, everyone's experience may seem different on the exterior, but it's really not.

For me, though, my time at FIU will definitely be the most memorable six years - that's right, six years - of my life. It was a double loop of emotions - to use an FIU/Miami-Dade County Youth Fair reference - with many people, places and things to thank.

From passing your first test, failing your first test, dropping your first class, being rejected by multiple women, pulling an all nighter to write a paper, making new friends, losing old ones, finding love, losing love, there won't be another six-year span in which so much happens for the rest of my life.

It's very popular to say that once you graduate college you're entering the real world. But didn't you hear that exact same thing when you graduated high school?

Hell, I remember hearing it graduating from kindergarten, and I'm sure I'll hear it again if I get married or if I have children.

I say BS to that. You enter the real world at birth, and everything that happens after is all a part of it. There is nothing more real than the ebb and flow of life. The only difference is that people equate increased responsibility with growing up and completely ignore all of your irresponsibility that made you who are now.

So, fellow college graduates, we shouldn't consider ourselves grown ups just yet, because at 21, 22, 23 and (in my case) 24 years old. We're all still growing up. Even our parents are still growing up, although you'll never get them to admit it.

This was supposed to be a sports column, considering I've worked with the sports section for three years, so I'll tie that in to my argument.

FIU Athletics, as well as the University as a whole, is growing up just like we are. With the University being about three decades old, we're finally seeing a strong commitment to Athletics just in the past 18 months. Yes, FIU has a law school, a world class business school and will be opening up a medical school in a little over a year, but none of that can give the school as much notoriety - and as much donations - as nationally-recognized athletics program.

Now that I've satisfied my sports requirement, I'll leave you with some advice you'll probably ignore: keep you head up and eyes open - like Tupac said - and never be afraid to take a look around you, because you'll definitely find something interesting.

It may be good sometimes, it may be bad sometimes, it may even be nothing sometimes, but I guarantee you than one of those times it'll be a free beer. And who wouldn't want that?

CATCH THE I.T. WAVE

Introducing Our New M.S. in Information Technology Degree Program

Information Technology is the wave of the future. Now you can increase your earning potential by obtaining a master's degree in information technology at Nova Southeastern University's Graduate School of Computer and Information Sciences.

Choose one of five concentrations:

- Software Development
- Information System Security
- Educational Technology
- Information Security Management
- Information Technology Management

About Us:

- Convenient online and on-campus formats
- Cutting-edge faculty and curriculum
- Designated a National Center of Academic Excellence in Information Assurance by the U.S. government
- M.S. and Ph.D. programs offered in computer science, educational technology, information security, information systems, and information technology
