

VP to pay Owa Ehan parking fines

BOB SHANBROM
Staff Writer

Persons who received citations for parking on the unlandscaped area adjacent to Owa Ehan between Oct. 6 and Oct. 26 can have them paid by Vice President for Administrative Affairs Ron Arrowsmith.

An Oct. 5 memo from persons working in OE requested a temporary waiver of parking regulations so that they might park in the unlandscaped area near the building. The memo was addressed to Timothy Fenlon, chief of Public Safety, with copies to Dan D'Oliveira, director of Physical Planning, and Arrowsmith. Fenlon replied with a memo saying that the OE lot would soon be expanded and that "in the interim we will attempt to be reasonable in our enforcement."

PEOPLE working in OE took the memo to mean that it was all right to park in the area in question. An untold number of citations and three weeks later, temporary parking was provided.

Fenlon said that people were interpreting the memo to their own benefit, but Arrowsmith, Fenlon's supervisor, had the following to say: "I don't know how to interpret it (Fenlon's memo). I would have thought that if I parked there without blocking traffic it would be OK."

The responsibility for designating parking needs around campus is not clear-cut. Donn Ashley, director of Physical Plant, said that he places parking markers upon request from Fenlon, D'Oliveira, or Arrowsmith.

ARROWSMITH, nevertheless, accepted responsibility for the problems saying, "You can blame it all on me. We were negligent in not responding quicker although we wanted to." He added that the contract to extend OE had been awarded and that the processing had been speeded up. Construction should begin the first week in November.

He commented that those who were cited had a right to be upset, but suggested "they pay and be done with it." He added that those who are still dissatisfied should send the citations, along with their names, to him and he would pay them personally.

SGA votes to 'postpone' meeting

Let's twist again

Got a secret desire to make a pretzel of yourself? Carlos Gonzales will show you how at a free yoga class. Come to room UH 212B, Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays at 10:30 a.m. and Thursdays at 12:30 p.m. Bring your own towel and wear loose, comfortable clothes.

Staff Writer

A lame-duck Student Government Association voted last week to "postpone" this Wednesday's SGA agenda, in effect canceling a scheduled meeting. This means that all business scheduled to be dealt with on November 2 will be delayed at least until November 9, when the next Wednesday meeting will be held.

The SGA voted, 15 to 3, to have a special orientation for incoming senators this Wednesday, during the regular meeting hours. Senators will be paid for attending a meeting, though SGA Chairman Clayton Hamilton said that no business will be discussed.

THE SGA Constitution requires that the Senate "meet once each week that the University is in session". By-laws require that the meetings be on Wednesdays, and set up the mandatory agenda. The last Wednesday of a school week in which the SGA did not meet was October 15, 1975, when the Senate failed to get a quorum.

The "postponement" of the SGA's Nov. 2 meeting prompted two proposed student organizations to start circulating petitions, demanding that the meeting be held on schedule so that they can be officially approved by the SGA. The groups, WFIU-CCTV and FIU Flying Club, were among four proposed organizations on last week's SGA agenda, but not brought to the floor due to five suspensions of the agenda. Student organizations have no official status at FIU until approved by the SGA, and thus cannot reserve room space or sponsor events.

The scheduling of the orientation was one of the non-agenda items dealt with under a suspension "of the orders of the day". Another controversial motion, which passed near the end of the meeting, was SGA Associate Chairman Evan Gonshak's proposal that the Senate transfer $4000 out of an account set up in 1973 to encourage revision of the SGA Constitution. The money from the fund established by former FIU President Charles Perry would go into the fast-disappearing SGA Program Fund.

ACTION ON the $4000 came moments before the SGA's 2 p.m. roll call, which senators must answer to receive their pay. As the senators answered the roll, SGA Consularie Andre Tapanes demanded to be recognized. Tapanes wanted to make a motion to reconsider the constitutional revision decision at a later date, after 15 newly elected senators had taken office.

As Tapanes pleaded to be recognized, Technology Associate Tom Edmunds urged those present to "walk out as soon as your name is called" so that Tapanes' could not be recognized, and could not make his motion for reconsideration. Had four senators walked out, there would have been no quorum, and the meeting would have been adjourned.

Enough senators stayed after the roll call to preserve the quorum, but SGA Chairman Hamilton ruled Tapanes' move for reconsideration out of order.

Tapanes explained why he was against the re-allocation of the $4000. "The money was set aside for the sole purpose of revising the Constitution and since it was set up by non-A&S funds we, the Senate, have no power over it," Tapanes said. Only one other senator, Bill Ashton, opposed the fund transfer.

TECHNOLOGY Associate Laura Coburn said that she supported the fund transfer. "I don't think we need a constitutional revision. The one we have works well enough. Besides, the only people that could change the Constitution are the students and I don't think the student population would turn out to vote on this," she said.

FIU still struggling financially

CRESTON NELSON
Associate News Editor

FIU is financially "just eking on through again" as the result of a 26.5 per cent increase over last year's funding that "looks good, but is not what we thought we needed."

According to FIU Budget Director Sydney Welsh, the $26.1 million Education and General (E&G) allocation to FIU is a misleading figure since some $4 million has been earmarked for the North Campus by State University System (SUS) officials.

LAST YEAR, $1.6 million of a $21 million budget supported the North Campus' one-quarter-only 200 student enrollment. In the current fiscal year, the $4 million is expected to support 850 students over four quarters.

"Basically I would consider this a break-even budget," said Welsh, noting that cost per student at North Campus has dropped from last year's $8,000 to $4,800. "We did not get an across-the-board inflation increase, although it has gone up four to five per cent for the last three years."

Although Career Service personnel received an average one-time-only salary increase of 18.9 per cent, those faculty members hired on a nine-month basis got a 7.1 per cent increase, bringing the average rate for the current year to $17,610.

FACULTY throughout the SUS had expected to receive approximately nine per cent more than last year, as the result of the first collective bargaining agreement negotiated by Board of Regents and United Faculty of Florida union representatives. The legislature, however, did not provide funding for that increase.

Instead of receiving both percentage and dollar increases, nine-month faculty received a line increase of 1.6 per cent plus $321, half of the total amount of funds available for salary increases. The other portion went toward merit promotions and adjustments for sex-related and other inequities.

President Harold Crosby said that, while he senses dissatisfaction among faculty, "I'm disappointed too."

"A VERY large per cent of our total budget goes into salaries because we are in the people business," Crosby said. "We needed to have salaries increased across the board quite significantly, and we really didn't get as much as we felt was desirable and necessary."

According to Crosby, most of the increase was used to fund already existing positions. "We received almost no additional positions and that's very limiting," he said. "So many bodies can do only so much work."

Adding to FIU's monetary woes is a legislative mandate that institutions receiving state funds hold two per cent of their allocations in reserve. Although no shortfall in revenue is anticipated this year, FIU could be forced to return to the state as much as $500,000. Last year, $450,000 was returned.

WHILE the FIU library received a special allocation of $817,981, legislators funded only two of more than 15 programs proposed for the university.

In Brief

Scientific boo-boos topic of lecture

Those sceptical about the infallibility of scientists will be happy to note a lecture entitled "Great Mistakes in Science" slated for Monday, Nov. 7, at 8:30 p.m. in UH 213E. Spectacular errors, notable deadends and mess-ups in general will be discussed.

The lecture will be presented by Professor Foil Miller of the University of Pittsburgh and is sponsored by the FIU Department of Physical Sciences and the American Chemical Society. In keeping with the spirit, the talk will be relatively non-technical.

Pre-med lecture

Pre-med students, cure thy angst. Dr. Donald Buckner, associate professor at UM Medical School will speak about, "The What and the How of Medical School — How to Get in and What It's Like" on Monday, Nov. 7, at 12:30 p.m. in UH 150. The talk is sponsored by the Pre-Med Evaluation and Advisory Committee. Refreshments and an organizational meeting of the Pre-Med Society will follow. The meeting is considered a must for all pre-med students.

Sisterhood on the move

A&P and Faculty women interested in forming an organization to speak to the concerns of those women will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 2, at 4 p.m. in the Presidential Suite. Spearheaded by Francena Thomas, Director of the Office of Minority Concerns and Women's Affairs, Patricia Letterbie, Associate Executive Vice President, and Mary Volcansek, Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences, the group is a direct result of the two continuing group sessions held with President Harold Crosby in May and August. Any A&P or faculty women are invited to the meeting. For further information, contact the OMAWC at 552-2785.

Multi-lingual volunteers needed

Dade County Schools are looking for volunteers who speak Persian, Korean, Czech, Hindi, Swedish, Rumanian and Tamil to assist limited English-speaking children. This is an opportunity to share language skills and to better understand the school's bilingual programs. Interested and qualified persons should contact Mrs. Liskoff, Department of Foreign Languages, Dade County Schools, 350-3301.

Reader's Theater presents comedy sketches

Pack a lunch and join students, faculty and staff on the patio of FIU's North Miami Campus on Nov. 2 for a Reader's Theater presentation.

Scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. and conclude by 1:30 p.m. The performance will include comedy sketches enacted by the Oral Interpretation class on the NMC.

Mailroom change

Effective Oct. 26, the mailroom will be located in Building W10, ext. 2644.

Say Cheese

Students wishing to have their faces preserved forever in the Elan yearbook can make appointments in the Student Activity office, UH 211. Photographs will be taken November 7-18. Student organizations can also set up appointments. No faculty groups, please.

Journalism Day: Seminars, contests, local media stars

LAURA COBURN
Staff Writer

Grab your pens and notepads and come to the South Florida Journalism Day at Florida International University. The event is free of charge and will be Saturday, Nov. 5, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sponsored by the FIU Mass Communications Club, Journalism Day includes seminars on many aspects of the news media by noted Miami media experts. Last year over 400 people attended. "This year," organizer Linda Rodriguez, president of the Mass Communications Club, predicts, "we're expecting 500 and up!"

REGISTRATION begins at 9 a.m. on the first floor of the University House. The keynote address will be given by Jeanne Wolf of Channel 2, at 9:30 a.m. in AT 100 across from FIU's library. The seminars begin at 10:30 a.m. and continue through 2:15 p.m. breaking only for a 45-minute free lunch at 11:30 a.m.

Writing contests will be held during the day. At 2:30 p.m. FIU Executive Vice-President Dr. Joseph Olander will present awards to the winners.

Seminar topics include "how-to" lectures such as "Column Writing" by John Keasler of the Miami News, "Covering Sports" by Lee Arthur of Channel 4, and "Career Opportunities" by Otis Wragg of the Miami News and Steve Daily of WINZ Radio. "Neighbors: A New Approach to Newspapers" by Dave Nelson of the Miami Herald, and "News Coverage" by Heath Merriweather of the Herald and John Hopkins of the Associated Press will also be among the subjects discussed.

MORNING session seminars include:

"Minorities in the Media," "Using Graphics in Your Publication," "TV News Photography," "Editorials That Communicate" and "Yearbook Copy Made Effective," "Column Writing," and "News Coverage."

The first afternoon session at 12:15 p.m. includes "Planning Effective Makeup," "Interviewing Techniques," "Reviewing," "Radio and TV News," "Newspaper Photography," "Reporting and Writing the News" and "Covering Sports."

Science Fiction Writing," "Advertising," "Investigative Reporting," "Yearbooks," "Career Opportunities" and "Neighbors: A New Approach to Newspapers" will be in the final session which begins at 1:15 p.m.

More information on Journalism Day can be obtained by calling the Student Development Office at 552-2423.

Halloween bash features flasher

A flasher, a female Mozart, Leonardo Di Vinci and a punk rock star were among the guests at the SGA Halloween Party held Friday, Oct. 28. The freak-out attracted more than 500 people in all manner of garb, including a monster with a seven-foot boa constrictor.

But the highlight of the evening was the costume contest in which approximately 100 revelers vied for the $50 prize. First prize was awarded to "The Flasher," who assumed his role with enthusiasm. Second place went to "The Boob Man", and third place was won by "Raggedy Ann and Andy". Twin bees won the Most Creative Costuming Award, given by the Student Art Association.

Music was provided by Heroes, a local rock band. The sight of 500 wierdos dancing was reminiscent of any Friday night on Bourbon Street.

The party was sponsored by the Student Government Association, with the major coordination by Martha Gasset, SGA comptroller and Cheryl Altany-Straus, North Miami Campus Student Activities coordinator. Beer, hot dogs, and tacos were provided by SGA at a nominal price.

Halloween is blowin' on the wind, and so is a witch and her broom (Valetina Lopez), with her black cat (Nora Ferrer). They are both library staff, who got in costume and had a small parade on campus.

Students do care

Students read paper

This is the second in our series of on-the-spot interviews with FIU students. Each week, The International will print some of your opinions on current events, problems, and institutions. This week's topic is The International itself. Any comments or suggestions for this feature should be sent to "Students Do Care", care of The International. Please sign your name.

CAROL LINDENBERG
Reporter-at-Large

Do you read the International newspaper? What do you think about the format of the newspaper? Do you have any suggestions for change?

CECILIA STEPHENS-Education
"I read the paper occasionally. I feel it's pretty good and fairly interesting. It does cover a lot of things. I am impressed with the story coverage. I am associated with the basketball team (women's), and when we notified the paper about the new women's coach, the paper did a story immediately. The paper has most of the basic elements, perhaps more announcements for students so they can have a more viable avenue for student information."

VIJA HELM-Education

"I read the paper off and on. I think the paper is a necessity for the school. We have to have some place to go for information on what's happening around the campus. I do have one criticism. The photographs tend to be incorrect a lot of the time. They are not very good. Besides that, I have no other suggestions to make."

DAVID SMITH-Business

"Yes, I read the newspaper. I think the newspaper could be more informative. It should deal with more important issues to the students. There should be less faculty and more student stories to meet our needs. I read the newspaper because it's the only source of information around. There should be less SGA news unless it benefits the students. Also, more athletics. I don't think the paper is involved in this as much as it could be."

MOHAMMAD SOLTANI-Business

"Yes, I read the newspaper. I believe the content of the newspaper is almost nothing. It ignores the problems of the world. The issues of the world are very important to all of us and we should read something about them. They are discussed in other college newspapers. Why not ours? The paper is very bland; it's more like a high school paper. If there is a way to get the students more involved in the issues, maybe they would respond to the paper more than they do."

JIMMY POMERANCE-Liberal Arts

"Yes, I read the International. I enjoy it. It's better than the Sun Reporter, but then everything is. I can't give an opinion on changes I would like to see because I just pick up the paper to read it and don't think in terms of what I'd like to see or not like to see. I just enjoy it at the moment I'm reading it."

Sweetwater U.?

Is there a new name in FIU's future?

That pesky rumor just won't go away. Despite announcements from high officials in the Florida International University administration, everyone is talking about an impending name-change for FIU.

FIU President Harold B. Crosby issued his fourteenth memo on the subject Monday. He said: "The reorganization of FIU does not extend to the name. Florida International University is here to stay. Besides, what would we do with all of those parking decals with 'FIU' printed on them?"

CROSBY'S STATEMENT was ignored by the Sweetwater City Council, which this week endorsed the proposal to change FIU's name to the University of Sweetwater. Sweetwater Mayor Fred Ziffel said that the idea makes sense. At a recent press conference, Ziffel was quoted as saying, "Look at the University of Miami. It's smack dab in Coral Gables. Then look at FIU, just a stone's throw from Sweetwater. I don't know why I didn't think of this sooner." Ziffel, 52, is running for re-election next month.

Perhaps the leading proponent of a name-change for FIU is former FIU SGA Comptroller George Backet, who feels

by Bill Ashton

that the present name is a misnomer. "Contrary to popular belief, there are only 26 international students at FIU. Each is encouraged, through financial aid inducements, to register under as many different names as possible, as are American residents. The records have an international look, and the enrollment looks higher, so the University receives more federal funds.

BACKET ADMITTED that he had been a part of the scheme, registering under such names as "Omar Muhammed", "Quang Chi Caine" and "Ben Kenobi". "I wanted to help foster a feeling of worldwide cooperation", Backet said.

Backet said that the University of Sweetwater proposal sounds good. "After all, there are a lot of FIU students living in Sweetwater. They buy a lot of booze at Jimmy's. The town and the University go together like fish and chips." Backet, 24, has announced his candidacy for Florida House district 103, which includes Sweetwater.

A reliable source on the staff of the Florida Board of Regents says that the BOR can go along with an FIU name-change. It seems that the BOR lost interest in the international aspect of FIU after plans to make the Panama Canal a branch campus fell through. The Canal project was shelved after FIU SGA Chairman Clayton Hamilton's "one PC building is enough" letter was made public.

FIU Athletic Director Tom Wonderling has gone on record against any name change. "We have quite a reputation as the FIU Sunblazers", he said, "and we have people from all over the world on our teams— as far away as Havana."

Wonderling was particularly annoyed by reports that FIU athletic teams' nickname would also undergo a change. Some have suggested that the Sunblazers be renamed the Ducks, in honor of FIU's native waterfowl. Wonderling said that "this business about the Ducks is ridiculous. I mean, really... the Ducks? Sunblazers was bad enough."

Bill Ashton, News Editor of the International, thinks this stuff is funny and plans to do an "Inspirational Message" every week. Ha ha.

SGA drags feet in approving student clubs

To the Editor:

It has come to the attention of a number of FIU students that the SGA has once again proceeded to push to the bottom of the agenda the resolutions to permit four student groups to become organizations.

WFIU-CCTV has been in the "organizational process" since June. It is now the beginning of November, and it is still a "student interest group." Not an organization as desired, because the SGA continues to put off a decision.

The same type of circumstances apply to the Flying Club, the International Business Club and the Pakistan Students Association.

APPARENTLY, so-called new business on the agenda is not important to certain members of the SGA.

As an aside, we wish to state it is our feeling that the SGA is invoking upon itself a multitude of harm and distaste — more than it is probably aware of. And, in doing so, an atmosphere full of contention is created; because the students don't care to tolerate anymore of this type of avoidance.

It has been noted that these four groups will have to wait another two weeks before a regular Senate meeting is to be held, thus delaying the organizations' approvals. Is this justice and a democratic system?

A PETITION has been designed, and is being circulated throughout the campus calling for a Senate meeting to be held Wednesday, November 2, instead of the scheduled parliamentary meeting.

The support of the student body is being requested, to make the SGA aware that we're tired of putting up with the run-around, and to emphasize that if something constructive isn't done on the behalf of the students, then our fight has only just begun.

Richard B. Romano

New senator thanks voters

To the Editor:

It is a great honor to have been elected senator for the Business School. I wish to express my appreciation to all of those who participated in the elections, especially those people who helped elect me. Those who ran for office and failed to get elected need not think of the campaign as a total loss, but as a gainful educational experience.

My only promise to the student body is that I will represent your interests to the best of my ability.

Sylvester Stallone 'Rocky' returns to Miami

GINGER DAVIS
Entertainment Editor

It's always a great feeling to discover that legends (or superstars-in this case the words are synonymous) can be real, down-to-earth people. I was fortunate enough to learn this fact on my own when I attended a press conference at the Fountainbleau Hotel, and had the pleasure of meeting Sylvester "Rocky" Stallone.

Honored as Male Actor of the Year by the National Association of Theater Owners (NATO) during their annual convention held this year on Miami Beach. The 31-year-old Stallone was in Miami for the finale of the convention — the awards banquet.

The only disappointment of the afternoon was when the press received word that Stallone had been delayed in traffic, thus explaining his 40-minute-late arrival, and the press conference would have to be kept very brief.

Arriving to a full, standing ovation, Stallone explained that he had decided it might be fun, since in Miami, to visit his old alma mater—the University of Miami. In attendance at the U. of M. in 1969, he left three credits short of a degree in Drama. This explained his tardiness.

Following his vivid and humorous description of his stroll down memory lane where he said he majored in "spear carrying and scenery painting," Stallone answered questions pertaining to his newest film, "F.I.S.T."

THEN asked if he could relate as well to the character he plays in "F.I.S.T. versus that of Rocky," Stallone replied, "There's really no comparison. Rocky, I could relate to; he'd struggled his way upward as an unknown. The union chief I play in "F.I.S.T.," although there are similarities, is not the same. And I think audiences will feel the same way."

A ring worn on his right hand, was an attention-getter. Given to him during the filming of "The Lords of Flatbush" in which he had a small part, he smiled, "The trademarks for the time were greased-back-hair, leather jackets and knuckle-busting rings. So, a friend gave this to me to sort of commemorate the movie." (The time era for "The Lords of Flatbush" was the 1950's.)

Sylvester Stallone and Burgess Meredith in Oscar-winner "Rocky."

A modest, down-to-earth sort of person, Stallone didn't communicate snobbery or obnoxiousness over his newly-found fame and fortune. "This has afforded me the opportunity to live in a nice home and provide nice things for my family," was his reaction to questions in that vein.

THE DESIRE to be an actor has been an ever-present emotion for Stallone, although he replied jokingly, that he'd thought about becoming an electrician or a garbageman. He continued by stating he had definitely wanted to act for as long as he could remember.

A tentative title for his "Rocky" sequel, "The Dissention of Rocky," has been kicking around in his mind, according to Stallone. "I hate numbers — Rocky I, Rocky II, Rocky X," he quipped. "I like decent titles. Besides, it's a continuation of "Rocky" but it's a different movie."

Jaqueline Stallone, mother of the latest box-office record-breaker, was also present for the conference and awards presentation — an air of pride surrounding her. A former beauty consultant, she is a resident of South Florida.

AS FOR the future of Sylvester Stallone, he says he would like to finish "F.I.S.T.," expected to be released next summer, make the sequel to "Rocky," and make a few more movies afterwards — subjects unknown at this time. He wouldn't mind making another movie with Henry Winkler "if the offer is right," (they worked together on "The Lords of Flatbush") and do some more writing.

Not wishing to wear out his silver screen welcome, he figures after that he'll probably ease off for awhile. "After all, I want to be here in 10 years," he remarked. "We'll be here, if you are," I replied. It was a pleasure meeting you, Sly!

Soprano to perform classical selections

On November 3 at 8 p.m., soprano Virginia Alonso will be giving a concert recital in the Athenaeum Auditorium, AT 100. Alonso is the first recipient of the Helen Elizabeth Baker Memorial Award. The award, consisting of $750 for one year of study, is given to outstanding music students.

Alonso, an adjunct professor of voice at Miami-Dade Community College, North Campus, is currently studying for her bachelors degree in Music at Florida International University. This will be her first recital at FIU. The music performed will include compositions by Bach, Strauss and Wolf, as well as selected Spanish songs.

Winkler plays non-Fonz role

GINGER DAVIS
Entertainment Editor

It's sure nice to know that there are still some producers around who care about making a film that can evoke human emotions and touch the audiences' heart. Especially when you consider the amount of drivel released in recent months (years?).

In a moving, emotionally-charged portrayal, Henry Winkler delivers his first major movie role as that of a Vietnam veteran in the upcoming release, "Heroes".

SCHEDULED to open in South Florida theaters Nov. 4, Winkler is Jack Dunn, a disillusioned veteran trying desperately to replace the pieces of his life that have so dramatically changed since his tour of duty in Vietnam.

After a scuffle with an Army recruiting officer, at which time he is returned to the Veteran's Hospital, he runs away, hops a bus and heads west in pursuit of a better life — as a worm farmer — and the security of his Army buddies' friendship.

On the road to Eureka, California, he meets Carol Bell (beautifully enacted by Sally Fields). Although their relationship begins in a very shaky manner, a gradual closeness between the two evolves.

AS THE film continues, the audience is witness to the development of two conceivable, believable characters. And as each stop along the way to California is made, Jack Dunn's jigsaw puzzle of life begins to fall more dramatically and realistically into place. He finds that reality is not always easy.

Many people today are of the thought that the war is over so why make a movie about a Vietnam veteran. The story line has been over-used. It may be true that the physical combat has ended, but the effects of the war lingers on in the minds and hearts of those who fought, unnoticed by millions.

Lady golfers win tourney over USF, UM

MARILYN MARTYNIAK
Staff Writer

Showing tremendous skill in their second tournament of the season, FIU's womens's golf team this year is one of the strongest on the country.

Host to seven teams of both large and small college divisions, the Sunblazers last week captured the Pat Bradley Invitational Golf Tournament. Bradley is a former FIU standout collegiate player now playing on the Ladies Professional Golf Tour.

Fifty holes of medal play at Hollywood Lakes west course became the victory site for the Sunblazers. Their team total of 895, gave them a 30-stroke win over second place team University of South Florida. The University of Miami took third third place in the large college division at 944.

The individual title went to FIU's senior Becky Pearson of North Branch, Minn. Pearson shot a four-under-par three-day total of 215. Second place in the large college division went to teammate Mart Ann Duggan who finished at 222.

"JOB INTERVIEWING TECHNIQUES"

UH 213E REFRESHMENTS 5-6:15 p.m.

Presented by: CAREER DEVELOPMENT AND PLACEMENT

Get a head start on the rest of the school with a career in management at Red Lobster®

Red Lobster Inns of America is the largest full-service seafood chain in the nation. You may qualify for a position in Red Lobster's Management Internship Program (M.I.P.) if you are a college senior majoring in Hotel, Food & Travel Services.

After college graduation and completion of the on-the-job training, you will undertake a short period of intensive post-graduate instruction at our Corporate Headquarters in Orlando, Florida.

Eligibility-

You must be in a good academic standing. Be within three to eight months of graduation, and have demonstrated the ability and enthusiasm necessary for success in a food service management career.

You will then be promoted to Assistant Manager and assume responsibilities of managing one of our Red Lobster Inns.

Red Lobster Representatives will visit your campus the week of November 6. If you are sincerely interested in a headstart on your career, you are encouraged to sign up for an interview as soon as possible.

Compensation

You will be compensated for all M.I.P. hours.

Program-

You will undergo on-the-job training at a Red Lobster within easy commuting distance of your campus on a part-time basis during your final months in school.

Your Restaurant Management Career with Burger King...

Burger King needs more management oriented people now. There are immediate openings in our management training program in the Tampa area.

Our training program is designed to help you advance as rapidly as possible. Using your college work as a base, we'll teach you the applications of modern management principles in restaurant management: cost and budget control, personnel management, purchasing, food preparation and quality control. You also have the opportunity to practice basic management techniques on the job. After an intensive orientation period, you will be advanced to Assistant Manager for the balance of your training.

could Start Right Here!

Talk with us during our campus visit. You'll find the benefits and income potential are more than competitive in the management field. Although our primary interest is in graduates from the school of management, we will be happy to talk with graduates in other areas who have an interest in management.
