University forum says "no Ziegler"

JIM BALL News Editor

The first University Forum to ever achieve a quorum met last Friday afternoon and voted to require the SGA to reconsider withdrawing the funds allocated to pay Ron Ziegler for a speaking engagement here.

The vote was declared invalid last Monday, however, by SGA Parliamentarian, Jose Eiriz, "Based on the Registrar's roles we verified 117 signatures establishing the necessary quorum," explained Eiriz, "we had to throw out 30 of the affirmative votes because some people voted twice, some were not students, and some people failed to sign the quorum sheet which made them ineligible to vote."

Eiriz indicated that a simple majority would have required 59 affirmative votes. The official results were 50 to 2 in favor of withdrawing the funds. "I think the SGA should have written up guidelines and procedures before the forum took place," said Eiriz.

SGA chairperson, Griz Rodriguez, expected the student senate to rescind the allocation. "Whether the Forum is valid or not," commented Rodriguez, "Ithink it indicates a strong student sentiment against spending that kind of money for Mr. Ziegler."

Had the vote been validated, it would have forced the SGA to reconsider its vote of last week to go ahead with the contract. The motion presented to the Forum was made by Barbara O'Nan and seconded by Athama Bowe, resolved that "SGA withdraw its $2,000 allocation to pay Ron Siegler."

A letter from Dr. Sandra Clark, Dean of Student Affairs, read to the assembly prior to voting questioned the financial benefit of the contract. "In my position as Dean," said Clark, "I certainly hope that you will seriously consider the implications of any $2,000 expense that doesn't provide more direct necessary benefit to the students."

SGA rises to "hot issue"

JIM BALL News Editor

Following frequent and lengthy disagreement on procedure, the SGA defeated a motion at last week's meeting that would have rescinded a $2,000 allocation to pay former White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler for a speaking engagement at FIU.

Ziegler's appearance, scheduled for February 21, was approved at a January 15 meeting of SGA. A motion submitted by Barbara O'Nan urged that the senate rescind the $2,000 allocation.

"As representatives of the entire student body at FIU, we must defer to the sentiments expressed by our various constituents," said O'Nan. "The money allocated to bring Mr.

Ziegler here could be put to better use.

"It is inappropriate to remunerate a person so closely involved in a national scandal and whose veracity is questionable."

The senators defeated the motion to rescind the allocation by a 14 to 12 vote. A motion to reconsider was also defeated by the same vote.

Mike O'Donovan, an SGA senator who voted to rescind the allocation, explained that "the issue is not a question of free speech, no one said Ron Ziegler could not speak here but the issue is whether we want to pay $2,000 to have him."

A petition signed by over 220 signatures objecting to the $2,000 payment to Ziegler was presented by Berdell Moffett at the meeting. "They (Social and Cultural Committee) did not get student input on extending the invitation to Ziegler" said Moffett.

Claude Beaulac, chairman of the Social and Cultural Committee, defended the committee's action. "He's a very hot issue," explained Beaulac. "We were criticized for not doing anything last quarter. Our committee felt that he was one of the best speakers available."

"He was a part of history," commented Ron Puder, who voted against rescinding the allocation. "Ron Ziegler being the controversial figure he is would bring some excitement to FIU."

FIU, AUI exchange

MICHAEL DUKEWICH Student Journalist

Florida International University and Agean University of Izmir, Turkey have begun a "sister institution relationship which will deal with the exchange of faculty and improvement of educational systems at both institutions," according to Dr. Oktay Ural, Chairman of the Division of Construction in the School of Technology.

The program which started initially in September of 1974 with Dr. Ikaya, associate Professor of Engineering at Agean University is brought back into the news with the arrival of another member of Aegean Universities staff, Dr. Kemal Karhan.

Dr. Karhan, Dean of the School of Engineering at Agean University is currently visiting some of Florida's colleges and universities. His particular interests are in community colleges in order to learn more about these systems of operation. Karhan has hopes of establishing the community college system in Turkey since there are no other means of higher education other than four year institutions. Says Karhan, "with over 200,000 high school graduates only about onefourth can attend one of the nine universities in the country." However only three of the nine universities are "established universities" according to Ural.

Itinerary for Professor Karhan's visit will include traveling to St. Petersburg Community College and The University of South Florida, along with visits to Broward Community College, Polk Community College and the Miami-Dade North Campus. Making the trip with Dr. Karhan will be Dr. Ural, and Dean Robert W. Ellis Jr., of the School of Technology.

In addition to establishing a community college system in Turkey, Karhan looks at the possibility of "improving our present upper division education in engineering" and hopes FIU will assist in his efforts.

The School of Technology is not the only school which could benefit the program. "We hope that in the future both Agean University and FIU will enter all of its schools and colleges into the exchange program," according to Dr. Ural. "Not only in the future do we plan to exchange faculty or administrative people, but students of both institutions." The plan for students exchange is really not too far in the future.

Bor met this week

FIU open for admissions

The Board of Regents lifted the freeze on admissions at its Orlando meeting last Monday. "The freeze has been lifted on admissions," said Mr. Ron Butler, university registrar. FIU will begin processing applications as it was before the freeze was imposed."

Board of Regents chairman Marshall Criser called the special meeting on February 3 to consider recommendations on admissions and further budget cuts in the State University System. The temporary freeze on admissions should be clarified at the session to be held in Orlando.

The BOR finance committee met recently in Jacksonville to review the order of January 13 admissions. Also, the impact of a shortfall in anticipated state revenue for this fiscal year was assessed.

A number of alternatives were recommended for exploration for a cut of at least $70 million out of the State University System request budget for this year. Governor Reubin Askew has asked all state agencies to reduce budget requests for 1975-76.

To meet the $70 million reduction, the BOR will explore a number of actions at the Orlando meeting:

• Giving up faculty man-year positions while increasing the staff support for faculty.

• Having no salary increases for 1975-76.

Safety turns to Elcar

The Elcar operates on eight automotive-type batteries which are recharged by plugging them into any standard 110 volt household outlet. A battery charger is standard equipment and a complete recharge takes from seven to eight hours. The cost to fully charge the car according to Florida Power & Light present rates is 35 cents.

The Elcar is available in two models. Model 1000 has a driving range of 45 miles with a top speed of 25 miles per hour. Model 2000 will reach a speed of 35 mph but with a range of only 30 miles.

Although still being tested the Safety Department feels the saving in gas will be great. A compact car runs about 12 cents a mile where the Elcar operates for about one-half cent a mile with no exhaust fumes.

The Elcar retails for under $3,000 and can be seen at Bolt-On Parts, 15551 West Dixie Highway, North Miami Beach.

Communication appears to have broken down at many streams of the FIU network. Somehow only a few know what's going on. Questions arise as to is really commanding the institution. All people here should have some idea of where to go with a problem or opinion.

Those familiar with the politics of FIU are aware of the deals and back-scratching, all off the record, of course. And with the economy squeezing in, it will be interesting that the wheeling and dealing may multiply. Money for one department comes from another's budget.

One of the beauties of democracy is the freedom of speech, of which Mr. Ziegler is taking advantage. But, according to one dean, there is the issue of morality and values, too. Mr. Ziegler has the interest of his pcoketbook as he rides the lecture circuit. But students and faculty ask about how Mr. Ziegler's lecture, or any other issue, will benefit FIU. Money is medal

Dr. Anthony Maingot Dean of Int'l Affairs

While sitting there at that Student Government meeting which voted the $2,000 for Ziegler I could only think back over the whole Watergate epoch and agree with a statement of John Billings' which Adlai Stevenson often used: "As scarce as truth is, the supply is greater than the demand". Where was the demand for truth reflected in this vote? A catering to notoriety yes, to sensationalism, and maybe even to that posture of seedy politics which maintains that all events have a right side, a left side and an "inside". Ziegler presumably is to provide the 'inside" of the Watergate affair. What a shocking disregard for history, and such recent history at that.

The argument about freedom of speech is sheer unadulturated rationalization after the fact of the most offensive type. What is involved is a matter not of the degree of freedom but of the extent of the reward. A $2,000 fee in a society where things are measured substantially in monetary terms is a prize, a medal which is not pinned on the chest but deposited in the bank

And this reward has to be placed in the context of our University's financial situation. When I hear that no books will be bought for the Library in 1975-76, or to bring it closer to my Center when as Dean I see a potentially magnificent exchange program in teacher training with the Bahamas stymied because the $550 needed to launch it are not available; when the request from the Philosophy Dept. for $30 to offer lunch to guests of Archbishop McGrath of Panama who asked for no remuneration at all to address the University cannot be met... I could go on. The point is clear to those who care.

Offer Ziegler a roundtrip ticket, a night at a decent hotel and a free forum at this University. Offer him even something more than the lousy roast beef sandwich which was Congressman Dante Fascell's material reward when he recently addressed us at FIU but by God do not reward him for his deeds.

Since Ziegler himself is not a worthy subject of debate, in the final analysis this debate will have been beneficial only if we address ourselves to the principles involved. One of them, I would suggest, is that Student Governments ought to address themselves to both the wants and the needs of their constituents. The questions then become: do the students want Ziegler on Campus and, secondly, do they need Ziegler... more than books in the Library, for instance. It is a heavy responsibility these student leaders have. In this particular instance they appeared to have fumbled the ball.

Ziegler: FIU reacts

ROBYN BENDER and DAVID LAWRENCE GLEASON

FIU may have been born in '72 but has waited until now for its controversial baptism. With the recent decision to offer a speaking engagement to Ronald Ziegler, students and faculty alike have joined forces to express their pleasure and disfavor at this announcement.

"No mouthpiece is worth $2000." Such was the general reaction of students interviewed by THE GOOD TIMES upon hearing that Ronald Ziegler was invited to lecture on campus. Although Mr. Ziegler, former press secretary to former President Richard Nixon, marches to the tune of a different drummer, various students failed to be musically impressed by his presence.

When asked their views on the $2000 allocated to Mr. Ziegler, some students responded by saying that the fees were not excessive, while others felt the money could be spent on a worth-while cause with today's economic situation. "If he wants to speak, then let him. In relation to the money, it would just go to someone else," stated Greg Brockunier.

"In a time of financial crisis, I can think of 100 reasons why FIU shouldn't pay out $2000 plus expenses to Mr. Ziegler," said Peter Mann. "No one should make a profit from Watergate by going on a lecture tour," said Edward Bello.

Many students felt the need to schedule controversial figures at FTU. Their general consensus was that it would be a good idea for the school. "I think that having a speaker such as Ronald Ziegler will raise the student conscious level. It would be wrong for the students to har ass him when he comes. To turn him down after he's been invited would be a discredit to the University," stated Michael Willner, President of The Politics Club. "As a professional in his field and because of his involvements, Ronald Ziegler may have something to tell us," stated Athama Bowe.

Club has fun for sail

Want to get away from it all? Tired of fighting traffic? Need a break away from the books? Consider joining the FIU Sailing Club on a weekend outing to Elliott Key. Plans are to leave Merrill Stevens Boat Yard at Dinner Key at 7:00 p.m. on Fruday, February 22, and to return on Sunday, February 24. They will motor down to the Elliott Key Park on the Chinese Junk SHALOM.

The Sailing Club is bringing tents along so plan to camp out, swim, beachcomb and lend a hand sanding and varnishing SHALOM. $15.00 will cover the cost of all food and drinks and should be pre-paid to Henry Schur, PC 348, by February 11. His number is 552-2578. The capacity of the SHALOM is limited so sign up early.

A Biology class rented the junk recently and collected some fine invertebrate specimens near Soldiers Key. Other clubs and classes may make arrangements to rent the boat by calling Henry Schur.

The Sailing Club meets regularly each Thursday at 12:30 in DM 110. All FIU students, staff and faculty are invited to attend.

Freeze lifted

- Having no program improvements or new programs.
- Reducing the number of small classes, could be done by merging, eliminating or offering classes less frequently.
- Delaying purchases of equipment for all but emergency requirements.

Staff meets, sets goals

Twenty nine administrators, faculty and staff members met recently to discuss ways to meet a possible budget cut.

"It is possible that the university may operate next year with less money than this year," said Charles Perry, president of FIU.

Goals were outlined to the assembly which met last week:

- All present faculty and staff would be retained. Dismissals would be utilized as a last alternative to meet budget reductions.
- The enrollment for 1975-76 would be the same as the fall of 1974.
- The quality of instruction and service to students will be maintained at the current level.
- Salary levels would be maintained, and increased if possible, provided a reduction is not mandated by the state legislature.
- To fulfill these goals, the president also asked that specific actions be deliberated for the next few months. In the event of a budget reduction, efforts would begin to meet it.
