From the Publisher

I have to say that the day off we had on Easter Sunday, was enjoyable, but today, (Monday) the entire staff is no as happy about the holiday as were on Saturday, because today we paid the price for yesterday's holiday. I wonder how many of you other businessmen were in the same boat.

It's getting pretty bad when a small businessman can't even take off a holiday to be with family and friends, without facing some kind of crisis the following day.

As I see inflation increasing on a daily basis, and good experienced help hard to find, the wife and I are constantly taking on more and more of the work load each week.

So, in the next few weeks if you find the page numbers on the wrong page, or words that are misspelled, the buck stops here.

Sand Sculptures To Be Seen On Beach

Sand Sculpture Carnival At South Beach Saturday

It won't be Love Letters in the Sand at South Beach, Fort Lauderdale, Saturday, but there will probably be more than one Sand Castle or colorful Sea Serpent.

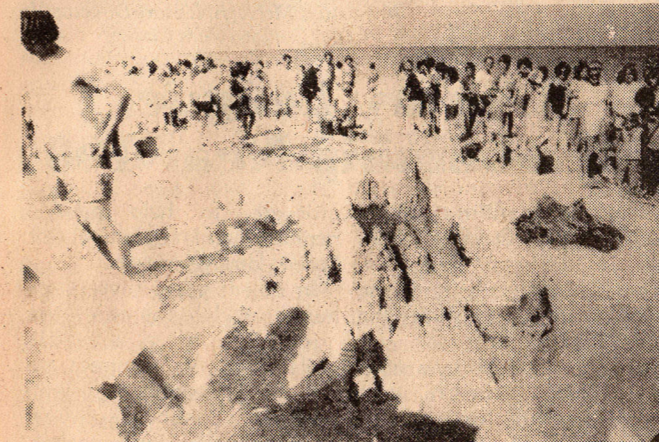

The event is the 27th annual Sand Sculpture Carnival and it will be held opposite Bahia Mar. Whether as a sculptor or an onlooker, it will be of interest to all regardless of age. Prizes will be awarded in nine categories. Registration begins at noon, the competition at land the judging at 3:30 p.m.

The carnival is sponsored by the Fort Lauderdale Recreation Department and the Fort Lauderdale News. For additional information call the recreation department at 761-2621.

On The Beach

Where the boys are and the girls, and the kids and everyone else these days it seems. Last Saturday Fort Lauderdale Police estimated some 45,000 people were at the beach. (If you think that's bad, Daytona Police said the crowds were so huge they couldn't give a count estimate). Anyway, with the Easter break behind us now, the crowds should begin to thin out. But, of course, kids of all ages will be drawn there next Saturday to build castles in the sand, or watch them being built -- and applaud the winners. Will you be there?

Pictured below are some scenes of the crowded beach during the recent Easter Holiday. Snowbirds as well as local residents taking time out to get an edge on the summer tan that everyone is expected to have if living or visiting in Florida.

Library League Membership Near 100

Now in its 12th year of service, the Oakland Park Library League has contributed significantly to making the Oakland Park Library the fine institution it is today.

Originally funded by a small group of women, the organization has grown through the years to a membership ranging near the 100 mark. As a non-profit group, its goal is to promote the library and assist in its development.

In addition to financial assistance, the league provides support to the library through volunteer man hours donated as needed.

The league also manages bi-monthly used book sales at the library and donates the proceeds to help provide materials and equipment for special library services.

In recent years these sales have made possible the aquisition of a sizeable collection of puppets, a portable microphone system, portable cassette player, portable extension speaker, and a wall-mounted movie screen.

The Young Adult and Adult Discussion series are also an outgrowth of book sale funds.

Every two years the league awards a $300 scholarship to be used towards a Master's Degree in Library Science. The scholarship was first presented in 1972 and was the first of its kind in the State of Florida. It is (Cont'd on Page 22)

A successful book drive by the Oakland Park Woman's Club brought the Oakland Park Library into being. The drive was launched in 1956 and by 1958, the club was ready to open its public library of 700 books.

By the time the official opening was to take place, in March of '58, the collection had grown to 1,400 books. In June of 1959, when the west wing of the clubhouse became the library, the number of books had grown to 2,500.

The present facility at 1298 N.E. 37th St. was opened by the City of Oakland Park in August of 1963 and some, 9,500 books were transferred to this location.

A west section was added to the building in October of 1972 to provide needed space for the collection which had now grown to 25,000 books.

Now there are upwards of 40,000 volumes in the library's circulating collection and there are approximately 700 titles in its reference collection.

Oakland Park residents may obtain a free library card upon proof of residency and registration. It is not necessary to have a card to use the library, but a card is necessary to check out any of the materials.

For non-resident cards the fee is $25 per year or $10 for persons over 62.

Although there is a fine for overdue books, all fines will be forgiven this week in keeping with the National Library Week celebration.

Among the special services offered at the Oakland park Library are:

A collection of city documents.

A coupon exchange program.

A college catalog collection which includes 2,900 colleges and universities in the United States and abroad.

Moody's Investors Service, Standard & Poor's N.Y. Stock Exchange Reports, Stock Guide and Outlook, Wall Street Journal, and Florida Trend.

Mini-master art prints. Interlibrary loan transactions with state and national sources.

Wilton Manors Library From Dream To Reality

In 1956, a Mary Jane Schmidt of the JayCee-ettes (Junior Chamber of Commerce Auxiliary) wrote a letter to the Florida State Library Board. It was one of the first steps taken to provide the City of Wilton Manors with a free public lending library.

In October of 1957 a dream became a reality and the doors to what was once the Village Hall at the corner of N.E. 26th Street and N.E. 5th Avenue swung open to reveal new books, new bookshelves and a new beginning.

A lot had happened in the interim.

First there was a JayCee-ettes Library Board, then a Wilton Manors Public Library Association, local Service groups were asked to pledge funds, the city (via Mayor Frank Starling) promised all possible aid, and a book storage area was made available.

Then there were book drives. Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, civic groups, residents -- everyone pitched in to pitch in with books.

A new city hall was finished, funds were provided to enclose the Hagen Park pavilion. Meeting places had been built or found for the city council and other groups utilizing the Village Hall, and, the Village Hall became the public library.

On April 5, 1966, that same Mary Jane Schmidt who had started as a volunteer service club worker was appointed by the Wilton Manors City Council to the position of head librarian. She is serving in that position today.

Program Goal: To Suit Needs Of Community

Traditionally, the City of Wilton Manors Public Library has tried to suit the needs of the community in the area of programs, Mrs. Mary Jane Schmidt, head librarian says.

"We have an active Recreation Department in our city, which offers a variety of things for people of all ages. In the summer, they feature an accelerated schedule for children.

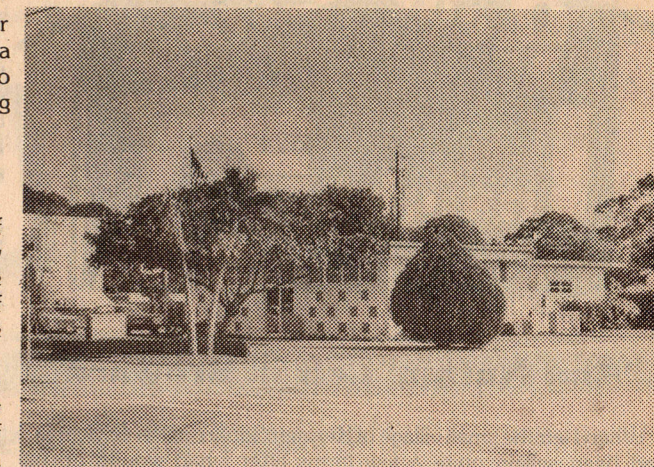

"The library tries to avoid competition and overlapping. Instead, we hope to offer a complete program from which our citizens can choose."

Mrs. Schmidt says that over the years, "we have found 'Story Hour' for the young children to be very successful, as well as film programs.

"We rent a few films, but primarily depend on the free films offered by the State Library and the Broward County Library.

"Speakers and special invited 'guests' such as cockatiels, parrots, a miniature horse, boa constrictor, and Smokey the Bear, and the city fire engine and police cars, etc. play a big role during the summer."

Two reading clubs will again be offered this summer, a state sponsored one and a Smokey the Bear Reading Club. Both are designed to encourage children to read a variety of books -- fiction and non-fiction.

Mary Jane Schmidt, Director of the Wilton Manors Library.

Mrs. Schmidt says, "We especially want to encourage our young people to be the 'readers of tomorrow' -- making the library a source of information and recreational reading."

'Friends' Keep Library On Move

It has been said that behind every good man there is a good woman -- and perhaps it can be said also that behind every good library there is a good library committee.

In Wilton Manors the Friends of the Library is just such a group. This group, under the direction of Karen Clark of 301 N.E. 27th St., works diligently to keep city officials aware of the library's needs, planning public meetings with guest speakers, sponsoring fund-raising paper drives, covered dish suppers and white elephant sales.

The Friends were formed in 1970.

New members are always welcome and persons interested may call Ms. Clark or speak to a librarian for further information. Meetings are held the fourth Thursday of each month from September to May at 8 p.m. at the library. Dues are $2 per individual or $3 per family membership.

Real Estate
Insight
by Grant Field

When I left the small village of Kennett Square in Pennsylvania, I had been selling quite a few farms after I had wound up my building business.

When I arrived in Fort Lauderdale, 10 years ago, I was undecided as to which facet of real estate to enter at this particular time and this particular place, because circumstances enter in to the situation when sales are involved.

My licencing took considerable time to complete as this was the first year when formal schooling became mandatory, plus the residency period of six months and the demand which seemed most unfair, whereby I was made to dispose of my Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland licences. I thought they would give me leave to hold the Delaware licence and we had a big fight about it, but don't try to fight bureaucracy. I disposed of it too.

During all this time, I had investigated the various markets and I decided on commercial investments. I applied for a position with a firm, that, I had been told, moved a lot of apartments and motels.

Starting cold like this, of course, I had to resort to the blind "owners for sale" ads and I was pleasantly surprised when I was able to pick up some nice listings, which after advertising, I was able to start building up a list of "Supply and Demands".

In due time, after serving my apprenticeship period and picking up a few dollars along the way, I informed my brother that I was going to get my brokers licence and also that I would be changing offices. I might add here that my only reason for leaving was that I found myself leaning toward acreage sales and I was searching for a reputable and knowledgeable land sales office.

I finally located at the office that I mentioned in a prior article and for a day or so, getting acclimated, I was wont to just sit and listen to the others on the phone. This, of course, very surreptitiously, and no one was ever aware, but what an earful! I knew at last that I had found my slot and I was ready to explode, out in that jungle.

But, alas, all of my previous work was for naught, as my "Supply and Demand" were after buildings, not land. I had to literally start over, but I was so excited over the new market, I would do anything.

What go me so excited, after listening to the phone calls, were the amounts of money mentioned. I my little home town up north, If I sold a good sized farm, It went for $150,000. A goodly amount. My associates, upon whom I was eaves dropping, were tossing off such figures as they now do in congress, and such as the General Services Administration steal montly. Unbelievable!

Being a greenhorn in this area, and being a little abashed about it in my own office, I thought I'd look up some old timers who might be well versed as to where to prospect for this acreage. I had bumped into some of them at various meetings and I got on the phone and lined up a few.

All of them professed that, although not being natives (no one ever is), they had been here long enough to be considered one, and the first gentleman I spoke to, had an office covered with maps and plats and plot plans, flight plans. Back dated, and aerial photos, leading me to believe that this man certainly must be 800 light years ahead of me if he sold his acreage by airplane.

Well, this is exactly what he did, and he didn't mind telling me that unless I had a plane, I might as well jack it up. I assumed that he was telling me to go back to selling apartment buildings. I asked him why, specifically, he felt this way and he said "Aint Nuthin' Left in Broward". This left me speechless and having nothing to say, I left.

My second old timer maintained an office whose condition was just the opposite of the first. Not a thing was out of place, and overall it looked like the office of a chairman of the board of a large corporation. When I questioned him about the appearance he said, "Well, why shouldn't it look like this?" I don't go out and search for grubby listings". When pushed for a further explanation, he told me that the good days were over and that as far as land sales were concerned, it was all over. He further went on to say that he had all the investors he needed and that if he needed any acreage listing he merely called brokers in Palm Beach or St. Lucie County.

This puzzled me very much and I asked him the same question I had asked the first old gentleman, "Well, how do you feel about Broward County land?" He kind of snorted and looked off into the distance and said, "They ain't none left." Same answer, same attitude as number one.

I asked him how he accounted for this and the explanation he gave was that it had all been sold off for developments. The last big push being the developing of Coral Ridge. When I perceived how far back in time he was, I realized that he was living in the post so I thanked him and took my leave.

While working on the apartment and motel deals, my immediate locale was the beach area and while I hadn't pursued it, I was aware that acreage was "around", and I couldn't understand why those very knowledgeable "old timers" insisted that there was no land left in Broward.

Next week, I'll tell you what I found and where I found it and also my theory as to why they told me that information.

... "Best I've felt in years"
testimonial of Martha Faye Blabon

I was suffering from severe headaches and low back pain that interfered with my job as a loan clerk and with my housework. My next-door neighbor recommended Dr. Petrie.

I noticed improvement after 2 adjustments, some after only 1. My stomach problems went away after I stopped taking pain relievers for my constant headaches.

This is the best I've felt in years. I didn't know how good it could feel to live without headaches and all the tension I had in my neck.

I would definitely recommend Dr. Petrie to others. I use the Family Plan, and it's great!

Manors Church To Observe 25th Anniversary

The First Christian Church of Wilton Manors will celebrate its 25th birthday Sunday at 9:45 a.m. with a special cake cutting ceremony.

The Rev. Clarence Stauffer, minister, founded the church on Easter Sunday 25 years ago. His wife, Jean, is organist and he is now co-minister of the church with his son, the Rev. Dr. John Stauffer.

Family Basic Unit Of Mormon Church

The most basic unit within the Church of Jesus Christ Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) is the family. Mormons are taught the sanctity of marriage, and one of the church's tenets relates to the eternal marriage covenants which bind a family together throughout eternity.

Because of its concern with family solidarity, the church is outspoken in its opposition to abortion, pornography, general immorality and all movements in the world that tend to have a negative influence on the family.

Most programs of the church are family oriented. One is the weekly "family home evening" where the family gathers under the leadership of parents to engage in the study of correct principles of living, to counsel one another on family matters, to enjoy social, musical and other cultural pursuits that strengthen family ties, and to provide opportunity for healthy communication between parents and children.

The church annually provides each family with an attractive manual, or guidebook, with detailed suggestions for the preparations of interesting and profitable family evenings. The manual assures a degree of uniformity in the worldwide program. It is printed in seven languages.

Closely allied with this program is one wherein priesthood holders designated as "home teachers," under assignment of bishops or branch presidents, go two-by-two into all Latter-day Saint homes at least once a month.

These teachers bring messages of inspiration, guidance and good will to families. They assist with problems or needs which are beyond the family's ability to resolve, reporting back to their ecclesiastical leaders as necessary so that the church's resources may be made available to assist in solutions.

Once again we wish to invite one and all to investigate the church. If any questions or comments please call 771-4420. Thank you.

Palm Trees On Sale Saturday

More than 600 disease resistant palm trees will be on sale Saturday, April 12, in keeping with Private Property Week, April 13 to 19.

The sale is sponsored by the Fort Lauderdale Area Board of Realtors and will be held at the board's main office, 1765 N.E. 26th St., Wilton Manors, from noon to 5 p.m.

Two varieties of trees will be sold, the Maylayan and the Maypan, a hybrid. Both species are capable of bearing coconuts and growing very quickly to a height of more than 60 feet. Both are 98 to 100 percent yellow blight resistant.

The Maypan, the most recent hybrid, is a cross between the disease resistant Malayan dwarf and the Panama tall variety. Not yet widely available to the public, this coconut palm will grow in poor soil and without constant watering and fertilization.

The Malayan dwarf palm, first crossed with the Panama tall in 1979, will grow to a height of 60 feet and will bear coconuts after the first year.

Paralleling the county's first annual Broward Beautification Week, these palm trees will help to replace those lost to the disease and will help restore Broward's lush green canopy.

There will be a limit of two palms per person and they will be sold on a first come, first served basis. They will be sold at cost, under $10 each. These species normally retail at $20 to $25.

Paul Dance, chairman of the Civic Affairs Committee of the Board of Realtors, a local trade association of more than 500 real estate offices, has announced that the board will also provide a pamphlet for each buyer describing the palm trees and explaining how to care for them.

The theme of Private Property Week this year is "Private Property Rights Protect Them." The tree sale is one of many activities being conducted by the realtors to increase consumer awareness of Constitutional rights to own private property and the responsibility of each American to protect that right.

Private Property Week is an annual observance conducted nationwide by the National Association of Realtors and its 760,000 members.

Blimp History Dates Back Almost 200 Years

Most stories are told from beginning to end, but for this story about blimps the beginning is where we will end. The Enterprise has left her winter base in Pompano Beach and is now en route to her summer tour.

The airship usually leaves this area in May and returns in November. Because of her early departure this year it is expected that she will be back earlier.

Let us now go back to the first known lighter-than-air craft which was a 35-foot paper balloon built by the Montgolfier brothers of France in 1783. Its lift was provided by the hot air from a brazier of charcoal suspended below the balloon.

Later that year, another Frenchman, a physicist Prof. J. A. C. Charles, sent aloft a balloon constructed of silk and inflated with hydrogen. Not to be outdone, the Montgolfiers elected to fly a balloon carrying the first lighter-than-air passengers -- a sheep, a rooster and a duck. All were landed safely.

With the development of the gas-tight bag, the gas valve and other devices, ballooning came into its own in the 19th century. Balloons found great favor as aerial observation posts in the American Civil War and the Franco-Prussian War. The first power-driven balloon, a 145-foot dirigible, was built in 1852 by French inventor Henri Giffard. Power was supplied by a three-horsepower steam engine.

The first rigid airship, with an interior framework to maintain its shape, was built in 1898 by Austrian David Schwartz. Powered by a 12 horsepower engine with a belt drive, the airship crashed on its maiden flight.

It remained for Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, a retired German cavalry general, to develop the first practical rigid airship in 1900.

2-Day 'Plants Alive' Sale

Thirty booths, twice the number of last year, will be servicing the second annual Wilton Manors "Plants Alive" sale which is one of the major kick-off events of Broward Beautification Week.

The event is held in cooperation with the Florida Nurserymen and Growers Association and all sales are at discount prices.

More than $500,000 worth of landscaping materials and plants will be on sale from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday at Hagen Park Recreation Center next to City Hall and in the street adjacent to the tennis courts.

Representatives from the Division of Forestry and a County Extension agent from the Agricultural Department will be on hand to answer questions on landscaping and planting problems.

The Wilton Manors Beautification Committee, co-sponsor of the sale, will have potted and hanging plants available at greatly reduced prices and there will be a plant raffle of donations from FNGA.

Refreshments will be available, Plants Alive T-shirts will be sold and entertainment activities include a square dance exhibition.

The goal of the annual event is to encourage beautification of the city through planting and landscaping.

His work, until his death in 1917, established Germany as a lighter-than-air power. The industry which he founded produced 115 rigid airships between 1900 and 1918. Many were military ships which terrorized the British Isles with bombing raids during World War I.

Non-rigid airships also came into their own during World War I, along with the familiar, sausage-shaped observation and barrage balloons. America's first military airship, a non-rigid type, had been built in 1908 by Army Signal Corps Major Thomas S. Baldwin.

Goodyear built its first airship envelope in 1911, a big, 400,000-cubic-foot bag ordered by a lighter-than-air enthusiast named Melvin Vaniman. He planned a fly across the Atlantic Ocean. His attempt proved disastrous. A spark from an engine set fire to the hydrogen-filled bag, plunging the airship into the ocean just off the New Jersey coast. Vaniman and several crewmen were lost.

Goodyear established its reputation as a leader in lighter-than-air during World War I, producing more than 1,000 balloons and approximately 100 non-rigid airships for the Allies.

The company had been ready to aid the war effort, thanks to the foresightedness of P. W. Litchfield, a production wizard who later became chairman of the board for Goodyear. He had witnessed a balloon race and other lighter-than-air craft in action in France in 1910, and had determined that Goodyear should become a part of the then-infant aviation industry.

The most popular period for airships were the years between World War I and World War II when Germany, France, Great Britain and the United States all had rigid airships. Goodyear's fleet of commercial blimps, as many as six operating at one time, also was born during this period.

Goodyear pioneered the use of the helium in 1925 when the first of its commercial airships, the Pilgrim, was inflated with nonflammable gas.

Until that time, hydrogen was the most frequently used lifting agent, but it is highly flammable. A cubic foot of hydrogen can lift about 10 percent more weight than a cubic foot of helium, but the latter has a greater safety advantage.

Popularity of airships hit its peak in the 1930s. The global passenger and freight-carrying feats of Germany's Graf Zeppelin and Hindenburg, and the nationwide flights of the Navy's Goodyear-built Akron and Macon captured the imaginations of people the world over.

It was Goodyear's contract to build the Akron and Macon that resulted in the famed Zeppelin Airdock at Akron, Ohio. A building had to be constructed in which the Navy's giant rigid airships could be assembled. Completed in 1929, the structure is the largest in the world without interior support. It's 1,175 feet long, 325 feet wide and 211 feet high.

The Airdock has been called one of the "seven wonders of the modern world." It continued to serve as an airship production facility until 1960, when it was converted to other manufacturing use. (Envelopes for the Enterprise, America and Columbia were made at Goodyear Aerospace Corporation's facility in Litchfield Park, Arizona, while the complete airships were assembled at Goodyear's hangar in Houston, Texas.)

Popularity of the rigid airships came to an end in the late 1930s with the loss of the Akron, Macon and Hindenburg within a period of 37 months. However, these tragedies were, in part, responsible for the accelerated development of the non-rigid airships, particularly for the Navy.

In spite of this, the Navy had only 10 non-rigid airships in operation when Pearl Harbor was attacked on Dec. 7, 1941. By the end of the war, the Navy had 168 airships in operation. Most of them were constructed by Goodyear. In fact, blimps of Goodyear's commercial fleet also were "drafted" into the Navy to serve chiefly as training craft.

The Navy airships compiled an astonishing record during the war, especially in the role of aerial escorts for convoys. During the war, the Atlantic and Gulf coast waters of the United States, and in the coastal waters of the Caribbean, Eastern Central America and Brazil, 532 vessels in all were sunk. But not one vessel was sunk by enemy submarines while under escort by an airship.

Altogether, the Navy airships escorted 89,000 ships during the war without loss of a single vessel.

Goodyear resumed its commercial airship operation after World War II. With the advent of the Korean conflict, the Navy once again stepped up its airship operations.

The last airships built by Goodyear for the Navy were four huge ZPG-3W type non-rigid airships for use in the nation's early warning defense network. These airships were retired from service by the Navy after more sophisticated early warning equipment was developed. Each of the ZPG-3Ws was 10 times as large as the present-day blimps.

The airship Enterprise, and her sister blimps, Columbia, America and Europa, all owned by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, are the only lighter-than-air craft operating on a regular schedule in the world today.

Together, the Goodyear blimps are a colorful link with that romantic era of aviation when airships, large and small, sailed through the aerial seas above cities and hamlets around the globe.

Conventional aircraft, such as the airplane and helicopter, have far out-distanced the airship in development and utilization. But the spark of romance with the lighter-than-air age remains, thanks chiefly to the effort of Goodyear, which is as well known as a pioneer in aviation as it is in rubber.

Goodyear has built more than 300 airships in a long, and still growing, line of LTA vehicles for military and commercial purposes since 1917. Of this number, 250 were constructed under contract for the Army or Navy. The remaining blimps have been commercial craft which Goodyear has used for public relations activities and for experimental and development work on light metals and fabrics.

The Army canceled its airship operations in the mid-1930s. The last Navy airships were retired from service in 1962.

Airships have three classifications: rigid, semi-rigid and non-rigid.

Rigid airships, such as the Graf Zeppelin, the Hindenburg and the Goodyear-built Akron and Macon, had metal frameworks within their envelopes to maintain their shape. The lifting gas was contained in a series of separate cells within these frameworks.

In semi-rigid construction, the airship had a rigid or jointed keel which ran the length of the envelope. This keel and the pressure of the lifting gas gave the envelope its shape.

In non-rigid model, such as the Enterprise, Columbia, America and Europa, the envelope shape is maintained entirely by the internal pressure of the lifting gas.

It is equally correct to refer to a blimp as a dirigible, for by definition a dirigible is "a lighter-than-air craft that is engine-driven and steerable." Only a rigid airship is a zeppelin, while blimps, dirigibles and zeppelins all can correctly be called airships.

The Oakland-Manors News thanks the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company for most of the background information in this series, and to our departing "snowbird" the Enterprise, we wish a bon voyage.

THE ORIGIN OF DANCE

The ballet and Minuet are French refinements of earlier Folk Dances.

The Minuet began as a crude peasant dance, but as a refined court dance "all our sense of stepping beautifully goes back to this dance which reigned in a more or less modified form of several centuries." (Dorothy Shaw, "The Story of Square Dancing, A Family Tree") As recently as the 1920s there were Square Dancer rounds called minuets.

The Ballet came into popularity during the Louis XIV era in France. All participants were amateurs and Louis, himself, would dance the leading role.

Ballet became more professionalized in the 17th century. A rather rigid system of rules and coded techniques was set up. Then there was a revolt against this extreme formalism and a turn back to the art of the Greeks. The use of natural movements of the body was urged and dancers sought figures which expressed the beauty of nature.

With the refining of the Folk Dance, the stage was set for the Age of the Waltz. The road, however, was not a smooth one.

24-Hour Nursery For Abused Children

A 24-hour crisis nursery for abused and neglected children is the goal of the "Spring for Children" party being held April 25.

The project got underway about three years ago under the auspices of the Junior League of Fort Lauderdale and became incorporated about one year ago as "Kids In Distress, Inc." Mrs. Phillip Shailer is president.

Kids In Distress is one of five units under a board of directors known as the Child Consortium. Each of the five units will deal with a different age level. Kids In Distress is for the new born to 12 years of age.

Through donations and federal and local funding, the board hopes to provide facilities for each unit. Members will go before the county commissioners to seek continual county aid.

Sites for the facilities have been found and it is hoped proceeds from "Spring for Children" will provide down payments for the purchases. Mayor and Mrs. E. Clay Shaw will be honorary host and hostess at the party which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Egan. Mayor Shaw has designated April 21 through 27 as Child Abuse Prevention Week.

The gala will begin at 7 p.m. and will include dining under the supervision of noted chef Alain Petitbon, and an evening of dancing to three musical groups.

Attendance is by invitation only. The invitations, in the form of a poster child to color, have been mailed but additional information about them may be obtained by calling 463-4032.

The party chairmen are Mrs. James Wm. Bray, Mrs. Peter C. Clark and Mrs. C. Daniel Petrie.

Al-Anon, Alateen Information Month

April is information month in Broward County for all Al-Anon and Alateen groups. Many meetings this month will invite the public to become individuals as well as professionals who wish to learn more about the program offered.

Both groups offer help to relatives and friends of alcoholics.

For additional information call 735-5556.

Members of these groups share their experiences, strength and hope in order to solve their common problems and to help others do the same.

Although an outgrowth of Alcoholics Anonymous, with the same basic structure, the groups form a completely separate organization.

Alcoholism is now recognized as a family disease which impairs the mental and often the physical health of the family as well as that of the alcoholic.

Al-Anon members help themselves by learning the facts about alcoholism and by working to improve their own attitudes and personalities through informal group discussions.

Alateen, the junior segment of Al-Anon, is designed for the 12 to 20-year old offspring of alcoholics.

During April, the following groups in Broward County invite the public to become better informed of their activities:

Basket Bazaar

Grandma Canavan (works in shop front at Home Basket Bazaar, 2365 Wilton Drive, Wilton Manors.

Lisa Campesi, seven, was first place winner of the egg decorating contest held by the Home Basket Bazaar, Wilton Drive, Wilton Manors. Lisa attends Northside Elementary School and used painting over crayon as her media.

Jennifer Abhau, six, second place winner, attends St. Clement School. Her egg depicted a bunny with a cotton tail.

The girls each received a lifelike raccoon puppet.

Frank Starling, city administrator of Wilton Manors was the judge and announced the winners on Friday.

Judy Shepherd, co-owner with her husband of Home Basket Bazaar, while reminiscing about Easters past, came up with the idea of having an Easter egg decorating contest. Paper eggs seemed more practical than real eggs so Judy put 300 flyers into circulation. The paper included the egg outline and directions.

As the contestants turned in their art work to the shop, "Grandma" Canavan hung them on a tree displayed in the front window.

Mrs. Canavan, Judy's mother, takes charge of the front of the store and enjoys being called "Grandma". She's there six days a week and showing different items and telling about their origin.

Judy's next idea for a front window display is a Maypole.

Judy and husband, Mike, feature in their ship statues from Haiti, baskets from Mexico, fans from the Philippines and many other unique items including a hanging hammock chair ("Grandma says it holds up to 600 lbs.!).

Judy and Mike also have a home party idea. Besides being different, these parties promise not to bore the guests with games.

"Operation Green-Up" Special Beautification Week Project

"Operation Green-Up" is a special Beautification Week project of the Florida Division of Forestry. It is one of several beautification-improvement projects designed to help celebrate the first annual Broward County-wide event.

The City of Oakland Park, in addition to its ongoing trash removal services, is supporting projects planned by the four civic associations within its boundaries.

In Wilton Manors four dumpsters will be strategically located for residents to deposit large articles not picked up in the bi-weekly collections.

The dumpsters will be at Mickel Field, the Wilton Manors Elementary School, across from City Hall and at the Kiwanis clubhouse, 2749 N.E. 14th Ave.

"Operation Green-Up" is a coordinating, planning and technical assistance program that will work very closely with the L.A. Branch of the YMCA's "Youth In Action," the Fort Lauderdale Housing Authority Youth, and the local homeowners in various beautification programs.

Cathy Brothers, a Forester, has planned and coordinated six beautification projects in conjunction with the week-long campaign and in close cooperation with the YMCA and the Housing Authority.

The YMCA's "Youth In Action" will take part in three separate tree planting projects during "Operation Green-Up."

The first tree planting project will include the planting of approximately 100 trees in the swale areas on both sides of N.W. 4th Avenue, Fort Lauderdale.

The second and third tree planting projects will take place on federally subsidized apartment complexes -- L.A. Lee Apartments and Northfork Garden Apartments (Fort Lauderdale) on April 14 and 15, respectively.

Between 15 to 20 trees, donated by the Fort Lauderdale City Nursery, will be planted at each apartment complex.

Residents of the L.A. Lee Apartment complex will clean-up a vacant city lot just north of their complex.

The City of Fort Lauderdale's Community Affairs Department will arrange trash pickup during the project and the YMCA will participate by mowing the vacant lot.

The Fort Lauderdale Housing Authority will participate in the beautifying of two different housing projects during the week.

On Tuesday, April 15, the Division of Forestry's tree spade will be used to transplant seven, 15-20 foot, Rosewood trees to Sistruck Gardens, located east of the L.A. Lee Apartment complex in Fort Lauderdale.

"Operation Green-Up" will conclude with the additional planting of 140 hibiscus trees at Sunny Beach Reach Acres on Saturday, April 19.

Last year's cleanup/beautification efforts involved hundred of concerned Broward County citizens along with numerous county-wide organizations and merchants working together throughout the community to re-establish community pride and spirit.

This year's campaign is being coordinated by the Fort Lauderdale Area Board of Realtors and the Fort Lauderdale/Broward County Chamber of Commerce.

Cluttered Waterways... Cost Taxpayers Thousands!

Taxpayers in Broward County have paid almost $10,000 a year for the South Florida Water Management District to clean up the trash left in canals and water rights of way.

They have also financed untold thousands to repair vandalism to water control structures.

To ease some of these conditions the week of April 12 through 19 has been proclaimed "Keep Our Waterways Clean Week".

The public awareness campaign has the support of the county and most of its waterfront communities. More than 2,000 volunteers are expected to turn out and assist.

In addition to members of the Marine Industries Association of South Florida, sponsor of the cleanup, the work force will include Boys clubs, Scout troops, boat clubs and interested boaters.

The county will be divided into 15 work regions. The City of Wilton Manors will be one of them. Frank Starling, city administrator, is the coordinator. He has approximately 60 volunteers and 15 to 20 boats to work the north and south forks of Middle River.

The Colohatchee Boat Ramp will be the center of operations and trucks will be stationed there to haul the debris to the dump.

This sixth annual all-day activity will get under way in the early morning hours and wind up about 3 p.m.

Under state law, property owners are required to maintain their land. However, it is not always the property owner that clutters the waterways.

The law is being more strictly enforced and trash is being sifted through to find who the violators are. Citations are then issued and the violators are required to clean up their trash, appear at a hearing and pay a fine anywhere from $25 to $5,000.

In addition to the trash dumpers, vandalism is a big problem. They waste water and taxpayers dollars by breaking down manual water control gates and electrical meters, tearing down fences, causing gates to malfunction and changing gate settings.

The goal of the annual waterways cleanup is to demonstrate to the general public that clean water is everyone's responsibility.

awarded to a qualified Broward County applicant.

Another worthwhile project of the league is the annual "Illustrate a Book" contest. It has effectively promoted an appreciation of books and the enjoyment of reading among young children. Winners are awarded books provided by the leagues.

The league meets the third Friday of each month at 10 a.m. from October through May. All programs provided by the league are open to the public.

New members are always welcome and more information can be obtained from Mrs. J.A. Davis, associate president, at 565-8858.

Day-Long Pre Celebration

The Oakland Park Library will kick off National Library Week, April 13 through 19, with a pre-day program of activities Saturday, April 12, beginning at 10 a.m. and ending with comedy cartoons for all ages at 3:30 p.m.

A book sales sponsored by the Oakland Park League will be held throughout the day at the Oakland Park Woman's Club clubhouse directly across from the library on 37th Street.

Each purchase of $3 or more will entitle the buyer to a free weatherproof book bag, while they last. Proceeds of the sale are donated to the library.

A sidewalk art show will be in process from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the grounds surrounding the library. This is an invitational show sponsored by the library as part of its cultural arts program.

Original flower arrangement creations by members of the Broward Garden Club will be on display at the library all day and throughout National Library Week.

Adventures in Music will be sponsored by the library as part of its cultural arts program.

Original flower arrangement creations by members of the Broward Garden Club will be on display at the library all day and throughout National Library Week.

Adventures in music will be presented from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. by Murray Ferguson, local lecturer and member of the Bermuda Club. He will use his wide angle sound projection system for a new dimension in musical reproduction.

Three pinatas, papier-mache structures filled with candies, will be hung from trees outside the library and blindfolded players will try to hit and break them open.

To increase the challenge, the pinatas will be raised and lowered as the players try to hit them. When the pinatas are broken all participants will scramble for the candies. The Pinata breakers will be awarded special prizes.

At 11:30 a.m. the Book Stacking Contest will begin.

This original game was highly acclaimed by participants in past year celebrations. The object is to build the highest stack of books in the 30 seconds allotted each player.

Stacking is made more difficult by the poor condition of the books which the library has been collecting in its "Dirty Book" drive.

A magic show by the Mini Magicians will be presented at 1 p.m. As members of the International Brotherhood of Magicians, this group has performed nationally and will include in their act such features as dancing, doves and a variety of larger illusions. A clown will accompany the act and entertain with series of balloon tricks.

Then there will be a Book Balancing Contest at 2 p.m. Players will walk a designated distance in the least amount of time while head-balancing a book and using no hands or arms for assistance.

Judges of this event will be Jerry and Sue Jarboe, known for their community involvement and as "Oakland Park Parents of the Year" for 1977.

Awards for the games and contest winners and to the winners of "55 Across, Crossward Puzzle", and the "Oakland Park Library Word for Word" contest will be presented at 3 p.m. ceremonies. At this time individuals and organizations assisting the library with the day's celebration will also be honored.

There will be a bake sale sponsored by the Oakland Park Woman's Club, hot dogs at noon by the Teen Discussion Group, free orange juice from McDonald's and a guest appearance by the famous "Hamburglar", and each child will be given a free helium-filled balloon (the Oakland Park Junior Woman's Club is assisting in this event).

In all, the fourth annual pre-day celebration of National Library Week promises to be an event long remembered.
