

Day care becomes campus concern

By MYRON STRUCK Editor and MAURA KAUFMAN Staff Writer

"Insurance companies just go hummmmmmm . . . and nod their heads in disapproval," Sandra J. Clark, dean of students said.

"It is somewhat expensive," Terry Spence, assistant dean of student

"It just isn't a popular idea with men," Dr. Char-lotte Tatro, director of the Institute for Women said.

The subject that causes this negative reaction is not automobile insurace or sunbathing in the nude—it's daycare.

And the problems involved in gaining day care centers are spelled out—insurance—money and centers are spelled out — insurance, money and popularity.

These three "capitalistic" factors, in fact, apparently override the issue of whether the center has educational ad-

has educational advantages or simply custodial care.

These, and other factors, however, are all playing a key role in the minds of the various organizations at Florida International University interested in establishing aday care center on or near day care center on or near the campus.

Barbara O'Nan, who is chairman of the day care center group on campus, center group on campus, "gets two or three calls a day asking about day care." The calls are directed to her desk in the Student Government Association Executive

Offices where she is the Scribe.

"I have to tell them nothing is happening, actually, but there are plans being laid," Ms. O'Nan said.

"We conducted a one-year drive to poll the interest in day care," Terry Spence said. "It is the general policy of the University, however, that the FIU Education Department is not concerned with day care, except perhaps as a lab; and that left us with the burden of proving need."

FIU mailed out surveys to all new students last year, and the students attending, faculty and staff were asked for input as well.

"The response was low," Dean Clark said.
"You didn't have to identify yourself, if you didn't want to."

The survey showed, The survey showed, she said, that many people, at that time, hadn't fully realized that there was such a lack of adequate day care facilities in the area in which they planned to attend classes. ¹ "The faculty interest, in fact, proved to be much higher, than the students at the time."

The Dean added that "I am not interested in the faculty, although they were consulted to see their need and what their input was."

The issue was, in sense, tabled until recently when it became known when it became known that Metro was planning five regional day care centers. One, they hoped would be located in the general vicinity.

A new force came into being, Francina Thomas. Heading the department of Minority Affairs and Women's Concerns, Ms. Thomas was charged with Thomas was charged with the task or coordinating the day care feasibility studies.

"They all seem to get stalemated in the same place," Ms. Thomas said, criticizing the fact that people seem to find some detail in the survey that makes the polling irrelevent.

"You can't just up and put a day care facility any-where . . . you have to have a certain number of a certain number of bath rooms and a certain number of a whole list of things," Dean Clark said. "Ms. O'Nan said that efforts have been made to "informally" secure a classroom to use as a day care facility, and these have failed due to regulations.

"The main problem in Dean Clark said. Is the fact that the insurance rates just fly up."

Dean Clark cited other locations in the country that have medical and educational facilities in conjunction with a campus day care facility, thus alleviating some of the soaring insurance rates.

Here, though, without support benefits, any support benefits,
"except a budding nursing program," Dean Clark says, it would be "economically unfeasible."
"If the University is involved," she said. "It must be done right."
Should the alternate plan, to house the day care center at Tamiami Park center at Tamiami Park go through, Ms. Thomas feels that up to 300 children could eventually be accom-modated.

Support facilities and administrative personnel to man the center would be the main cost factors in-

Ms. Thomas' recent Ms. Thomas recent poll, however, showed one marked difference from earlier surveys — men have expressed a large desire to have a day care center.

In an unrelated survey, 46 coupons were turned in to Ms. Thomas' office from an advertise-ment soliciting readers needs for day care. The ad ran in the Sept. 27th edition of "The Good Times."

Day care, though, as far as Tamiami Park is concerned, is only a lobbying and convincing effort. The failure on the part of the student body, the faculty and staff of Florida International University to show support for such a project could cause it to fold.

With two surveys completed and two more underway, a complete turn-around in day care apathy may be needed to secure the center.

"Day care is an important concept," Terry Spence said. They require an amount of financial support with day care, and we are trying to offer it to them."

"But just what level of "But just what level of priority does day care have in our budget," Dean Clark said. "It could be the first thing cut, or the last. But pruning the budget usually cuts this out as being unnecessary. It usually turns out that another agency can provide it better, and the whole project fails.

Kids room hells of PC	Iniversity of South Florida. Ms. Thomas reflected the problems she has encountered. "We've been told that we can't get it (day care) on campus because of the insurance," Ms. Thomas begins, adding that without support and funding, the center will be an improbability. The organization is working with the Commission on the Status of Women in convincing the proper authorities that day care is needed in the immediate Florida International University area. Needed, in fact, Ms. Thomas says, at Tamiami Park at Coral Way and 117th Street.	Would you use a day care center near Florida International? How many children would you enroll? Number of children under 2 years old? Number of children under 6 years old? Student? Faculty? Staff? Other? Would you, in some way, support through active participation, the implementation of day care center in the region, if possible? How much would you be willing to spend to put your child(ren) in a day

Story and Photos By MYRON STRUCK Editor

SOMERSET, Pa.
Thanksgiving or C vacation to a northern state might be exactly what you need — and the place to go is Somerset County, Pennsylvania

55-miles southwest of Pittsburgh, the County is about as big as Dade and has about as many recreational attractions. These are, however, oriented to the area's summer as well as winter tourism. A visit in either season can find equally as many enlightening frivolities.

The area is tourist oriented. Situated along 1-76, the Pennsylvania Turnpike, there are towns in the immediate region such as Breezewood that consist of about 20 motels and 15 gas station/garages — and that's it.

Somerset County, itself, is situated in Laurel Highlands, and the publicity brochures call it, "The Place to Play."

The key is that it could be relatively inexpensive if you're looking for a one week vacation. If your thing is winter fun — it'll double your pleasure.

From the rustic covered bridge over ice filled creeks, the visitor finds himself amongst the best of America's homeland.

The people are, on the whole, totally different from those found in urban America. They're warm, and take an interest in you even though they don't know you. And if you've ever stayed in a megayou've ever stayed in a mega-opolis hotel you know you get the feeling like the manage-ment feels they are doing you the favor by coming there. Here it's the opposite.

Situated in the county is Pennsylvania's highest point, Mt. Davis. The peak, rising only 3,213 feet, isn't towering in comparison to the sur-rounding land of the Appalachians Highlands, offers a magnificent view from the top of a fire tower.

To get the best out of your visit, start in the County seat, Somerset (Bourough). The town of over 6,000 isn't very big, but one has to remember this is rural rural America. The people daily see and pass people they know on the town's two main business meet is the town square. The area is decorated with benches and mini-parks.

The city itself boasts one motion picture theater (two in the winter when business is "booming"), a Daily Newspaper, "The American," one senior high school . . . and so on down the line . . . one, that is, of all the things that many urbanites are so used to having many of.

An audio-visual pre-sentation (remarkably well done) begins the show ex-plaining the development of the area. The establishment is open during the winter, however, by appointment only. There is no cost.

Moving farther out of the incorporated area the rolling countryside contains 2,300 and one begins to > Laurel Highlands Scene," a bi-monthly publication (P.O. Box 22, Scottsdale, Pa., 25c) can clue you in on the months' goings on.

State Parks are nearby and offer boating, camping, fishing, hunting, picknicking and swimming (should weather permit). They are, in a word, fantastic. Seven Springs Ski Resort is Pennsyl-vania's largest ski facility, and is completely ornate and self contained.

Formal entertainment is there in the form of plays at various locations in the area. But the beauty of Somerset in summer, or winter is scenery, people and life itself. A break from the doldrums of urbanization and the push-push go-go life of America, the area is placid, but growing.

Pioneer Park Camp-ground and the Ski Resorts may also be utilized simply for their services, and not for an individual's base of operations.

Completing your tour, a look into many side roads may find your shutters snapping on the camera as the countryside gives you a nostalgic feeling of things gone past too quickly. A simplicity and complexity in life wrapped up into one ball — and uniquely distributed across the backside of the Appalachian Mountains.

One attraction not on the guide books that shouldn't be overlooked is the covered bridges over the rushing brooks and streams.

If you have the time, stop and talk to the locals.

That stands out in my mind about Somerset people, and their attitude.

It's worth it to take a look at rural America — and not overlook it.

Wrestlers face M-D South Friday

The Sunblazer wrestling team hopes it doesn't doesn't rain tomorrow when they open season with an exhibition h against Miami-Dade natch against Miami-Dade Community College South. The 3 p.m. match will be on the Plaza between Primera Casa and Deuxieme Maison.

Netters in tourney in Tampa this week

The Sunblazer tennis team has been invited to play in the University of South Florida Fall Tennis Tournament, Nov. 15-17, in Tampa.

The netters have been practicing daily at the Kendale Lakes Country Club in preparation of the 1973-74 season. Coach Bill Fleming's crew will be vigorously trying to improve a first year's record of 19 wins and 20 losses when they begin dual competition early next year.

In their initial season, the Sunblazers took on cross town rival, the University of Miami threat, the officeraty of Malani Hurricanes, which captured a 5th-place finish at the National Collegiate Athletic Association finals last year.

They also met Miami-Dade Community College North, last year, which finished second at the National Junior College Athletic Association Championships in 1973.

Though the Sunblazers lost to both squads, Fleming believes his team stands a better chance of winning this second time

"We were weakened last year half way through the season by the loss of several of our top players," Fleming said. "I think we did quite well with the group we had."

The netters have Rudy
Vargas, Robert Walker, Bob Helin, Dick Ewers, Bob Hecht and Bob Slater, returning.

Fleming bolstered his team by signing two new players to grant-in-aid scholarships. Jim Payne of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Chip Spiller, of Central Flor-ida Community College, Ocala.

"Last year we were dependent upon Vargas to carry us in most of the matches. Rudy has improved his play this year and will continue his steady performances, I'm sure," Fleming said

Jim Payne will be the No. 1 singles man, however, Fleming said. He'll be followed by Chip Spiller, Rudy Vargas, Mike Purtz, Bob Helin and Ken Deutsch in the tournament this beutsch in the tournament this week.

"George Sardina is recovering from an operation on his ankle so he'll only be used in the doubles competition. When he is fully recovered, I think George will be pushing Payne and Spiller for the No. 1 singles spot," he said.

The Sunblazers will be playing against South Florida, Tampa University and Jacksonville University in the USF Invitational.

"USF will probably give us the most competition, "Fleming said. "I don't see Tampa and Jacksonville as top teams."

Construction is now into its fourth week on the recreational fourth week on the recreational complex and Fleming is keeping his fingers crossed that there will be no delay in the completion of the courts.

The match will be a first at Florida International as part of a new plan to increase student in-terest in the wrestling program. Coach Sid Huitema has been preparing his wrestlers for the 1973-74 season in daily practice sessions.

"Anytime you start a season, a coach has to work with each individual player teaching him fundamentals and working." on his weaknesses," Huitema said. "This year has been no on his weaknesses, Huitema said. "This year has been no exception."

Huitema is looking for a much different season than the Sunblazers had in their last year. In their first year of competition, the grapplers were 0.8.

"Last year there were not enough wrestlers to fill each weight class in the dual meets. If you go into competition knowing you have already given the opposing team 20 points because you can't fill each class, I guess it is pretty difficult to think you can win," he said.

Huitema will be working with very few experienced senior wrestlers and the incoming juniors will have to make up most of the weight classes.

most of the weight classes.
"We've got a young team, but I don't think that will stop us from winning a majority of our matches. The boys have a win-ning attitude, and I think that they are willing to work hard to reach their personal and team goals," he said. The Sunblazers entered their first competition in the 1973 Kil-lian Open Wrestling Tournament.

Mike Szabo placed first in MIKE SZaDO placed ITIST IN the 130-pound weight class for the Sunblazers. Szabo was also awarded the Outstanding Wrestler Trophy.

Along with Szabo, Florida International had two second-place finishes by Mark Hewitt (120 lbs.) and Don Dallatore (175 lbs.)

third-place

The third-place finishes were turned in by Dave Folmer Ed Puntervold and Ira Paul. Dave Sporli and Joe Gluckman placed fourth for the Sunblazers. "Szabo really was outstanding in the Killian (Open)," as were some of our other wrestlers, Huitema said. "He made history for the University by becoming the first champion wrestler in the school's history." Huitema is hoping for good weather Friday, and a strong turnout of interest students for their exhibition match.

"This match will give the students an opportunity to watch what I hope will be an interesting and successful match against Miami-Dade South. I just hope it doesn't rain," he said.

NKSGIVING Among the days that pass next week is the day on which, by national decree, we officially count our blessings - Thanksgiving.

The first Thnaksgiving was celebrated in 1621, but it was not until 1789 that President Washington proclaimed a national celebration, although it was not very successful until President Lincoln revived the custom just 100 years ago. In 1941, the Congress set the fourth Thursday, which this year is November 22, as the official Thnaksgiving Day.

A harvest that included four wild turkeys seemed cause enough for the first celebration. In today's complexity it is sometimes difficult to count our blessings. The man who does not freeze to death because oil production restrictions are eased may well suffocate from lack of clear air. His brother may starve because he lost his job to conserve the energy that kept the man from freezing.

Our nation has reeled from one crisis to another in the past year. But this nation of ours will see a new force of togetherness begin to develop; not with the pull of a whirlpool or tornado, more like a swirl of oak leaves or the circling of a school of fish. These phenomena are a natural joining together, pulled by a common cause. True, some leaves and some fish will not join the circle; the pull of the common cause has not reached them. We live in a manmade world. We do not react purely by instinct or the pull of nature's elements. We are structured into a "logical" scheme - a scheme laid out to protect the rights of the individual. The individual in turn has voluntarily given up rights when it seemed expedient in order to protect the rights of the society.

Those of us who have never lived under any other premise do not know how valuable these rights really are. How important it is as we approach this particular Thanksgiving in 1973 that we direct our thanks to what appears to be a spontaneous feeling of this nation that the system can work, is working and must work.

reader response

It's cookie time at FIU...

A column in "The New York Times" a number of years ago pointed out how unfortunate it would be if Universities gave themselves nicknames based on the names of their first presidents.

They pointed out how awful it would sound if the headlines read "Abies crush Belchers" Yale (first president Abraham Pierson) Princeton (first president John Belcher).

Since the precedent seem to be to nickname the school for the founder, what a great opportunity FIU has missed.

On the campus, is an eternal light dedicated to "the memory of the late State Senator Ernest R. Graham, 1855-1964 . . . " who with great foresight and wisdom introduced the first legislation in the Florida legislature to establish a State University in the Miami area.

With a founder named Graham, how could FIU miss? The Graham crackers would be invincible. Sunblazers, indeed!

Respectfully. Donald Z. Bailey

(Ed. Note: Wait a minute. I thought we were talking about 'first president,' not founders. Shouldn't the name be Perry's Pets or something similar.

Realistically, for those who didn't know it the campus had the opportunity to suggest and recommend, as well as vote on possible names.)

Perry responds

I will respond to your open letter to me (published in the November 8 issue of "The Good Times). I do not have the opportunity to give it the proper consideration before the deadline for the Nov. 15 issue but I will give you an answer for the Nov. 29 issue.

Wright on!

May I express my thanks as one student at FIU regarding your editorial of SGA activities. I would hope that the response from Dr. Perry will be of a positive nature. Thank you again, keep up the good work.
