The REAL Terrorist?

HIS CAPONE business is beginning to be a sorry joke. The general public, viewing the antics of these self-appointed disciples of community welfare, is frankly amazed. Even the most ignorant citizen realizes what the anti-Capone yowlers ignore—the fact that cities are not legally authorized to deport "undesirables"; that so long as Capone hasn't violated the law he cannot be prosecuted; that mere suspicion and newspaper notoriety he has received from the hectic press are not enough to warrant official action.

Yet the Daily News' campaign to oust him continues, to the embarrassment of public officials of the various municipalities. James M. Cox of Ohio has ordained that Capone must leave. So have a few of adjoining property holders on Palm Island (two, incidentally, who tried to sell Capone their homes.)

The fact that Capone intends living here will keep wealthy investors away, says the News. As a matter of fact, however, the fact that the News has "publicized" Capone to the extent it has is more alarming to investors than the mere presence of a Chicago gangster who so far seems intent only upon going into seclusion on a thinly populated island in Biscayne Bay. A paper that attempts to incite mob violence, to inspire unthinking men to take the law

Republicans Give Warning

Volume 5, Number 23 June Thirty, Nimeteen Twenty-eight

DADE COUNTY REPUBLICANS are getting organized. They have smoothed out part of their party bickerings and are setting their eyes for the November elections. It is becoming more and more apparent that Florida is in need of so-called two It is becoming party government, and it is also becoming realized that the year 1928 will offer a good time to put something over.

Viewing the situation thus, we are convinced that Dade County Republicans have a wonderful opportunity to capture some of the county offices, and we are further of the belief that many Dade County taxpayers will vote the G. O. P. ticket if men of ability and integrity are placed thereon.

The Democratic primary is no longer certain election in the South. Young voters are breaking away from the bogey which has kept good men from seeking office on account of one-party reign.

Of course this does not apply to the judiciary, like the judge-ships, county solicitor, state's attorney, etc., they being appointive offices in the hands of the governor—still a Republican sometime might be elected to the governor's chair—but the other offices are worthy of battling for, and the Democrats had better watch out.

How to Double Our Population

REDERICK J. OSIUS, millionaire, owner of extensive Miami Beach property, credited with 15 major labor-saving inventions in electrical aparatus, including the electric sewing machine, vacuum cleaner and soda fountain shaker, and, facing a term in iail following an unfortunate automobile accident last year, incidentally has a clear, analytical mind of the discoverer and can turn his thoughts to something that will help to put Miami firmly on the map again.

His circular, published and paid for by himself, is a clear

Tust about the best statement of this circular, published and paid for by himself, is a clear statement of a pertinent fact. Just about the best statement of our assets as we've ever seen. Therefore we're printing it elsewhere. The sick and ailing will spend all that they have to be freed from illness. They will travel almost anywhere that promises a release from disease. Those who are poor die in the dingy streets of our northern cities, or succumb to the rigors of the winton winter. Almost every ailing person in the United States could come to Miami and live here. The cost of such a journey and of living here is not excessive. They can live here for less than they can in the north.

In a few months, a few years at the most, they would be healed by the sun and clear air of the Magic City. The thought is worthy of careful consideration. Anyone interested in Miami's future should read what Mr. Osius has to say. The circular is reproduced in a contract of the contract duced in another section of this issue.

The Miami Daily NEWS-PAPER

IN TODAY'S home edition of the Miami Daily News the headline yells: CAPONE RETURNS TO GANG WAR, and the first deck says: SCARFACE QUITS HOME AT BEACH FOR WINDY CITY. The story below goes on to tell of Al's hurried abandoning of his "summer white house" on Palm Island on Friday night to "return to his underworld kingdom in Chicago."

It's a good headline and a good story, all except the fact that Scarface Al Capone is still at his Palm Island home and has no intentica of leaving Miami for any other place at the present time—the Daily News and other town misanes. nuisances, notwithstanding.

into their own hands, to suggest a course of action that might cause civic strife, perhaps the death of innocent bystanders, is more to be feared, in our opinion, than a tribal chieftan like Capone who, if he killed anybody, would kill simply one of his kind.

Who is giving Miami the adverse publicity, Capone or the News? Who is doing the frightening? Why, any public official will tell you that reporters of the News are hounding them, making their lives miserable, by demanding action against Capone, when they are oath-bound to protect, rather than persecute a free citizen of the United States.

True enough, Capone is undesirable as a citizen.

So are a lot of people living in apartment houses close to us. The writer of this editorial is, and for a long time has been, "undesirable" in the minds of several public officials. Under the same theory that this Capone movement started, certain mayors or police chiefs or prohibition officers or coast guardsmen would have run us out of town long ago. But it can't be done that way. The fundamental principle of law is that a man is innocent until proven guilty. And so far, Capone has evaded conviction.

Capone may be getting ready to rob the First National Bank. He may be preparing to kill some of the Chicago gangsters who have been living here for years. He may be getting ready to run a gambling house over on the island in opposition to some favored racket man. He may be planning to operate rum boats. He may be here to do all kinds of mean and nasty things. But he's got to do something before the law can step in.

Wouldn't we present a fine aspect to the world, using the very tactics in getting rid of Capone that we are condemning him for?

It looks like these irate neighbors of Capone, who have pulled some political strings and have used their prestige with the civic clubs and the newspapers to "publicize" this thing, have got Miami into a sorry jam.

Politeness Pays

BOUT FOUR YEARS ago Miami had two cops who were so polite that they attracted the attention of everybody. They were just motorcycle cops, who directed traffic at intervals. and made themselves useful in a variety of ways outside of their regular duties.

A couple of weeks ago one of them was given the best job in the county, that of sheriff. "Pop" Lehman, chief of police of Coral Gables. His name "Pop" was lovingly conferred upon him by the hundreds of little boys and girls of Northside school in the days when Lehman saw to it that motorists and street cars did not run them down when crossing the street. If "Pop" only knew it, the hundreds of politicians now seeking his grace by claiming to have elected him didn't really do it. Those little boys and girls, most of them children of prominent Miamians, did it by going home and thrilling their parents with stories of the wonderful cop who helped them out in their troubles.

The other, a few weeks ago, was given the other highest peace-officer job in the county-H. H. Arnold, who is now safety director of the city of Miami, probably the most important police honor in Florida. Arnold, too, had a way with the youngsters that brought him to the attention of their parents. The friends he made while he was in the motorcycle and traffic division years ago were quick to come to his aid when he had a chance at a real job.

Both are rather quiet, and well-bred. But more than that, they have shown the rare qualities of kindness and grace that the people appreciate so much in a public servant, especially in a policeman. Both have reaped the reward of their tact-and both see to be doing their durndest to make good.

What they have achieved in the course of ju three or four years should make a lot of fellows now on the taxpayers' pay roll sit up and take notice.

The public has reacted on "hard-boiled" stuff.

HAVANA, CUBA, is again pulling the old gyp game. Not satisfied with the great influx of tourists who desire to watch the ponies run since Miami and Florida sounded the eleath-knell of racing, and charging fabulous prices for hotel accommodations and food, the dusky brethren of the southern island have tacked on another charge.

It will now cost tourists $3.00 to enter Cuba—and, another $3.00 to leave. Put that in your pipe and smoke it and go free another people!

Anyone Can Tend Boilers

THERE are 300 boilers in Miami and every one of them A has to be tested. The city has a very poor arrangement for this work, the testing being done in what amounts to spare time—if any—of somebody in the weights and measures department. This city has no examination as to proficiency in handling boilers. Any dumb moron, who cannot tell the difference between a baby buggy and a packet of animal crackers, can be given a job firing a boiler that might explode and kill half a dozen people. And a whole lot of incompetents are handling boilers in this city. If these people who own boilers knew how much money they were losing in wasteful use of fuel they would immediately get a cer-tified boiler tender to look after their steam maker. Some day, when a downtown building gets blown up, the city will pass an ordinance making it necessary for a boiler tender to know the steam gauge from a mud port.

Cutting Down Expenses

THE city weights and measures department is about to be slashed. The city fathers must save more money to make funds go round, so they cut the departments that do useful, but not spectacular work for the citizens. There are 800 gasoline pumps in the city and they must be inspected or car owners would get gyped. There are 3,500 scales in Miami that need checking up periodically or the grocery bill will be short. There are 62,000 meters, electric, gas and water, within the city limits and we cannot trust Little Nell to keep them all running on a fair basis—they have to be checked up once in a while. There are nearly 100 taxis that have meters that need attention all the time to keep the speed down. Ten thousand meters have been tested every month since last November, so there appears to be some work done by the department. Package goods for Saturday sales must be weighed and not found wanting, and that takes The department should have at least three extra men to handle the work—but, report says, a few are to be cut off the payroll.

The Price of Milk

THE TITCE OF IVIIK

THE price of a milk shake in Montgomery, Ala., is exactly the same as in Miami. But in Montgomery milk sells to the fountains at 40 cents a gallon; at Miami the price is 70 cents. When a fountain pays almost twice as much for the main ingredients the profit must be either very large in Montgomery or very small in Miami. Or the price of milk must be too high here or too low in the Alabama city.

Flagler Street Rentals

ANDLORDS of Flagler street property seem to have peculiar ideas. For instance, one owner of an arcade rents one side of the entrance to a chain store on a two-year lease at $600 a month. He is offering the other side (same size) to a local firm on a one-year lease only, at $750 a month. If there is any store room on Flagler street that is worth $750 except to some special businesses, we'd like to learn about it. For the most part the landlords are not trying very hard to keep Miami business men in business. They would rather rent to outside chain stores where the profits all go out of town.

To Protect Business

MERCHANTS of Miami will eventually have to get to-gether to protect themselves. At the present time they are cutting each other's throats and putting themselves out of business at the same time. No business can exist without making a profit. While we are opposed to price fixing we can see nothing but bankruptcy facing the wholesale cutters of prices. The public is entitled to value for its money. The merchant is entitled to a profit. Otherwise the city's business will soon get into the hands of a few merchants, mostly owners of chain stores and of a few merchants, mostly owners of chain stores, and when competition is eliminated the prices will get up to where they were in 1925—when you could easily buy a dollar article for two dollars and thirty cents.

A Little Help Wanted

TIME city of Miami donates $2,500 to the upkeep of the I ball team. So far, nobody quite knows why this amount of cash is turned over to the team, said team being an incorporated company and run as a money making concern. This year the team has made no money, but did last year. Until lately the team wasn't even playing good ball and was reposing safely at the bottom of the league. Now it is a notch higher, since the whole team, practically, was fired and new players brought in. Its advertising value to Miami is very small.

The basketball team, a purely social affair, is in need of funds. That is, the boys, who have been financing themselves, need new uniforms and a car. The advertising value of the basketball team to Maimi is very great. Last season this team received an immense amount of publicity, every piece of which carried the name Miami

Miami Life suggests that the merchants of the city donate suitable uniforms for the boys. The cost will be about $350. Volks sporting goods store donated uniforms last year. The hotels could lend the team a decorated car, one that would advertise the Magic City in very town on the way north. Said car to be returned in od shape after the season. The city could donate out $500 as a sinking fund in case any of the players ere hurt and had to receive medical attention.

And we would get oodles of good publicity out of Donations would have to be made in time for the coming season. Any merchants desirous of donating can tell us and we will pass the good news on. Hotel keepers who want to help with the automobile, a seven-passenger car in which the team travels and carried all its paraphenalia, will also be listened to.

Let's boost Miami and its basketball team. The team might win the southern championship—with a little financial help.

All aboard for the basketball special.

Fort Lauderdale Protests Against Miami's Methods

THE following excerpts are taken from an article printed in the Fort Lauderdale Daily News of May 23 this year. We purposely kept this article back until after the primary. Now we print it, or at least a very large part of it, to show how our "Buy Miami Made Merchandise" campaign has struck our northern neighbors.

It seems a pity that Fort Lauderdale should look this way on the efforts of Miami to help the city manufacturers and growers. In another part of the article the writer expresses the opinion that the people of the Magic City have no desire to push Broward county into the background.

Evidently some most unfortunate expressions of both officials and the daily press have forced the good people of Fort Lauderdale to start this self-defense movement.

of Fort Lauderdale to start this self-defense movement.

The article was headed in this way:

"Chamber of Commerce Initiates Trade at Home Campaign; Directorate Displeased with Antagonism of Miami Leaders to Growth and Development Outside Miami."

Then the article continues:

"The Board of Directors of the local chamber of commerce, in its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon, May 16th, after due consideration, authorized Secretary W. T. Eller to immediately initiate a Trade in Broward County' movement.

"The action was taken as a constructive measure for the benefit of local merchants and citizens and further justified by Miami's recognized continual and untiring opposition to Broward county development programs. According to the views of the directors of the local chamber, stern measures have become necessary for the proper protection of our merchants and the community generally.

The board of directors have long considered the discriminatory tactics of Miami as regards development in Broward county and it was only after attempting to improve the condition through arbitration and sound reasoning that the board came to the decision to institute the 'Trade in Broward County' program.

"In this day of extensive and intensive community development many factors go to assist in the making of healthy and well balanced cities. Men of business are recognizing the value of unity of various capital interests, capital and labor, union of competitors in the form of trade associations and geniume community builders are forgetting boundary lines, personal aggrandizement and selfish interests, so we find amalgamations and at least co-operation and coordination between adjacent or neighboring cities. Inter-relationships between communities have been made a most extensive study by our national civic agencies. Large cities are ever striving to improve conditions, increase buying power and otherwise create good will toward their merchants and city generally.

Greeby Out For Al

Resigns as Professor of Police School and Will Stump Key Largo; Expects to Hear From Al Immediately After First Speech; Denies Daily News Will Chase Him

MR. R. HAMMERHEAD GREEBY, perched softly in the glow of the sombre twilight in the luxurious trird booth of the Dugout, informed a waiting Miami Life reporter that he was for Al.

"I am for Al Smith.
"I am for Al Capone.
"I am for Al Cohol."

With the above slogan Greeby expects to sweep the entire district of Key Largo. "I shall use no brooms," he shouted vehemently, after Brownie refused to act on a whispered plea, "but I shall take my knowledge and learn voters why this country needs more Als."

"Tam for Al Smith.

To make use of a hackneyed political saw, he has, so to speak, pitched his hat into the local ring; and no one—not even the "new brooms" at the city hall—has had the temetry to kick it out. As far as the authorities are concerned, it looks very much like the ancient (if not soo honorable) game of shadow-boxing.

"You!" shouted Mrs. Greeby, "you'll probably want to drink the Al Cohol!"

"Well," snapped back Mr. Gree-by in a display of unusual bravery, "you don't want me to take a bath in it when we have the great ocean at our door do you?"

Mrs. Greeby, astounded by the retort, fractured a heavy two by four over her spouse's head; he reclined hastily, and sweetly murmured, "Hurrah for the Three Musketeers! All for one, and one for all! Al! Al!"

The reporter reported the intervied over.

Sometime ago, the Woman's Club of Miami suppressed a book in the library, the title being "The Constant Nymph."

Constant Nymph."

I read the book and found nothing objectionable or immoral in it. I have just read two others from the same library—sponsored by the same group of women—and one, "The Mob," by Ibanez, is just a filthy interpretation of the most beautiful adventure in life—Motherhood. The other one, "The Strange Woman," by Elmer Davis, who has gone on long after Elinor Glyn had stopped—is reeking with sex.

Really, by comparison, "The Constant Nymph" is a Holy Bible.

THE GARDEN SPOT

THE GARDEN SPOT
Editor Miami Life:

I have been receiving your wonderful paper ever since I left the garden spot of the world, Miami. Believe me, the people of Miami are surely lucky in being able to live there. Prices in general in Miami are much lower than this darn place, also wages are higher there. I had the pleasure of living in Miami for over four years and will be back just as soon as I can get a little jack ahead.

I was very much interested in those letters from Raiford prison. Now I have something to say about that place. I left Miami to take a job at the Raiford prison, in the underwear factory as machinist. But after arriving there I was given a dirty raw deal but the New York Jew that had the contract for the factory. My stay there was five weeks and I enjoyed every minute. Capt. Blitch is a very fine man and has perfect control. It is not true that trusties carry guns. If a prisoner behaves himself, he is treated very good, I think, and if he don't, then he is punished. I have mingled with the men, played ball with them and attended the show on Saturday with them and have never heard one say a thing against Capt. Blitch.

The Florida climate cannot be beat and I say this because I have lived in many states, but none that can compare with Florida, and especially Miami.

As soon as some of the old fools of the town wake up and Scene: Flagler St. after dark, near a sumptuous theatre lobby, corner cigar store to right; to left a jeweler's, Liggett's drug-store (unpaid adv.) etc. Autos parked and moving in the street. Our Hero and his Best Girl issue from the maw of the theatre, and pause beneath a sparkling sign reading "Hawk of the Underworld, or The Midnight Moll."

Girl (her eyes unnaturally large): "OOooo! How black it is now! It was light when we went in!"

Hero (pulling his hat down to shadow his face and glancing piercingly about): "Ah! But then it was only seven o'clock; now it's after nine."

Girl: "Well. But wasn't it CURDLING when the Saracen dagger came right THRO him on the other side? And when the hairy, unhu-man hand crept around the curt—" She is interrupted by a real human scream rending the comporative silence of the already none too prosaic

Girl (clutching Hero): "Whatwasthat? G-gansters?"

Hero (hissing): "They'll begin shooting. You crouch down behind this display board and wait." He glides with grim rapidity toward the cigar-store. Around the corner he runs into a screaming girl; chasing her is another girl!

—another girl:

Hero (seizing second girl): "Stop! You bobbed-haired bandit!

I have you. Give me that gun!"

Second Girl: "Help! Police!"

First Girl: "The IDEA!" She hits our Hero fiercely! "Let go of her, you idiot! My friend was just tickling me—I'm awfully ticklish."

At this point a Sinister Man (who has owed our Hero twenty bucks, $20, for six months) passing rapidly, bestows on our Hero a nasty sardonic smile, and plunges swiftly into the cross-street traffic.

Hero (shouting): "Pause, you faithless fiend! Give me the double-cross, will you? Never! I get my man?" He leaps into the

A Beautiful Mysterious Woman leans out of closed sedan, signals imperatively, and tosses a scrap of notepaper in front of the Sinister gent. The latter stops to pick it up, and our Hero pounces on him.

Hero: "Ah-ha! Copped at last, after six months chase, you crooked stool-pigeon! Give up the booty! No nonsense, or—" he thrusts a hand in his coat-pocket, and cocks his forefinger thro it menacingly.

Sinister gent. (glibly): ""She' wants me to get 3 spools xyz number 100 cotton thread, jade green. It says jade cot., not god." He turner sout his pockets, displaying a quarter, a buffalo nickel, a pack of Opa-Locka eigarettes, a rusty key and a trouser-button, with the innocent expression of a baby.

Hero (bitterly): "Yeah. Yet you always look like a million dollars. I'd like to know where you hide out your kale, I would!" Sinister gent. (escaping into the darkness, calls back mockingly): "Under the jade god!"
Hero (turns to cross back to the theatre, and sees, gleaming at him evilly thro a store-window, the enigematic eye of a jade god! Like Pinkerton after a clue, he dashes into the shop and makes for it. Clerk: "Hey!?!"

Sargeant (yawning): "What's the girl's phone?"

Hero (feverishly): "Fifty, afternoons; seventy-five and fifty, evenings. Tell her poor old mother we'll find her, somehow. 'S asuful!' Sargeant (after phoning): "You're girl's home. Got tived waiting for you. Mad as hops. Says she's returning your ring by morning mail." (with sympathy) "Brace up, now! If she don't come round, you can take up politics or hi-jacking. Go get yourself a drink."

Hero (wanders into drug-store and mutters brokenly): "Cyanide!"

Smart Soda-clerk: "Limeade? Yes, sir."

As our hero sips it, the soda-clerk, juggling an egg-nog and carrying on a too-peppy flirtation, has a sudden fatal accident. There is a staccato sound, our unfortunate Hero receives a shattering wound on his temple, and feels the blood dripping down his face.

Hero: "I'm shot! Farewell, cruel world! 'Tis better thus, prehaps. Farewell."

Soda-clerk (helping our Hero to a chair): "I'm sorry, sir, you're Soda-clerk (helping our Hero to a chair): "I'm sorry, sir, you're all right. I don't think it'll stain. I'm mopping it iff. It's just eggnog, sir. Will you accept this, to show there's no hard feelings, please, sir?"

our Hero looks at the card the contrite clerk tenders him. It is a pass to the coming super-special "Handcuffed to a Gorilla, or the Detective Dilemma!"

A ray of joy illuminates our Hero's deep dejection. He takes off his shoe, hides the pass in the heel, and goes home with his fingers

TWO Miamians pulled a fast one last week. They went over to I Gun Cay and pulled a "Pop" Nelse on a British liquor ship. Slipping alongside Artegas' boat, they climbed aboard, bound the crew, and helped themselves to about two hundred cases of choice liquor, and $150 in cash. They then left for Miami. Arriving off Ragged Key, they anchored and went ashore. they came back their cargo of ill-gotten liquor was not in sight, Coastguard Boat 220 had it in tow. Prices for the retail consumers are fairly moderate, although the quality of Bacardi and gin is poor. The ryes and Scotches hold up their quality fairly well. Herewith quotations gathered at random. DANCING MOTHERS

DANCING MOTHERS

There seems to be a regular army of mothers who leave the baby in bed and hie themselves off to the nearest dance hall. This is all right while baby remains asieep, but when the youngster wakes up and insists on raising the neighborhood with its cries, then it's a little troublesome. In the first place, the baby should not be left alone in the house. But if it is, some neighbor should have the key so that she could soothe the unhappy kiddie when he begins to holler. Then there is the mother who drives her car to market while nursing the young ster between herself and the steering wheel. It's not very safe—even if the mother is a really good driver.

YOU CAN'T DO THAT!

George Bing does special work for the state's attorney's office. George is a deputy-sheriff and is well versed on the intricacies of the law and can spot a violation whether it is in a Ford car or alongside a truck.
George was coming in from Fulford. He noticed a car along the roadside. He noticed the occupants, one man and two girls. He noticed the man stop two truck drivers and hand over a bottle from which the hardy sons of toil took a long swig. As it was a very public thoroughfare, George investigated.

"What are you doing there?" asked George of the man who sat with the two girls.

"Who wants to know?" came

A Cooling Thought

Refrigerator Drippings

What causes the drippings from the drain pipe of my refrigerator to have that slimy appearance and foul odor?—Mrs. H. J.

ANSWER: The drain pipe in an ice-cooled refrigerator provides the means of disposing of those odors, impurities, germs and particles of dirt which are picked up by the circulating air and deposited on the film of the melting ice. Any so-called refrigerator which advertises "no drains" is simply putting you on notice it is helpless so far as self-purification is con-cerned. The drip from your refrigerator, there-fore, is the stuff that STAYS IN a mechanical refrigerator. Melting ice TAKES OUT these things, leaving the cold, pure air to circulate

> - PHONE 2-1297 -Why Is Ice Ideal

ANSWER: lee produces, in the refrigerator, a temperature COLD ENDUGH to keep foods fresh; DRY ENDUGH to prevent mould and MOIST ENDUGH to retard the dipying out of meat, cheese, butter, vegetables or fruit. Mechanical refrigeration produces a temperature so dry that it takes the juiciness and flavor out of meats, butter and cheese, and has a tendency to wither fresh vegetables. Lee refrigeration is entirely automatic—witness the time of the hurricane—for the teeman performs the whole service, whereas, mechanical outfits require defrosting, filling of lee trays and thawing them, onling, replacement of fuses and parts and attention and repair of machinery, besides being subject to power interruptions for many causes, lee is quiet, surer, safer, and more economical. Ice is quiet, surer, safer, and more economica

The Ice Industry

I have heard it said that the advent fo mechanical refrigerators has sounded the doom of the ice industry. What do you think?

ANSWER: The ice industry has never in its history had as bright prospects as right now: never before has it been as keenly alive to its in as good repute as it is at this particular time with far-seeing financial authorities. Last year national advertising for the ice industry amounted to only $150,000 against more than substitutes; yet ice sales broke all previous remon stock of one of the leading ice companies on the New York stock exchange, advanced one on the New York steek exchange, advanced one-half point, while during the same week the common stock of one of the oldest and most widely advertised mechanical refrigerator com-panies lost one-half point; the ice stock closed at 36 3-4; the other at 14. What do YOU think?
