December, 1904

The Daily Miami Metropolis, Vol. 2, Dec. 21, 1904, p. 4, Col. 6

"Death of Dr. D.M. Echemendia"

"Mr. C. L. Myers, general manager of the Peninsula and Occidental Steamship Company, in this city, received a cablegram this morning from Havana, Cuba, announcing the death in that city of Dr. D.M. Echemendia, of the United States Marine Hospital service there. Dr. Echemendia, it will be remembered, once lived in Jacksonville. The long connection of the deceased with the Florida State Board of Health and the United States Marine Hospital service rendered during very trying times in this state have endeared him to many citizens of Florida, who will greatly regret to learn of his death Jacksonville Metropolis.

"Dr. Echemendia was the father of Purser David Echemendia, of the steamer Miami, who was with him at the time of death. He

30 Sept, 1821

31 Dec, 1821

31 Mar, 1822

30 June, 1822

He apparently died, possibly of "the malignant fever" at Pensacola in the summer of 1822. See sick report of I.P.C. McMahon dated 30 Sept, 1822. McMahon, replaced Elliott & in this report mentions his death and his improper treatment of Malignant fever - chiefly, he didn't bleed early & vigorously.

Elliott, Dr.

* Pensacola

Editorial West Fla., etc., p. 764

Mentioned as physician with the U.S. Army who was added to the Board of Health of the City of Pensacola Sept. 8, 1821. There is no other information on this doctor.

Elliott, ___ Surgeon, U.S. Army

Aug. 1822

Loc: Pensacola

Ref: Lawson: Statistical Report - 1819-1839, p. 38

Notes that during the yellow fever epidemic of the summer and fall of 1822 at Pensacola:

"Among its first victims was Dr. Elliott, an officer whose loss cannot be too much regretted; his amenity of manners and correctness of conduct entitle him to the lasting esteem of all who knew him!"

This paragraph appears in the report of Surgeon McMahon.
No other detail given.
