Presidential search narrowed to four

The presidential Search and Screen Committee met for five hours Monday, May 10, and voted on four names to be submitted to the Board of Regents (BOR) Selection Subcommittee.

The candidates for FIU President are:

Dr. Charles F. Bonser, Dean of the School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University;

Dr. Leonard E. Goodall, Chancellor of the University of Michigan—Dearborn;

Dr. Glenn A. Olds, President of Kent State University, and;

Dr. Stanley R. Ross, Vice President and Provost of The University of Texas at Austin.

Between Wednesday, April 28 and Saturday, May 8 the committee interviewed 10 candidates for president. Interviews took from two to three hours and were held at the Marriott Hotel in Miami.

At a meeting Saturday, May 1, the committee adopted, after significant discussion, the specific rules which it would follow in order to choose the candidates to be submitted to the BOR. These rules included the stipulation that a candidate would have to receive two-thirds of the committee's vote in order for his name to be submitted to the board.

After 13 votes only four names received a two-thirds majority. Originally, the BOR asked that no more than 10 and no less than six names be submitted.

International Week will end with the International Party, "Music and Dance under the Stars," from 8 p.m.-1 a.m. around the fountain. The party will include an international buffet, fashion show, and junkanoo parade from the Bahamas. Music will be provided by "La Universal" and "Gary David & The Vendors."

A & S Budget delayed over health service

KATHY LINDSAY
Staff Writer

Debate over the controversial Student Health Services continues this week as presentation of the Activity and Service Fee Budget to Interim President Harold B. Crosby is delayed a second week.

Originally the budget was to be submitted by May 1, but Chairperson Jose Eiriz delayed action because he questioned budgeting $70,000 to a department which refused a financial breakdown.

Eiriz said he will veto the entire budget. This would mean that the Senate would have to override his veto by a two-thirds majority vote or else the budget must be presented to the Senate to be voted on again in its entirety.

The Health Clinic's refusal to submit a financial breakdown concerns Eiriz, who says he cannot understand the reason for this. "How can a convincing defense of its funding be made when I cannot account for how the money is spent?"

The way in which the funding of the Activity and Service fee is handled is of interest to legislators since current bills before the legislature involve a higher level of student participation and responsibility in decision-making."

If the senate does not override the veto, Crosby has two options available to him. He may override the Senate's decision and approve the budget, or accept the package as presented and obtain funds for the services from another source.

The Health Services are required by state law to be on campus. Dean of Student Services, Sandra Clark, thinks that, if faced with a choice, the president would opt for charging the health fee through an increase in tuition which could go as high as $10 per student per quarter.

Clark notes that FIU is the only state school which does not fund health services in this manner. "The University of Florida charges the full $10 per student per quarter in addition to the $600 A & S fees, and charges a 'user fee' above a certain level of service. The services are much more elaborate," she said.

Clark said that in the contract agreement entered into with the clinic, more specific data was not requested to account for the money. The total package was accepted.

Originally, the Activity and Service Committee had concluded at the end of public hearings that the program was "not the best but adequate due to available funds," and recommended that an ad hoc committee be created quarterly to "evaluate and audit the quality and service offered by the Health Service contract."

Some senators who sat through the A & S hearings think that to veto the budget now would be unfair and would mean a great deal of work and time spent in vain.

Students upset over firing of professor

KATHY LINDSAY and DONNA ROBINS

Over 500 students have signed a petition protesting termination of the contract of Professor Richard Klimmer, an FIU history professor teaching at FIU since it opened in 1972.

Klimmer's contract called for completion of his Ph.D. degree from Northwestern University by June, 1976. He is expected to receive his degree as scheduled. The reason for dismissal stems from his failure to receive approval of his doctoral dissertation by Northwestern University by the deadline stated in his employment contract. The contract called for a December 31, 1975 deadline.

According to Dr. Barden Asbury Pyron, chairperson of the FIU History Department, he has been formally notified of only two approvals of the dissertation. "The department has considered it very rationally and carefully for a long time," Dr. Pyron said.

The students are protesting that Klimmer is being terminated on a mere technicality. They feel that he is more than competent; they consider him an outstanding professor.

"In class, Klimmer stimulates students and motivates them to become involved," says Arthur Buonamia, one of Klimmer's students.

The students are protesting that they have no representation in such decisions. They feel teacher evaluations should involve students since professors rarely sit in on the classes of other professors and the students are the ones who will be affected.

"We are fighting over representation and quality," said Buonamia. "The students want him back and we will go to any extreme to do it, or we'll do it the nice way, but we want him back," he said.

Buonamia said that if the petitions fail, a boycott of history classes will be pushed to the extent that students will be encouraged not to take electives through the History Department.

Three TV screens, two cameras and Robert W. Becker with portraits occupied the UH Forum Thursday, May 6. It was part of Video-Media Day sponsored by the Mass Communications Club.

A fruit buffet in the center was an integral part of the photographic program. Films of pineapples, oranges, strawberries and the people eating them was recorded as a film experiment.

Robert W. Becker, internationally known portrait photographer, showed slides and gave a lighting demonstration using two strobe units and the head of a mannequin.

Approximately 75 persons participated in the program.

Miami News staff photographer Mike O'Brien showed slides of police shootouts and heroin addicts.

Holt Mannus, who is working on starting the public access radio station, WDNA, also spoke.

SGA, Student Activities clash over relocation of offices

KATHY LINDSAY
Staff Writer

A change which may alter "the patterns of student life" in the University House this summer is now under consideration.

The change would involve the exchange of office locations of the SGA offices with Student Activities. This action was announced by Chairperson Jose Eiriz in April.

In a memorandum to Lillian Kopenhaver, coordinator of Student Activities, Eiriz stated that the Presiding Board had met and agreed by unanimous consent that the move would be in the best interest of students.

Eiriz said the main objective of relocation of SGA offices is to allow more room for the functioning of student government.

"The present SGA offices cannot handle five Presiding Board officers, one secretary, two student assistants and students who need access to our offices."

Eiriz said the Student Activities staff is smaller and that existing areas on the third floor will be adequate for the coordinator, assistant coordinator, secretaries and staff.

Another reason for the move is to allow student traffic to be more consistent. "those students interested in non-academic services will have the third floor at their disposal; those interested in student controlled programs and extra-curricular activities, will have second floor access," said Eiriz.

Eiriz stated in his mandate that office space in the UH Building is allocated by the SGA and that space in the two offices is similar. All that would be required would be for senate members to do the moving.

He also stated there would be no cost involved in the relocation; telephone changes would not take place, construction of walls would not be necessary and electrical outlets and air conditioning vents of SGA offices should be adequate for Student Activities.

Dean of Student Services Sandra Clark said she is not necessarily opposed to the move, but is withholding judgment until all of the facts are known.

Eiriz said the relocation will be completed by May 21; Clark said that July would be a closer estimate.

Clark points out that the decision to relocate was made by a Presiding Board which, at that time, had not yet been seated into office. She questions the legality of this and said that she is not sure that the Senate has been consulted in the matter.

Clark said she is opposed to the style in which the idea was presented. "The chairperson of SGA does not have the power to mandate nor does the Senate. I wish the Student Government would begin thinking of themselves as an official business department and conduct itself as any other department would."

Clark disagrees with Eiriz on major points. She maintains: (1) the cost of the Student Activities office and other offices of the Division of Student Services is carried by an administrative budget, (2) since these areas are university administrative offices, responsible to and under the control of other areas, they are not within the province of SGA to govern or move, (3) there will be cost of transferral of phones, estimated at $500.00, and (4) professional movers will be required.

Clark said the plans for the UH Building were conceived by a committee composed of students and were designed by the students for a "low-keyed, casual atmosphere away from the administrative area." Students felt that counseling offices should be private and that meeting with advisors without having to pass by the dean was important.

The left half of the third floor was given to student government where students made all decisions in constructing and purchasing of furniture. "A great deal of time and effort went into the design of the building."

Eiriz and Clark will meet Thursday to discuss the relocation.

Dispute flairs in Education over special reading course

PEARL SMITH
Staff Writer

A reading course has created a dispute between some students and faculty in the School of Education.

According to a source from the School of Education, Special Reading Teaching Lab, EDS 401, is designed to meet state requirements. However, a representative from SGA said that they checked with the Dade County School Board and was told the course is not required for teacher certification, and that it can be done "in service."

The source from the School of Education said that the "in service" program only applies to degree-holding students.

The source also said that any student registered in the undergraduate program in Secondary Education before the summer quarter of 1974 is not required to take the course. But any undergraduate student registered during or after that time must take the course as a graduation requirement.

The major complaints against

EDS 401 are that there are too many modules to complete during one quarter and that the cost of the modules is prohibitive. It was also mentioned that the course is designed in such a way that it is difficult for students to take a full course load while taking EDS 401.

Complaints from students prompted SGA Chairperson Jose Eiriz to discuss the issue with the Board of Regents in Tallahassee on May 7 & 8. Results of that conference will be reported in next week's Good Times.

Bomb dropped

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday a bomb was dropped on FIU! No, no... it wasn't the usual harassment of our Phantom Bomber, but the irresponsible, insane action of the History Department. Professor Richard Klimmer was advised that his contract will not be renewed for the 1976-77 academic year.

The reaction among students (especially in HIS 458) was disbelief, disgust and indignity. The expulsion of one of FIU's infrequent academic assets is totally incomprehensible and foolish, particularly in response to tenure requirements.

Eliminate faculty that may be incompetent, lazy or unethical, but for GAWDS SAKE and FIU's relevance to the future of South Florida don't forfeit quality on an absurd technicality! The fact that candidates will be sought to fill the resulting vacancy in the History Department makes Klimmer's elimination even more ludicrous and wasteful.

I suggest the History Department renew Professor Klimmer's contract and re-read the Student Evaluation Forms (assuming they're not in the circular file) if his credentials or competency are questioned. Present and former students have no doubts that Professor Klimmer is an excellent and stimulating instructor.

In the past, the Good Times and the SGA have made the students, staff and faculty aware of an acute shortage of state funds for higher education and of the deficiencies of library resources. I feel it is their duty to the student body to investigate and protest another severe blow to FIU's academic potential.

Members and non-members who have not volunteered but would like to help, should come at the above mentioned hours.

Thank you.

Economist Abba Lerner

'People aren't buying'

PHYLLIS FRIEDMAN
Staff Writer

"Today we have depression and inflation at the same time. The inflation is caused by a race between wages and prices. The depression is caused by too little spending. That's why there's so much advertising today. People aren't buying."

Professor Abba Lerner, economist, made the above analysis of our present economy at a lecture sponsored by the Student Economics Club Monday, May 3. He also clarified the difference between Pre-Keynesian and Keynesian Economics. "Pre-Keynesian economics doesn't speak about the economy as a whole. It tries to use microeconomic techniques to solve macroeconomic problems. Microeconomics is the study of small parts of the economy. Macroeconomics is the study of the economy as a whole."

"Keynes studied the economy as a whole. He discovered that what may be good for one segment of the economy may not be good for the economy as a whole. He thought that the cure for a depression was to increase the money stock by printing more money. If people had more money they would buy more and employment would increase to produce the demanded goods. Wages do not adjust the money, you have to adjust the money to the wages."

Lerner felt that we have not had a serious depression since World War II because we have followed Keynesian fiscal and monetary policy. We have increased government spending to increase employment. If our government tried to balance its budget, there would be a big increase in unemployment.

Crude classical theory states:

reduce prices and people will buy more. Crude Keynesian theory states: print more money and people will buy more.

The speaker then demolished the various arguments of the Post-Keynesians. This is a post-classical Marxist school.

Items not kept forever in Lost and Found

In the past, lost items were held indefinitely in Lost and Found, but a change in policy has been effected to limit saving time to a period of two academic quarters.

Lost items may be recovered in Lost and Found in UH 242, better known as the game room.

Operated by Jim Beauchamp, the Lost and Found Department, which is incorporated with Auxiliary Services, has been instrumental in preserving items ranging from jewelry to dogs.

Some of the possessions presently being held have been there for nearly two years.

Lost items may be claimed through proof of ownership. "What really grates me is when things don't get turned in," Beauchamp said.

Items currently in Lost and Found include an umbrella, keys, books, money, a metronome, a back-pack rack, and a transcript. These items and more should be picked up as soon as possible.

Five vacancies in SGA

Mass resignations after the recent SGA elections have resulted in five openings for student senators.

There are two vacancies in the School of Technology, two in the School of Health and Social Services and one in the School of Business.

Students wishing to apply for any of these seats must be nominated by a senator from their school.

SGA senators can be contacted through the SGA in VH 310. Some applications for the School of Technology and School of Business seats have been received.

There are also vacancies on most SGA committees for at-large members. Applications can be obtained at the SGA office

Legal advice not budgeted for this year

EUGENIA EDELSTEIN
Staff Writer

Legal advice is not presently among the services provided by FIU students.

The Office of Student Services confirmed that no funds have been set aside for free legal services to students, and it does not appear to be any budget. The office has been mentioned occasionally, but has never acquired enough momentum to get going.

The source, the guide to student life at FIU, makes reference to legal help in the housing section. The guide states that if a student needs legal advice regarding a rent problem, he or she is referred to Legal Services of Greater Miami. The phone number is 378-8739. Legal services are provided free of charge, but the applicants must prove that they cannot afford an attorney.

The student may also contact the Florida Lawyer Referral Service, which is maintained at public service by the Florida Bar. The number for Dade County is 278-9661. After consulting the legal problem to a secretary, the student will be referred to an attorney in the community. The fee for a half hour of advice on the first consultation will not exceed $15. Any additional service is optional and discussed in the first meeting.

Dr. Leo Brubak, associate dean of student services, agrees with the feasibility of an attorney providing money for legal counseling. "Other universities, such as the University of Florida, provide this service," he said.

Also, Wichita State University in Kansas has a legal service plan similar to a health insurance plan. A non-profit organization was organized for the purpose of providing legal services on a group basis to Kansas' citizens at a reasonable price. All students at Wichita State University are included under this plan.

Several options could be considered," said Brubak. "There are roughly three levels of legal advice a person may want: basic advice, where a letter of document must be written or examined, trial work, or court litigation."

A firm of local attorneys could take over this project, for as many hours a week as would be necessary, he explained.

Jose Eritz, the newly elected SIA chairperson, commented that an organization on the state level has been investigating a program of legal services for all state universities.

"There is no law school at FIU," said Eritz. "A law school attracts community lawyers more easily. They are willing to come to lecture and give advice, even for free. It is prestigious for a lawyer to be associated with a law school and advice is provided willingly."

Feedback from students is very important when a program of this nature is going to be considered," emphasized Eritz. "Students can paralyze change by attending the University Forum meetings, and presenting and discussing the issues."

Forum Meetings take place during the third and eighth week of each quarter. But at least 100 students must show up in order to have a quarter.

Appeals can be made concerning budgets and allocation of funds for this project at the regularly scheduled weekly meetings of the SIA Senate.

"There has never been a forum meeting," said Eritz. "Either the students feel the issues are not important enough, or the issues don't concern them."

"I would like to see legal aid provided by FIU students," Eritz said. "A comprehensive study of the students' needs would be beneficial."

'FIU will be a great school someday but it won't be overnight'

DR. CROSBY

DENISE WILCOX
Staff Writer

Florida International University will be a great school someday," according to Interim President Harold Crosby, "but it will be overnight."

Crosby assumed office after the resignation of President Charles Perry in January of 1978. Crosby, a native Floridian, was a lawyer in Pensacola before becoming involved in university administration. He was president of the University of West Florida until December of 1974. Interim means "temporary," but while he holds office, Crosby said he will "exercise his authority to the fullest."

When asked if there are any differences in the students here and those at the University of West Florida, Crosby said that one difference is the size of the community. He said that he enjoys his work immensely, but there isn't as much contact with the student body as he would like due to the large number of students now on campus.

The legislature is still in session over the question of the budget. Crosby feels that it will not be as bad as anticipated, but there will be a cutback.

The University of West Florida, another state university, is also encountering budget problems. Crosby regrets the cutback. Most students work part-time, which helps to pay for their education. This cutback could possibly slow them down to a considerable degree.

The faculty and staff are also undergoing economic stress. While prices are steady rising, salaries are at a standstill. However, Crosby feels the economy is beginning to improve.

Tourists Center gets go ahead

The Board of Governors of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce has approved steps to go ahead with the establishment of a Tourist Research Data Center at FIU.

A three month study on the feasibility of the role of such a facility was done by Dr. Jan E. Laytjes and two graduate students.

The study analyzed the tourist industry in South Florida and pointed out that there is anxiety in respect to future developments in the tourist industry.

The study called for more than $5 thousand to operate the facility and will be financed by local and state agencies.

The center will be in the School of Hotel, Food and Travel Services and will work in cooperation with the School of Business and Organizational Sciences.

Blazers selected for NCAA's

J. M. GREENBERG

The FIU Sunblazer baseball team made history this weekend when it was selected to participate in a post season, NCAA Division II South Atlantic Regional baseball tournament.

This is the first time the baseball team has been selected for post season play, and is another history making feather in the baseball teams collective hat.

The Blazers established many school records this year, including most victories (29), and also saw the first two no-hit games in FIU history pitched earlier in the season.

Head Coach Tom Wonderling is optimistic about the teams chances. "I feel our chance of being successful in the tournament are excellent. This is a great opportunity for us to show what we can do."

The tournament, in Lakelands Marchant Stadium, summer home of the Detroit Tigers, is double elimination, with the winner going on to the National Small College World Series in Springfield, Illinois.

Assistant Coach Gerry Hunsicker said, "In a small series like this, it's possible for anyone to come out and win it. You can throw away what's happening during the year. We've played three of the five teams that will be our strongest competition and there isn't anybody we can't beat.

"The key to our success will be pitching and defense. If we get a good defensive effort and get some consistent pitching, we've got a real good chance of winning."

Other teams in the tournament include host team and defending National champions Florida Southern, Columbus College (Georgia), Rollins College (Winter Park) and Eckerd College (St. Petersburg).

The Sunblazers played a two game series with Eckerd this weekend losing both games, 6-5 and 3-2. Both games were extremely close. Saturdays game was decided in the bottom of the ninth inning when, with the bases loaded, they were unable to drive in the winning or tying run. In Fridays game, the Sunblazers left 13 runners stranded on base.

Spirit undaunted by the twin loss to Eckerd, Hunsicker reiterated, "In a tournament like this you can throw out what's happened during the year. We feel we're capable of beating anybody."

Tennis team gets tourney bid

The FIU Men's Tennis Team is leaving May 17 for the NCAA Tournament in Maryville, Missouri.

Coach Bill Fleming is taking Steve Temple, Kristian Cee, Milt Eichner and Juan Merino. "We have a good chance of doing well at the tournament," Fleming commented.

The men's team is currently ranked tenth nationally, but with the upset over South Florida should pull the ranking higher.

The tennis team scored a major victory last weekend, defeating the University of South Florida tennis team for the first time in FIU history.

Combining to give the Sunblazers their victory were first through third ranked singles players Kristian Cee, Steve Temple, and Gaston Tello.

Cee and Temple combined for a doubles victory, and Tello combined with Juan Merino for another doubles victory and the 5-4 victory margin.

This victory was the last regular season match for the Sunblazers and should help the team improve on their rank as 10th in the country.

Fleming feels the team played

two bad matches against Flagler and Yale, but the team also played well against Clemson and South Florida. Fleming is happy with the team's play throughout the season.

"The entire team played as one unit and I feel badly about not taking everyone to the NCAA tournament," said Fleming.

The players selected to go to the NCAA Tournament were chosen by their records. All players going have had previous tournament play. Three of the four players are seniors.

"The courts at Maryville are much faster than the courts the players are used to, but by arriving early at the tournament, the players will be ready," Fleming said.

Fleming feels "the wind will be a big factor to a lot of the players but the FIU team is used to playing in the wind. The players are emotionally ready to play."

Kristian Cee, number one player said, "I believe credit should go to Coach Fleming. We would not have gotten this far without his help. This is the best season the team has had, and I am sorry to be leaving FIU.

Fleming helped get FIU on the national tennis scene and achieve a national ranking."

Softball has finally been recognized as an intercollegiate sport, and the women's softball team ended its season with a solid 12-11 record.

Dr. Judy Blucker, womens

head softball coach, commented, "I like being at FIU, but I'm sorry that we didn't do better this year. We only had thirteen players on the team. You really need sixteen players to have depth."

"The more players on the team, the more competition you have for each position," stated Blucker.

The team had four leading batters, Karen Clark, outfielder-turned-shortstop who hit .444 for the year, Esther Ball-Llovera, outfielder, hit .431; outfielder Cindy Calazzo's average was .402, and pitcher Allmeda Coleman hit .392.

Most of the players will be back next year. There will be a lot of good players coming to FIU out of the junior colleges, according to Blucker.

The team suffered a lot of injuries toward the end of the season. The number one pitcher, Allmeda Coleman, sprained her ankle coming into third base. Allmeda, 11-9, went three-for-three during the state tournament with two triples and one home run.

"I believe that sports are good

Sports Day is on the way. This event, scheduled for May 25, features various events which will appeal to virtually everyone.

Activities will be in the UH Forum, with the exception of the arm wrestling tournament which will be in the Rathskeller.

The deadline for signing to participate is fast approaching. Interested parties are encouraged to get on the stick and sign up. Potential entrants should call Bill Nuttall at the Intramural Department, 552-2756, or Jay Greenberg at the Good Times office, 552-2119.

Other activities scheduled for Sports Day include a soccer skills demonstration by members of the Toros, Miami's professional soccer team; a wrestling demonstration under the auspices of FIU wrestling coach Sid Huitema and a demonstration by members of the FIU Fencing Club.

Also scheduled for the day are a Karate demonstration by K. Sugimoto, fourth degree black belt holder and instructor of the FIU Karate Club, powerlifting demonstration by Mark Gonzalez and the FIU weightlifting club, and a judo demonstration by members of the FIU Judo club.

Exact times have not been set, but the activities will all be between 12:30 and 6 p.m., beginning with the arm wrestling tournament.

Special mention should be made of the FIU baseball team. Under head coach Tom Wonderling, assistant coach Gerald Hunsicker and graduate assistant Tom Hill, the team compiled an impressive 29-14 record.

This record is remarkable considering the many and varied handicaps under which the team was operating. Two of the main problems were lack of budget and even more pressing, lack of fan support.

Lack of media coverage throughout Dade County compounded the problem. The only time FIU Sunblazer baseball appeared on the tube or in area press was in conjunction with University of Miami coverage.

In other words, the Miami Herald, and other news agencies cover the Hurricanes extensively, and if they happen to be playing the Sunblazers, that constitutes our coverage. Considering FIU has been ranked nationally in the top 10 all season long, this lack of media coverage is puzzling and disappointing. The Sunblazers deserve a better deal.

for people, and prepares them for life. It gives them the experience of winning and losing," said Blucker. The athletic department gives the softball team $3,500 as a budget, and $1,500 as scholarship money.

Blucker is also the head coach for the women's volleyball team. The volleyball team won the state championship and this was the universities first state championship.
