JOE BROADUS

For Glenn Goerke more than the lights went out Monday. Goerke's 14-year career with the State University System encountered an apparent dead end.

For Goerke Monday met with FIU President Harold B. Crosby who explained that Goerke's post as vice president for community affairs was being abolished as part of President Crosby's proposed reorganization of the university.

Goerke, as a member of the university's executive council, had worked along with Crosby and other university officials drafting proposals and making suggestions for university reorganization. Monday, however, the first time it was explained to Goerke that his job was going.

In an interview with the International, Goerke explained that "I was informed by the president in the morning. It was the first time the future of my post was specifically addressed."

"It was my understanding that I won't have a role," he said. Goerke said the plan would probably be presented to the Board of Regents June 13 meeting.

He expects to conclude his work at the university July 1. In the meantime Goerke promises to do his best to avoid conducting himself like a lame duck.

"At this point it's so new I haven't had time to sit back and reflect on it. I haven't grasped with it yet," he said.

Goerke came to FIU seven years ago, and had previously worked on the Board of Regents staff for seven years.

University reorganization in works

JOE BROADUS
Editor

In a limited circulation memo, FIU President Harold Crosby has outlined a major reorganization plan for the university.

President Crosby has given university executive council members until May 30 to reply to the reorganizational proposal, with the plan expected to be presented to the Board of Regents for approval in June.

If approved, and speedy approval is expected, the plan will go into effect on July 1.

The plan creates a new super vice president's post by creating the office of executive vice president of the university, and abolishes the Office of Community Affairs, in its two most dramatic aspects.

A stunned Glenn Goerke, the current vice president for community affairs, said the proposal will end his 14-year association with the university system. He was unaware of its impact on the staff of his department.

President Crosby, in an April memorandum to the university community, had explained that reorganization was needed if FIU was "to sustain its growth," and he urged the university community "to accept change in order to achieve academic excellence."

In Monday's memorandum, President Crosby admitted he was aware the proposal would make some "insecure," but he asserted that the plan would proceed "with concern for the well-being of persons affected and in compliance with the stipulations of the collective bargaining agreement."

The major proposals of the plan are:

1) To ensure the President's direct attention to the university's interaction with the community, the Office of Alumni Affairs and Development, the Office of University Relations, and the Office of Governmental and Legislative Relations will report to the office of the president.

2) The creation of an executive vice president, who will supervise, on one hand, Institutional Research and, on the other hand, the International Affairs Center and FIU's participation in the Joint Center for Environmental and Urban Problems and in the Southwest Florida Educational Consortium. The other vice presidents and the North Miami Provost will report to the executive vice president.

3) Creation of a vice president for student affairs to supervise the office of the registrar, the office of student services, and the office of intercollegiate athletics.

4) The vice president for academic affairs will gain supervision of university wide institutes, and the Office of University Outreach and Service, a division of library and media services will be established under his office.

5) The drinking water quality research center and the future Engineering Consortium will be developed under the responsibility of the North Miami Provost.

6) The functions now performed by the Office of Community Affairs will thus be reassigned to other offices of the university, and the office of community affairs will be abolished.

President Crosby said that no cost estimates for the changes could be presented until the final draft proposal is prepared for the regents.

Crosby said approval of the plan will require new interim appointments. Permanent appointments will be possible only after the required search and screen process and other forms of consultation and evaluation.

A search and screen is now underway for the North Miami Provost and the academic vice president.

Crosby appeared before the career service senate Tuesday to explain the plan.

Dr. Ricardo Arias is expected to address the council of deans on the proposal today, while William Younkin will outline the proposal to the A and P senate.

SGA Chairman Clayton Hamilton said he would present the proposal to the SGA senate at its next regular meeting, Wednesday, May 25.

Hamilton has invited student comment on the plan.

Forum meeting set

BUTTON GWINNET
Staff Writer

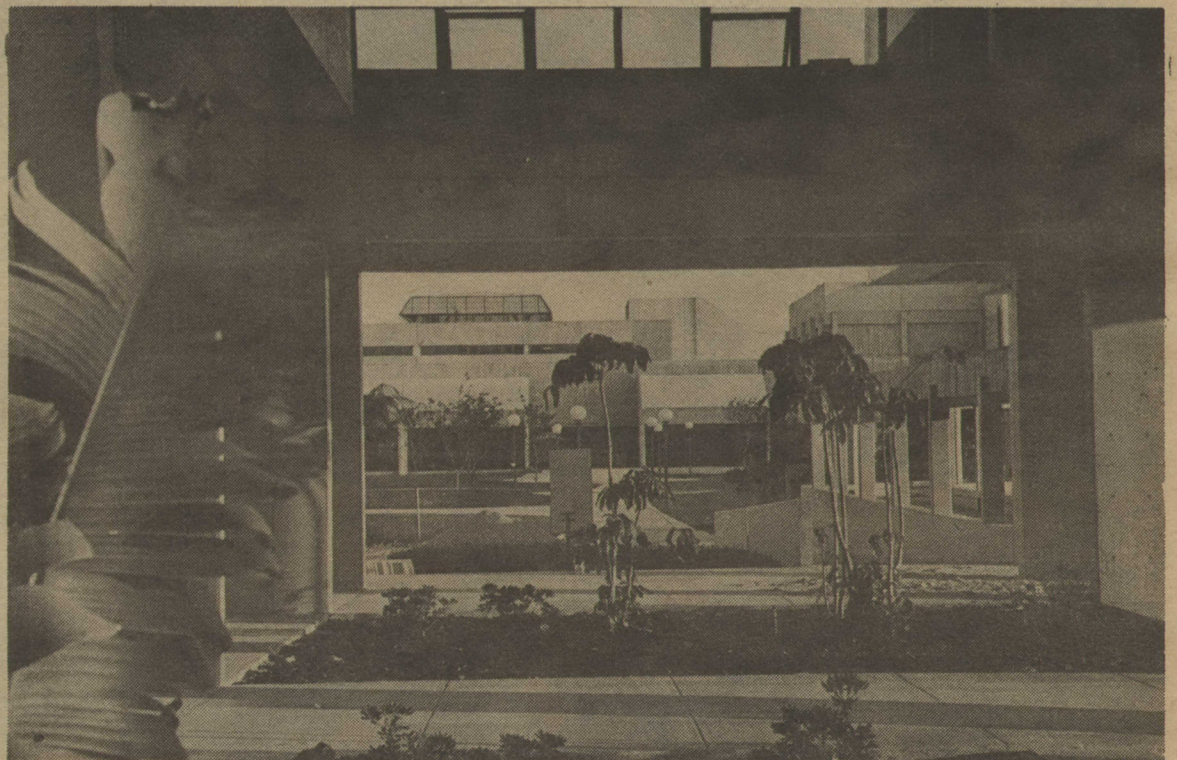

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. And offer free food. That seems to be the spirit of the Student Government Association as they try, once again, to hold a Forum meeting. The meeting is set for Thursday, May 26, at 12:30 p.m.

The Forum meeting, intended to promote direct student participation in their government, is mandated by the SGA constitution. The constitution says that every student has one vote at Forum meetings, and that each student has the same privileges as SGA members.

One hundred students are needed for an official Forum meeting, so the SGA is sparing no expense to lure interested students. Free refreshments will be given to any student, with a valid FIU ID card, who signs the attendance sheet and participates in the meeting.

This Forum meeting is especially significant because the group may deal with the Activity Services (A and S) budget, one of the most important issues the student government will tackle this year. The A and S budget includes, besides SGA expenses, allocations for FIU's health clinic, athletic department, student publications, counseling, and the library. Every FIU student pays $2.14 per credit hour into the A and S fund, to be lawfully spent for student needs.

Student art show set

The Fine Arts Department will present its first non-juried Student Art Exhibition in the newly constructed FIU Art Gallery for a three week show beginning Friday, May 20 at 8 p.m.

Sponsored in conjunction with the Student Art Association and Student Government, the show will feature the works of over 75 students including painting, sculpture, photography, drawing, jewelry, and mixed media.

The decision to have a non-juried exhibition was met with some controversy since a sizable faction felt the standards, qualifications and feasibility of a juried show would be more desirable.

However, much debate and a SAA vote determined the show's non-juried status - thus allowing any student who has taken an art course in the last year to exhibit any one piece in the show. Severe lack of time and funds for adequate planning have contributed to frustration of the demands such an exhibition proposes, but earnest efforts of students and faculty involved will hopefully insure a successful conclusion.

A pre-opening "Pot Luck Discussion" session from 5:30-7:30 p.m. is also planned on the same date in the same place. Exhibiting artists and individuals intimate with the show's development will be present for discussion of their work. Both events are open to the public and the Student Art Association cordially invites everyone to attend.

Computer Center chief killed in car crash

Robert E. Randall, director of FIU's Computer Services was killed in an auto accident Monday evening on the Palmetto Expressway.

Randall came to FIU in March 1976. He was a retired air force major who worked his way up through the ranks after enlisting in the army air corps in 1948.

After leaving the service, Randall was active in banking mostly in systems and data processing. He came to FIU from the Executive Manning Corporation, and had previously worked as vice president for the Southeast Banking Corp.

Randall was a 1963 graduate of the University of Nebraska with a degree in military science, who had studied advanced management at George Washington University. Currently, he was enrolled as a graduate student at FIU.

Funeral services will be at Panciera Memorial Home, 4200 Hollywood Blvd., Friday, at 1 p.m. Repose is scheduled for today from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., with prayer services from 7 to 9 p.m.

He is survived by a wife and two sons.

Exceptional children meeting set for FIU Saturday

The South Florida Regional Student Council for Exceptional Children Conference and Materials Fair will be held Saturday, May 21, in the UH building.

This conference, which is hosted by FIU's chapter of the Student Council for Exceptional Children, will begin at 9 a.m. in UH 140 and move throughout the day within the UH building. Lunch will be served at the Rathskeller and the conference will come to a close at 5 p.m.

Keynote speakers include Dr. Landis Stetler, Bureau Chief of Special Education for the State of Florida, and various other speakers from the community.

The conference will include workshops, exhibits, instructional material displays and an all day film theatre. According to the president of the Student Council for Exceptional Children, Jack Bluni, "This conference will provide valuable information to professionals, students and interested persons."

There is no registration fee for the conference. For further information call the Psycho-ed Department at 552-2551.

Regents approve library funds

BILL LINCOLN
Contributor

At the May 2 meeting of the Florida Board of Regents, Chancellor E.T. York made public a proposal to fund a major "library improvement" program to improve the quality of the nine State University System (SUS) libraries. It was promptly endorsed by the full Board.

In making public the proposal, which has been under discussion for some time and which creates a five-year, $10 million-a-year program to utilize gross utility receipt tax dollars, Dr. York noted that the SUS libraries fare poorly on almost every scale in national comparisons.

For example, he indicated that the University of Illinois alone has more volumes than all of the nine Florida state university libraries combined.

Harvard University's library has the greatest number of volumes in the nation with 9,383,255 on hand. The University of Florida ranks 34th in national comparison with 1,807,242 volumes, the most of any university in Florida's SUS.

Presently ranked eighth of the SUS libraries, FIU retains 251,723 volumes in its library, a figure that could double or triple with the implementation of the multi-million dollar program.

Blackout Monday drove classes into the sunshine and fresh air as students awaited repairs of the massive power failure.

RUSTY SEVIGNY
Staff Writer

At 10:28 Monday the lights went out all over South Florida. What happens at a large institution like FIU when there is a power failure?

Rumors covered the campus about the cause and extent of the blackout. Students in University House speculated on whether environmentalists had sabotaged our main source of energy, or whether perhaps we had finally just run out of electricity. "They've been telling us it would happen," one student said. "I guess the time is now."

Classes moved outdoors, or were cancelled. Groups of people were seen sitting on the grass talking to each other.

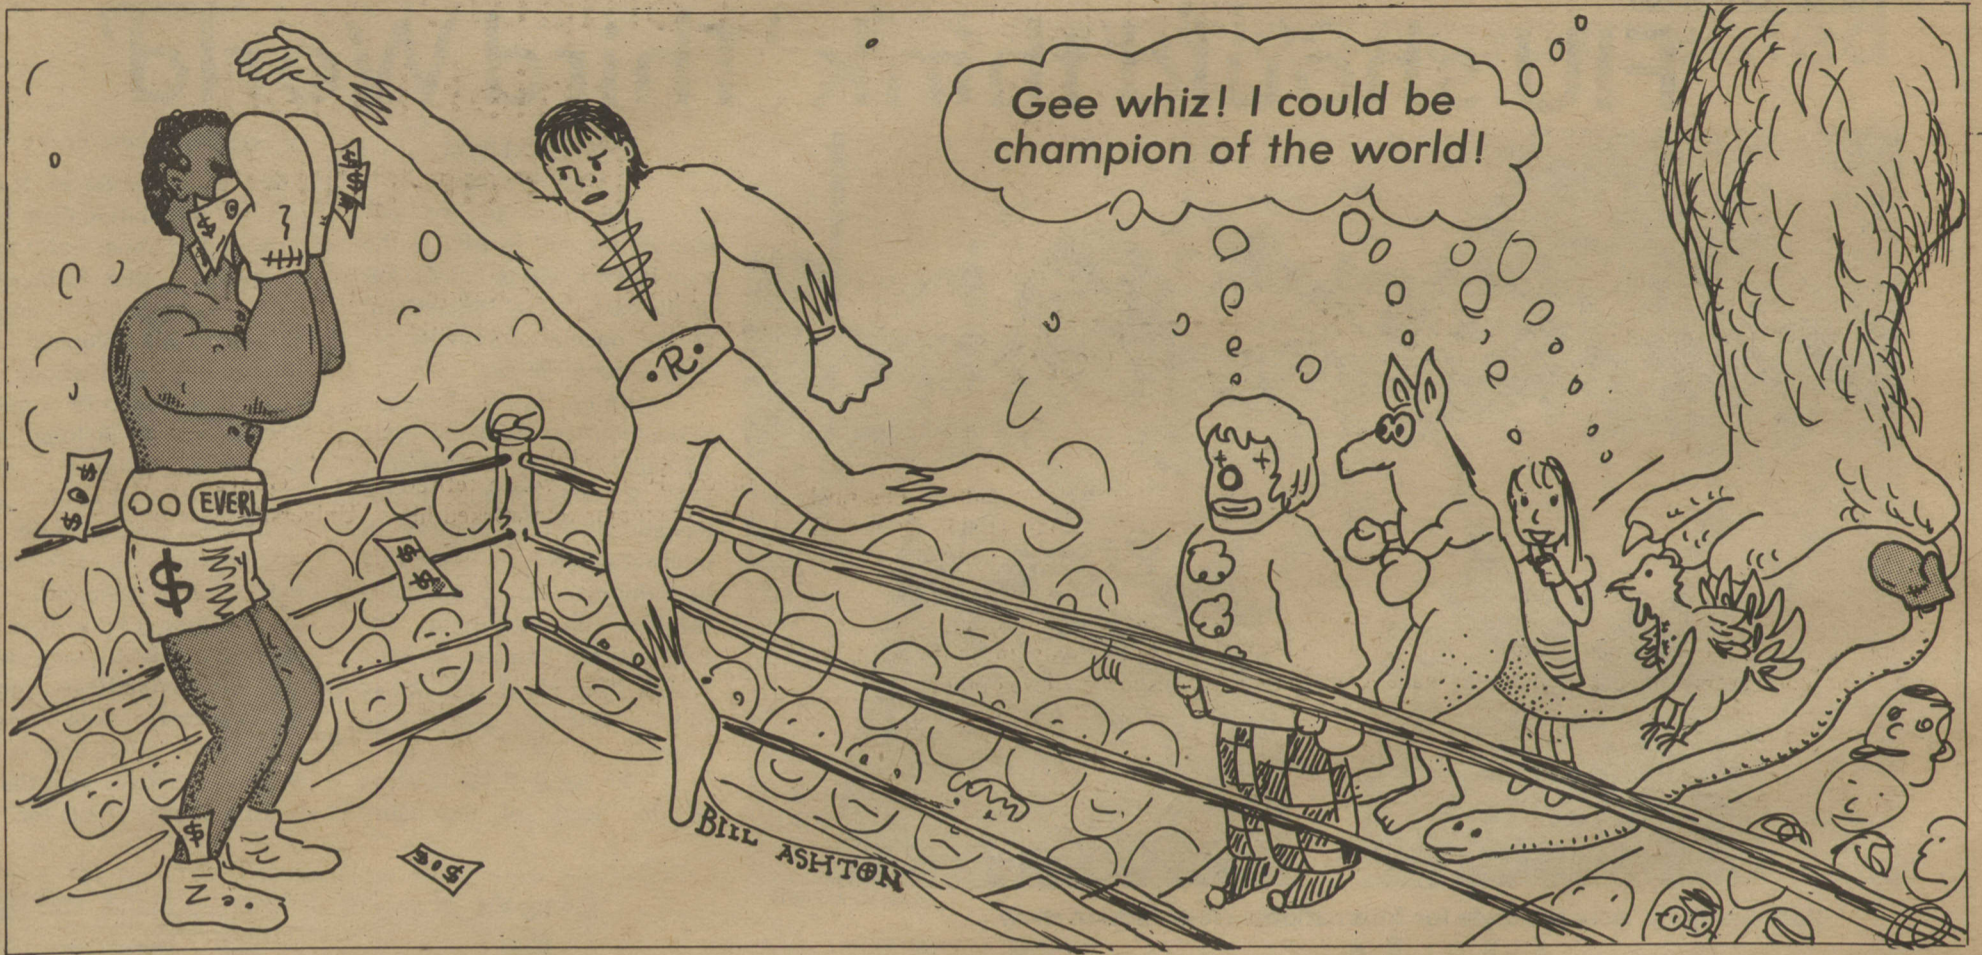

In the cafeteria, hot food quickly became lukewarm, and the cold drinks warm, with no ice available. Word that the Health Department had advised against drinking water sent many into the Rathskeller for cool beer.

Cash registers were not idle as students freed from classes began pouring into the bookstore and cafeteria. In the bookstore the registers were being cranked by hand, while those in the cafeteria seemed to operate just fine on battery power.

Lack of electricity didn't stop the festivities of International Week from getting underway, as auxiliary electrical power was set up to conduct the speaker system.

The lights came on at 1:30 to the applause of students gathered in the forum watching the International Fashion Show. Within a few minutes students were once again taking for granted the major source of energy upon which we so heavily depend.

Gay

Dear Editor:

In the May 12 issue you again came out in favor of repealing Dade County's "Gay Rights" ordinance. You ended by commenting that the government should be gotten "out of our bedrooms and back in the sewers."

I agree, but the government refuses to get out of the bedroom. Last week, for example, the State Senate forbade homosexuals from adopting children. Here a group of often intelligent, talented and well-meaning people were cut off from one of society's prerogatives just because of what they do in the bedroom. If that is not discrimination, I don't know what is.

Society offers countless cases of discrimination against gays. Governor Askew said he would not hire a known homosexual, thus cutting off some potentially valuable aides. Public Service Commission aide Jim Curasi was forced to resign his post because he refused to lead two lives (that is, he admitted he was gay). Sgt. Leonard Matlovich was expelled from the Air Force for the same reason, as well as all others in the Armed Forces. David Kopay, with otherwise excellent qualifications, can't get a job as a football coach for being gay. Gays are kept out of the military, of many government positions, the clergy, the schools, and the higher posts in business. Even the suspicion of homosexuality can lead to dismissal from a job.

The faculty of Florida International University has endorsed the ordinance. So did the American Jewish Committee, the Democratic Party and the North Dade Episcopal clergy. Apparently they have more regard for human rights than certain editors.

Perle before ... ?

To the Editor:

On Wednesday, May 11, I attended the weekly meeting of the SGA, seeking the appointment of the School of Technology Senate seat that was vacated the week before.

When I was nominated by Bill Ashton, School of Technology, I was asked to say a few words. I told the SGA that I would like to be the voice of the communications students, being those of electronic and print media.

Immediately, hands were raised so they could ask me questions. I recognized one gentleman and he asked, "Are you, or were you ever associated with the school newspaper?" I replied that last year I took one course (required) in news writing. A few of the senators exchanged snickers upon my answer. Another senator asked if I was going to keep the "tradition" of the newspaper, implying that the newspaper was anti-SGA. I replied that if the newspaper was correct on an issue, then I would back it 100%, and if it was wrong, then I would do everything in my power to expose it.

Carlos Romero then stood up and asked, "What are your views on the ERA and Human Rights amendments?" I declined to answer this since it had nothing to do with my being a senator in the School of Technology. Romero then replied that "I will have to vote against you if you do not answer this question." I always wondered what kind of intelligence ran our school government, and after hearing Romero's question I realize there isn't much intelligence. I feel that Romero was abusing my human rights by asking this question. Bill Edmonds, School of Technology, who beat me in the runoff election, asked Romero, "When you or any of the other senators were elected, were you asked these types of questions?" Needless to say there was no reply from Romero or anyone else.

Jon Rosenbaum, School of Hotel, asked what my opinion was on the boycott of the Holiday Inn? I told him that I was not familiar with this issue. Again, I don't see what this question had to do with my becoming a School of Technology senator.

Otis Hunter summed up the whole abortion when he asked me if I could put up with all the inflated egos evident in the SGA?

The outcome of the vote was less than the number needed to win.

I have never in my life seen anything as asinine as the FIU SGA. These people obviously have nothing better to do than to rile those who wish to help other people.

I am not one of those people that have to show my authority as a "cool dude" such as Romero, and Rosenbaum.

I am too far ahead in the game of life to act in the manner such as that used by the SGA members. If they wanted to know my views, then perhaps I should have submitted my resume. Unlike Romero and Rosenbaum, my resume can speak for me. I am an Air Force search and rescue pilot, underwater photographer for Skin Diver and National Geographic magazines, and I own Riviera Photo while at the same time managing Underwater Unlimited Diving Centers.

I feel that the rest of the students should attend some of the SGA meetings and surely they will agree that the meetings and its members are a comedy of errors.

Eric M. Perle

Editor's Note: A new SGA senator from Technology was finally appointed Wednesday. Laura Coburn was asked some of the same questions Eric Perle was asked. She was approved.

Carlos Romero, interrogator, was himself the subject of controversy Wednesday, when he submitted his resignation from the SGA, claiming that he (Romero) had broken the Florida Sunshine Law. The SGA refused to accept Romero's resignation.

"You have to try and identify the "I" in FIU to the man in Peru without a blanket on his back," Karl Mahler said at the opening ceremony for International Week.

Mahler is a Foreign Service Officer from the State DEpartment in Washington, D.C. He was invited to International Week to speak on internationalism while working in Ethiopia. He is currently involved in developing the International Disaster Institute which involves "developing other countries in coping with crises."

"We need to be sensitive to the needs of the Third World, but where do we start? Here on the campuses. If there is to be internationalism it has to be talked about but it has to be taken a step further. We need an emphasis on our campuses of developing people to go into occupations contributing towards realistic involvement in helping other countries solve their problems," Mahler said. Education dealing with low-cost housing and grain storage were cited as examples.

Mahler explained that internationalistic sensitivities and understandings require motivations and these motivations "start here on our campuses. This is what the "I" in FIU should stand for."

Cheap movies available in Miami, and thru SGA

STEVE SALTER

In this day and age of inflation we the people have been hit with high prices in another area of our economy: entertainment. The prices of movies these days are outrageous and many people afford to go and see a first run movie with a date or a family.

you look hard enough you will find many theatres showing first run features for a dollar. These theatres usually run one or two features. Most of these theatres show double features but once in a while a top billed first run movie will be shown alone. If you look you will see that there are enough of these theatres to prive a rather large variety each week.

Another way to save money on films is to take advantage of the SGA Social and Cultural Committee's discount passes. The passes are available in Room UH 211 for $1.75 each, and are good for admission to any ABC/Florida State Theatre.

Have you ever come out of a movie and heard someone say, "Wow! I can't believe I just paid three-fifty to see that crud." Many people just stay home and wait a year or two until a movie comes to television. Along with high prices some theatres have split into twin cinemas and the atmosphere is claustrophobic, smoky, and the screens are often extremely small.

The theatres on Miami Beach are the old theatres of the forties and fifties. They are still ornate, clean and have fairly large screens. Provided below is a list of these theatres in the area showing single and double features for a dollar, what they are showing this week, and the movie's rating.

No smoking area created

RICHARD DUEMLING
Staff Writer

FIU's campus cafeteria has reserved the southwest corner of the dining area for non-smokers.

There have been a few complaints, but according to Food Service Manager Ray Lubesky, "The compliments far outweigh the complaints. Many people have said to me that at last someone is doing something for the non-smokers."

Cafeteria personnel do not enforce the "no smoking" regulation, but no ash trays are in this section and there are several signs designating the area for no smoking.

Lubesky encourages people to use the suggestion box located in the cafeteria. All legitimate suggestions are answered and posted on the bulletin board located near the south entrance.

One recent note suggested that the dining area be enhanced. Lubesky and Fred Venebles, food service director, are now adding plants to create a nicer atmosphere. The plant project should be finished within the next few weeks.

The cafeteria serves breakfast from 7:30 to 10:30 a.m., lunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., snacks from 2 to 4 p.m., dinner from 4 to 6:30 p.m., and snacks for the evening students from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday thru Thursday. One Friday only breakfast and lunch are served.

REO Speedwagon: Seventh Heaven

"If you ever have the chance," remarked a Zeta 4 disc jockey the other morning, after playing "Riding the Storm Out," "... go see REO Speedwagon in concert."

Their latest album, "You Get What You Play For," a double, live LP set recorded last fall, must be heard by anyone who appreciates good, fast-driven, exciting, live rock.

Much to our misfortune, REO Speedwagon is a rock 'n roll band almost unknown in Florida. Yet they are one of the finest hard-core rock groups in the country.

REO, from Champaign, Ill., consists of excellent guitarists, Gregg Philbin and Gary Richrath; keyboard player Neal Doughty; Alan Gratzter on the drums; and lead vocalist Kevin Cronin (who sounds little bit like Robby Steinhardt of Kansas).

"You Get What You Play For" contains several superior songs, particularly "Riding the Storm Out," (the tile cut of a previous album), "Like You Do," and a modified Rolling Stones' hit, "Little Queenie."

But the final cut on the album, should come as close to making rock history as Lynrd Skynyrd's "Free Bird," or Zeppelin's "Stairway to Heaven." It's called "Golden Country," and is one of the finest encores any group could offer.

REO started out about seven years ago playing rock at Illinois University. Although not yet popular in Miami, (they will be soon if given enough air play) they have a tremendous following in the midwest, particularly Chicago, Indiana and Missouri.

"You Get What You Play For" is their seventh album, recorded live from concerts in Kansas City, Mo., St. Louis, Indianapolis and hitting as far south as Atlanta.

It's a shame they didn't travel any farther south. Miami rock people, you don't know what you've been missing.

Cuban art to be displayed

Cuban painters and sculptors will present an art exhibit called "Café Pinceel" at FIU, May 25-27. The public is invited.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Foundation of Cuban Studies and the SGA.

The Foundation of Cuban Studies is an international organization which was established as a vehicle of expression for poets, writers, painters and intellectuals.

"The quality of the art exhibit will be a mirror of the artists themselves," Raul F. Pino, coordinator of C.S.F. said.

The exhibit will be in VH 210 from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. each day. On May 25 at 8 p.m. a toast will be held in honor of the artists.

Jim Doerr is a doer

MARIE ANNE SALAZAR
Staff Writer

With the grace of a dancer in total coordination he hits a backhand and quickly comes up to the net to slam a decisive shot into his opponent's court.

He moves by the rhythm of the ball in quick intricate steps, swining his racket high, bending low, never missing a shot.

Jim Doerr, at the age of 20, has perfected his tennis game sufficiently to qualify for the national tournament where he will play with the best 64 players in the U.S.

"Tennis is a gentleman's game. It's all finesse. When you play professional you learn the highest control of emotion because you can't let it out on the court. If you are made and throw your racket down, no matter how good you are as a player, people are going to boo you right out," he said wiping the sweat from the early morning sun.

Tall and slim, Doerr possesses a natural flair that would have been the envy of a "gentleman" living a century ago. At any rate, it certainly can impress the crowds. Smoothing back his reddish blonde hair he grinned.

"I don't really pay any attention to the crowds. It's tougher to concentrate when there are people watching you and my game depends on concentration. With practice I have learned to ignore them.

"The hardest thing for me to learn has been the correcting of bad habits during actual play. It's very difficult to apply what you learn in a competitive situation.

"I believe for a person to play professionally he has to start before the age of 16. When you start to play tennis in college your chances for professional play are almost nil," he said.

Doerr, with the help of his father, who is a tennis pro, started playing at an early age. Born in Welland, Ontario, he came to FIU on a tennis scholarship and hopes to become a physical education teacher.

"Basically I came to FIU because it is one of the greatest tennis spots in the nation. It's got good facilities and the weather is good all year round permitting more playing circuits and offering more competition."

This coming week Doerr is going to San Diego to play in the national tournaments.

"I'm looking forward to the competition. I am very sure of my capabilities and it's a great honor to be going," he said.

His blue eyes danced and he laughed with delight when asked if he would play against a woman in a tournament.

"There is no way that a woman can keep up with a man. They don't have the strength or the speed and it would be a very unfair match. Look at Chris Evert. She hits well but she's sluggish and doesn't move fast. If she had to compete with men it would be very unfair to her.

Like most professional tennis players Doerr doesn't like to play with people that are not as good as he is because it ruins his game. His partners are usually players from other tennis teams or friends that are unusually good.

"Tennis is a game of stamina and coordination, not everybody can become a professional. It's one thing to play a couple of games with a friend and then quit, but when you are playing professional it is a different story.

"An hour before I play in a tournament I eat a good meal to give me the required stamina - if not, there is no way my strength would last. When I say a meal, I mean a well balanced diet with plenty of meat. I don't believe in these fad diets of high protein or certain organic foods," he said.

Interrupting the conversation, Ford Oliver came strolling towards Doerr. Wearing a red sweatshirt, he looked cool and comfortable in the heat. "Jim is a good player, he's a real fighter and I think a real asset to the team," he exclaimed.

Oliver, who is a student and a member of the tennis team at Miami Dade South is hoping to get a scholarship to play on the team at FIU after graduation.

Doerr got up signaling the end of the conversation and then went to the courts to hit a few balls before the midday heat.

Doerr, limber with tremendous agility, returns every ball. Oliver not quite as graceful, but nevertheless a great player, concentrates on every shot as a matter of grave importance.

Crowds or no crowds, they put on a good show.

Now is your opportunity. The athletic department is offering tennis lessons starting June 6 thru July 7 for a total of ten lessons. The price is $22.00 per person.

A discount of four dollars is being offered for the person who wishes to enroll for 20 lessons from June 6 thru July 7 and from July 18 thru August 18. Total price is $40.00.

Can you be good at something you don't believe in?

Yes.

You can be good at passing tests that are meaningless to you.
You can be good at selling encyclopedias that you know are inferior.

Ultimately, you can even be good at a profession that you don't really believe in.

You can be good. But for some people, being good just isn't good enough.

For the people who brew Busch beer, it isn't good enough. That's why, at Anheuser-Busch, we persist in brewing Busch beer just one way—the natural way.

We frankly believe that's the best way to brew beer.
And when you believe in what you're doing,
you just naturally do it better.

Try a Busch.

We believe you'll agree.

BUSCH

When you believe in what you're doing,
you just naturally do it better.
