Introduction by the Associate Editors

With this edition of Tequesta, Volume XLII of the journal of the Historical Association of Southern Florida, we present an index to all the preceding volumes. In 1970 we indexed Volumes I through XXX but we repeat that index here for the benefit of our many new members, and add an index for Volumes XXXI through XLI.

In its first forty-one years Tequesta has published one hundred and forty-three writers, some professional historians, some the makers of our history with an eye-witness story to tell. About thirty-five of the contributors have appeared more than once in Tequesta. The prize, if we had one, would go to James W. Covington of Tampa for a total of nine articles. One article about Key Vaca, in two parts (Vols. XVII, XVIII) was written by Florence S. Brigham, then fifteen and a student at Southwest High School. In preparation for her paper Miss Brigham exchanged letters with over one hundred individuals and had ninety-four interviews. Among the contributors are such renowned names as David Fairchild and Marjory Stoneman Douglas.

The first article in the first volume was written by George E. Merrick, the founder of Coral Gables and the first president of the Historical Association of Southern Florida. In last year's volume we had an article by Hugo Black III who was not even born when Tequesta was founded.

Tequesta has had four editors, all associated with the University of Miami: Volume I, Lewis Leary; Volume II, Robert E. McNichol; Volumes IV and V, Leonard R. Muller; Volumes III and VI through the present volume, a total of thirty-eight volumes, Charlton W. Tebeau. All the editors have been volunteers working without compensation in their dedication to pinning down our remarkable South Florida history for present and future generations.
