Introduction by the Editor
The First Fifty Years

In 1941, the one-year-old Historical Association of Southern Florida published the first issue of Tequesta. The first editor was University of Miami English professor Dr. Lewis Leary, who sadly died this year. Until 1956, Tequesta was a bulletin of the University of Miami, and after that the University continued as co-publisher until 1974 when the Historical Association took over full responsibility.

The first issue of Tequesta contained a number of articles that set a standard of excellence that continues to this day. The writers included professional historian Robert E. McNicoll and non-professionals like George E. Merrick, Thomas P. Caldwell, and John Matthews Baxter.

Dr. Charlton W. Tebeau, who first edited Tequesta in 1943 and became the permanent editor in 1946, has had the greatest influence on the journal. For forty years, Dr. Tebeau stamped Tequesta with his understanding of the importance of local history, his ability to work with would-be-historians, and his belief in Tequesta's importance to the understanding of the South Florida community. Since 1986, Dr. Tebeau has continued as Editor Emeritus, along with historian and author Dr. Thelma Peters.

Any study of South Florida history begins with Tequesta. No other published source of our history contains as many scholarly articles, eye-witness accounts, and important reprints.

As we begin work on our 51st Tequesta we look forward to our new editorial board to help us make the next fifty years of Tequesta as important as the last.
