

Hurricanes Seen Superior To Blue Stocking Eleven

UNIVERSITY FACES SCORELESS PRESBYTERIAN TEAM TONIGHT

By MARSHALL JAY SIMMONS

Miami's most vulnerable opponent of the season, little Presbyterian college of Clinton, S. C., bringing a record of one win and five losses, appears in the Orange Bowl tonight as the winless Hurricanes' only Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association foe of the season.

Having scored 20 points in their one victory, the Blue Stockings, as Miami, have remained scoreless in all their other contests save last week's when they earned seven points.

Defensively, the Hurricanes are the better club. Miami has allowed only 106 points to be scored by its opponents while the Stockings have donated 211 to Clemson, Georgia, Newberry, Catawba, Auburn and South Carolina.

South Carolina, unable to tally against the Hurricanes, totaled 28 against Presbyterian last week.

Hurricane Coach Eddie Dunn has prepared a long range aerial weapon for his victory bid. The team spent all week in perfecting passing and mass protection.

To strengthen his attack Dunn has moved former Halfback Al Hudson, to the flank. Hudson's speed and pass-catching ability have shown to advantage in practice and he may be used to relieve the still-sailing John Meil.

Dick Glover, 165-pound freshman halfback who has not yet had the opportunity to show his stuff in battle, has been excellent in the flipping department all week and bids fair to get a chance with the first team.

Joe Bartemus, big V-12 guard who beams eligible with the Wake Forest game, will probably start again in place of Vince Pinckney.

Otherwise Coach Dunn is standing pat on his starting eleven. Bob Wylie will resume his quarterbacking duties, having worked hard at blocking all week. His kicking, a featured part of the Hurricane offense, is still sparkling and the exhibition of placekicking he gave in accounting for Miami's seventh point last week makes the possibility of field goals a distinct threat.

Dick Trathen, center who was out last week, rejoined the squad Wednesday and got into a scrimmage. He will probably start.

Coached by Lonnie McMillan, the Blue Stocking operates from the T formation. Lack of weight has been the prime factor for their poor showings. Only one man on the squad, Tackle Lester Carter, reaches 200 pounds. He carries 210. Reserves are lighter than the starting forward wall. McMillan's first string boys average 185.

In the backfield, however, speed takes the place of heft. The four starters can't average more than 150 with the heaviest player being a 158-pound fullback, Milton Ivey.

Rube Kelecky, an end from Columbia, S. C., does the few after-touchdown tries from placement.

Miami handed Presbyterian a 32-13 setback last season in the only previous encounter between the two schools.

Women's War Tasks Seen Rising as Battles Rage

"Women's part in the war is becoming more essential and more complicated every day," 1st Lt. Charlotte M. Kackley, chief of the training aids branch of the Miami Air Depot, told members of the Coral Gables chapter of the DAR in an address at 3800 Granada Boulevard this week.

"The need grows every day, and will continue long after the fighting has ended," she continued.

"Services women can render in the various uniformed branches have been told many times," Lt. Kackley said, "but the need continues greater than the supply of women who are ready, willing and able really to do their full share to help speed victory. The same thing is true of the situation in civilian work. The Miami Air Depot for instance, needs hundreds of additional women to be trained for the essential work of repairing war-wear airplane engines. But the depot has been unable to obtain as many women as it needs."

Recent progress of the armed forces in Italy, France and China show that a long, bitter struggle remains ahead, the speaker asserted. This, she pointed out, is particularly true in the war against Japan, which is expected to continue for at least two more years.

"But if the fighting were to end today, a tremendous job would remain to be done by women," said Lt. Kackley. "This is the job of helping speed reconversion to normal times and lives."

"This reconversion work will for many years and will

TAX HELD AT 22 MILLS

Levy Here Unchanged Over 1943-4

Shaw Cites Increase in Operations Cost

A tax levy of 22 mills—or $22.00 per $1,000 of assessed valuation—was adopted in ordinance form this week by the Coral Gables City Commission. The levy applies to the period from July 1, 1944 to June 30, 1945 and is the basis upon which tax bills were made out to property owners last week.

"Despite an increase in the operating expenses of the City this levy is the same as that passed last year," City Manager George N. Shaw said today. Of the 22 mills, 7.84 mills applies to homestead exempt value and is for the purpose of paying principal and interest of the bonded and other indebtedness of the City. This additional 14.16 mills apply against the non-homestead-exempt value for operating purposes.

Tax bills on real property in the amount of approximately $44,800 on $25,563,000 of assessed valuation were in the hands of taxpayers today. The total taxable value of personal property in the city is $2,074,000, according to Assessor Gerald Bowen.

City and Victor Disagree On Permit for Cocktails

RESTAURANT OWNER WILL APPEAR BEFORE COMMISSION ON TUESDAY

Victor Muzii, proprietor of Victor's Restaurant on Tuesday evening to plead before the City Commission on Tuesday evening to plead for the issuance of a liquor license. Mr. Muzii declared that such a license had been issued him by the State and County authorities, but that he had been turned down by the City.

"It is my contention that, if the Country Club of Coral Gables is permitted to serve liquor, I am also entitled to that privilege," Muzii said today. "The serving of liquor at the Country Club is not restricted to members alone."

Also slated to appear at the hearing is Avery Wilhelm of the State Beverage Control Board.

City Manager George N. Shaw held that "Victor's Restaurant is located in a zone largely residential in nature and which is, therefore, zoned against the serving of liquor."

"I am sure that the people of the City want that enforced and it will be enforced," Shaw declared. "In our contacts with the people we have found them to be proud of the fact that no night clubs or bars exist in Coral Gables. I feel that the people will forcefully support that present policy."

The resolutions will be forwarded to Congressman Pat Cannon in Washington.

Gables 'Nice' Town Says Jury Report

That Coral Gables was cited as a "nice" town in the recent 45 page report of the grand jury ending its six month session in which it blasted the Miami City gambling setup, was most gratifying to the city fathers.

The report in part said, "That the existence of this 'policy' is entirely a matter of politics, and has nothing to do with the technical difficulties involved, is demonstrated by the fact that the 'liberal policy' is followed in Miami, Miami Beach and Hialeah but not in Coral Gables, Miami Shores, Miami Springs, Biscayne Park and other surrounding towns."

Junior Country Club To Form For Ponceites

Final plans have been completed for the opening of the Coral Gables Junior Country Club to be started at the Venetian Pool on December 2. The city and the Coral Gables Country Club have pledged their help in this undertaking.

The idea behind the Junior Country Club is primarily this. The Ponce de Leon Key Club will finance the first two dances to be held December 2 and December 9 at the Venetian Pool with Stan Karling's Band. Ponce's football team will be honored at the opening dance and door prizes inaugurating the spirit of the Christmas season will be featured at the second dance.

Country club functions will be directed by a general board composed of a representative from each organization in the school. This board will be in charge of the country club and will promote all activities.

Advantages of this organization are numerous. Entertainment will be provided at wholesale prices. Money made by the club will be used exclusively to provide good entertainment and dancing.

"The failure of our present method of presenting dances is that various organizations are interested only in making money. Under this new system all profits would be turned over to the country club board of entertainment for the purpose of procuring the best entertainment available," declares Sam Daniels, chairman of the project.

NATIONAL MUSIC FEDERATION SETS CONVENTION DATES

Dates of the next Biennial Convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs have been set for June 26 to 30 inclusive, 1945. Mrs. Guy Patterson Gannett, the national president, announced today. The place will be Chicago and the headquarters the Palmer House. Heading the convention program committee will be Mrs. Royden J. Keith of Chicago, member of the board of directors from Illinois and also national finance and national by-laws revision chairman.

Like the convention of 1943, held in New York City, the 1945 Biennial will be streamlined to war requirements and the out of state attendance will be confined largely to delegates who come for the business sessions, since travel conditions do not warrant the presence of the large performing musical groups which usually swell attendance to several thousands. However, nearby Illinois cities are expected to be largely represented.

From a musical angle, the most important feature of the convention will be the world premiere of John Powell's symphony based on American folk tunes, which was commissioned by the federation several years ago, and which will be performed by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Desire Defauw conducting. Folk musicians from Mr. Powell's home state, Virginia, who assisted him in assembling the material, will be guests of honor for the initial performance.

ABOUT THE # SIXTH WAR LOAN DRIVE

AS WE MOVE closer to victory, it wouldn't be surprising if you were saying to yourself—"What's the big idea of asking for all this additional money now? Isn't the war almost over?"

No sir, it is not! Not by a long shot. Of course, for many months now you've heard mostly about the war with Germany, where our greatest effort is concentrated. That's why many people have the idea that the war's practically over.

But make no mistake about it—nothing could be farther from the truth! The Japanese war is a tremendous undertaking, and victory will come high. We'll have to fight every inch of the way.

Everything Costs More—in the Pacific War

The European war is expensive, but almost everything in the Pacific war will cost more. Take transport costs, for instance: Because of the longer distances, the same amount of freight costs 25 per cent more when shipped to the South Pacific than to Europe. And it takes twice as many cargo ships in the Pacific to support a task force of a given size because turn-around time is twice as great!

More Planes . . . Tanks . . . Ships . . . Oil

In addition, we shall need more of everything. More B-29 Superfortresses that cost $600,000 each. More P-47 Thunderbolts that cost $50,000 each. More M-4 Tanks, with bulldozer blades, that cost $67,417 each. More amphibious tanks —more aircraft carriers—more supply ships—more gasoline and oil than it took for the invasion of Europe!

Care for the Sick and Wounded

And lest anyone forget, we shall need more battalion aid stations—more clearing stations—more evacuation hospitals—more convalescent hospitals—more hospital ships.

For many, many years the sick, wounded, and otherwise disabled veterans will require medical attention and care. That's the least Uncle Sam can do in appreciation of what they've done for us.

Maintenance for Millions

Did you ever stop to think how much money it costs to maintain the 11 to 12 million men and women in our army and navy? Whether the men are actually fighting or not, they must be fed, housed, transported from one training center or battle area to another, cared for in a hundred and one different ways. That all costs money and will continue to until the last man demobilized is back in civilian clothes.

In addition, millions of dollars will be required for mustering-out pay, for various benefits and services voted by Congress to help the boys get started in civilian life.

These are reasons enough why patriotic Americans will want to buy heavily during the Sixth War Loan. But here are still more—

Winning the Peace—for Your Country

If we're to win the peace as well as the war, the cost of living must be kept down and the purchasing power of money preserved. A reckless inflation that would necessarily be followed by the catastrophe of deflation—with its unemployment, bankruptcies, misery and heartache—must be prevented at all cost.

Let's make no mistake—a dangerous period lies ahead. The American people have nothing to fear, however, if they show in the future the same common sense they have shown in the past, and continue to put every penny over rock-bottom expenses into the purchase of more and more War Bonds.

Winning the Peace—for Yourself

Want another important reason? Yourself! There isn't a better or safer investment in the world today than War Bonds. In helping your country, you are also helping yourself! Never in our entire history has it been so necessary to save as right now. We'll need money, individually, for education, repairs, replacements, retirement—and we'll need a lot of it.

As you can see there are many reasons, important reasons, why our Government must have the financial support of everyone, and have it for many months to come.

Let all Americans do their part—for their own sake, for their country's.

Gables Captain Lauds Grapple Hook's Action
 With the Second Infantry Division in France—In the recent offensive of United States Army troops to liberate the port of Brest, France, from German invaders a new device was used to clear fields of Nazi anti-personnel mines before our troops continued their advance into enemy territory.
 Captain Forest Butler, of 22 Phonetia Avenue, Coral Gables, an Army assistant division engineer, said the device has been to higher Army officials for study and possible adoption generally.
 Employing a combination of harpooning and sea mine sweeping tactics, Staff Sergeant Clayton H. From, of Orley, South Dakota, invented a device which looks like an ordinary sea grapple and can be shot from a rifle or carbine. A 200-yard lanyard is attached to this three-pronged hook, which resembles three fish hooks fastened together. A regulation grenade launched for rifle or carbine is used to shoot the grapple across the field to be mineswept. A 200-yard lanyard attached to the grapple is then pulled in, the hook onto any trip lines set by the Germans and explode the mines from a safe distance.
 In the operations in the fields leading to Brest the grapple not only set off trip lines connected to mines, but also set off S-mines and other anti-personnel mines which have prongs protruding from the earth, Captain Butler said.

Lt. Hiss Gets Air Medal; Others Transferred

Lieutenant Richard J. Hiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. J. Hiss, writes from somewhere in England of completing 14 missions and that he had received the air medal. Another son, Cadet James L. Hiss, stationed in Mission, Texas, was expected home in October, but because of illness and a fractured ankle he has been grounded and will not return home for many months.

Corporal Victor E. Renuart has been transferred from the 54th to the 74th Quartermasters Training Battalion, Camp Lee, Virginia.

Aviation cadet Bill Huntley Jr., V-12 USNR, has finished his course at Notre Dame University, and has been transferred to Asbury Park, N. J.

Eddie Bracken and Gil Lamb, ace comedians supporting gorgeous Dorothy Lamour in the technicolor extravaganza "Rainbow Island" which opens this Saturday at the Gables Theater for a three-day run.

Paul Henreid starring in the picture "Between Two Worlds" which opens at the Coral Theater next Tuesday, November 21st.

There's one too many in this picture and it isn't Helen Walker. William Bendix and Dennis O'Keefe join each other in wishing the other would go away. This is one of the hilarious scenes from "Abroad With Two Yanks" showing at the Grove Theater starting Saturday night.

West Flagler Sets Record For Debut

With record attendance and mutual figures, the West Flagler Kennel Club opened the Florida racing season this week. Continuing each weekday night through Feb. 19, the greyhound racing center is under the personal supervision of Jacob Sher, president, and William L. Huntley, vice president and general manager.

Tonight and Saturday night, the meeting's first weekend of racing will see West Flagler presenting a star-studded schedule of 10 races each night. It is an array of 10 races bracketing the nation's greatest greyhound racers over the various distances as well as in the nightly featured hurdle event, Flagler being the only track in this area to offer its patrons the hurdle events. The schedule continues the daily double on the first and third races with the quinuelas on every race.

Sher and Huntley also have announced that West Flagler has been designated a full War Bond representative of the U. S. Treasury and a War Bond sales booth will be maintained nightly at the track. They have posted a $50 War Bond which will be given free each night to the patron buying the largest amount of War Bonds at the track booth.

On the eve of the opening, only three changes in the entire official family were named, W. J. Stoughton being named associate judge to Presiding Judge H. M. Barton; Tom Hogan being named paddock judge and Wally Henderson as patrol judge. West Flagler offers one of the sport's more experienced and widely known roster of officials with a major percentage of them being home owners and residents of the Metropolitan Miami area.

The Peter Pan Fruit shop caters primarily to the tree-ripened boxed fruit trade. They are equipped to handle orders for immediate shipment to any part of the country, for their tree-ripened fruit is a product of their own groves. In charge of the local shop (there are others throughout the county) are Harold Abbott and Beatrice Williams.

A fresh fruit juice bar centers the bright yellow and white shop. Against the walls are shelves displaying the fruits preserved in rum; jellies, jams and chutneys, including the much in demand "mango chutney". All of the canned and preserved fruits and jellies and jams are made in the company's kitchens at Kendall.

On the east side of Tamiami trail, the shop faces Coral Gables and provides plenty of parking space so patrons may drive in and shop at leisure.

If Your Candidate Has Won

If your candidate has won, the job is not over. It has only just begun. And that is just as true if your candidate has lost.

In a democracy you can put a man in office. But you can't just leave him there. Representative government means that "we the people" must keep giving a lead to our leaders. And we can give them the right lead whether they're the men we voted for or not.

Do you want an honest fearless leader. Give him honesty and fearlessness to represent. Put right the thing that's been keeping your conscience on the uneasy seat. Face the things you are afraid of and if your knees knock, kneel on them. Courage, remember, is just fear that has said its prayers.

Do you want a leader who places his country above his own position in it? Whose national interest is greater than self-interest? Then give him selfless patriotism to represent. What about your own interests? Do you put country ahead of self? In everything? All the time?

Do you want a leader who will keep our national relations straight with other nations? Then give him straight relationships to represent. Put things right with your own family—and with the neighbors. Even if you have to swallow pride and admit that there may have been a few points on which you yourself were wrong.

As election day becomes a distant memory we will see more clearly than now that how we voted has little or no effect on how we live. But how we live can help to make straight-shooting leaders even out of men for whom we did not vote.

You cannot put class first and expect to have first-class teamwork.

In unity there can be more than strength. If we achieve it there is national destiny.

Hint to Cranks

Let the Lord make you over into a self-starter.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Goebbels Fights On

RECENTLY Goebbels made an address to the German people in which he admitted that in the last three months "events of decisive significance have taken place on the military and political battlefields." Though he threw in a phrase about how some of these events were "partly" in Germany's "favor," his purpose was to sell the Germans that they have lost the war, and then to explain why, though the war is lost, they should fight on. "It is certain," said Goebbels, "that we would have only hell on earth to expect if we were to lay down our arms."

Now, in so far as Goebbels himself is concerned, he does not need to worry about hell on earth. He knows quite well that the surrender of Germany would not mean that he would live in a hell on earth. If, as no doubt he appears to be doing, he is thinking about hell, it is not about hell on earth.

The personal position of Nazi leaders like Goebbels is the controlling fact in the present German situation: the Germans are ruled by men who know that they themselves cannot surrender. For these men an armistice means that if caught they will be arrested and executed, or that they will be haunted down to the ends of the earth if they try to escape. Therefore, since only by continuing the war can they continue to live, they will stop at nothing, not even the banging of their own generals, to prevent the German Army from surrendering.

So what the Germans are fighting for now is not for the difference between hard peace and a soft. They are fighting to give Hitler, Goebbels, Himmler et al a stay of execution. That is all they are fighting for. Thus the terms they would get today are certainly no softer than if they had laid down their arms last July when the generals wanted to surrender. In the interval they have bombarded England with the robots, they have perpetrated additional crimes in the occupied countries, and caused more destruction, especially in Poland. All that they have accomplished by fighting on is that the Nazi leaders have now lived, say ninety days longer than they would have lived if several hundred thousand Germans had not perished in battle. But the German people have not improved their prospects for the future.

The one thing that can be said with absolute certainty is that by fighting on the German people can only make their prospects worse. What they dread is, of course, retribution and what they must hope for is mercy. The Allies could never exact full retribution for what has happened: it is in the nature of things that only some of those who are flagrantly and directly responsible can be punished, that the great mass of adult Germans who have committed their crimes and are morally responsible will, because nothing else is possible, be given amnesty, and above all, that the sins of the parents will not be visited upon the children. The Germans who have been Nazified may be unable to believe this now. They may be unable to believe that since we are not Nazis, we shall not and cannot act like Nazis: we cannot punish the innocent, the helpless and the unborn, and even the guilty we shall be able, able because it is indelible in our way of life, to punish only when their crimes are obvious and are flagrant.

By fighting on the Germans will not, then, make the Allies less vengeful or more merciful. If they make us fight in Cologne and Frankfurt and Stuttgart, Hanover and Munich, as they have made us fight in Aachen, they will not, as Goebbels is trying to tell them, cause the Allies to say that the terms of surrender must be much softer than they would be if we did not have to fight a filthy winter campaign. But what will surely happen at the end of the campaign is that the German situation will be so much worse that all the angels of mercy could not save the German people from the terrible consequences.

For a winter campaign in Germany all that the Germans can get is another three or four months reprieve for their Nazi masters. The price of such a campaign will be enormous. During a winter campaign in which we must concentrate our resources for the fighting fronts, we shall be able to furnish relief only on a small scale to those who have the first call upon us, the people of the liberated countries. We shall be able to do very little indeed to rehabilitate the productive capacity of Allied Europe while we have to fight the German Army.

During a winter campaign the condition of Germany will go from bad to worse, and when the inevitable surrender comes, the German supplies will be exhausted, the German transport and productive economy will be so shattered and dislocated, that the problem of how to keep the Germans from starving to death will at once confront the Allied military governors. They will not want the Germans to starve to death, but their ability to cope with the situation will become less the longer the war lasts. The German situation will be worse, the needs of the liberated countries will be greater, the supplies and transportation available will be sharply reduced because so much of them will have been used up in fighting the winter campaign.

This is the truth which Goebbels must conceal from the Germans in order to prolong his own life. That the amount of hell on earth in Germany will be due to the war, and to the way the Germans have fought it, and to the way they prolong it, is often forgotten even in Allied discussions of the German problem. The proof is that no terms of surrender the Allies could contrive can now avert the fact that the German government, the German economy and the German social order will be so thoroughly ruined by Hitler's preparation for the war and by the course of the war that it will take years of sacrifice and labor to rebuild anything from the ruins.

The fundamental German problem will be what to rebuild and how to rebuild it; resistance cannot solve this problem and must make it more insoluble. For resistance cannot reduce the Allied terms. But it can and will, not as a matter of Allied policy but of inexorable fact aggravate the misery of defeat and reduce further the power of any one to alleviate that misery.

Achievements in the Philippines

UNITED STATES naval vision in putting the vast bulk of modern construction into air power has again paid big dividends. The Philippines battle may well rank as the second decisive air battle of history, the Battle of Britain being first. While the story of what transpired in Asiatic sky and waters is yet under wraps for security reasons, it is still evident that regardless of details we turned back an all-out Jap counter-attack and have a yardstick with which to measure future enemy capacity.

Factors worthy of note in the reported action are: Naval confidence to take on the enemy anywhere, any time; deliberate use of aircraft carriers under the guns of enemy-based aircraft; the vital part played by air reconnaissance; maintenance of a fleet force in continuous action at such distance from home bases; the evident previous attrition of Jap naval air forces; and the arrival of General MacArthur's southwest Pacific land forces in unimpaired strength after leapfrogging powerful Japanese armies scattered down the island chain and in New Guinea.

Just now security and the sentimental angle of return to the Philippines dim the crystalline brilliance of the solid achievement behind the battle action.

The element of daring in our our island invasion is even more striking than was the Normandy venture. Here no way of retreat lay open if we failed. The blue chips were all in the pot. Jap counter-attack in full force was a certainty. Land-based Nipponese planes could lash at us from every side. Waters around the islands were sure to be heavily mined. Only complete breakdown of enemy air reconnaissance could afford any element of surprise.

Yet with all these factors against us, we had the unmitigated gall to disregard the lot and move contemptuously forward.

Counter-attack by the Japanese revealed they had made the same mistake with their naval air power that Hitler had made with the Luftwaffe. Both spent too much of it before the showdown. Land-based Jap air was out in force but Jap naval air had suffered terrible attrition and was not evident in the strength which might have been possible.

Air is not by any means all of this war, but air is a vital component rather than an auxiliary aid. Russia paid heavily to learn that. Great Britain had the lesson thrust upon her traditional services by the Battle of Britain and even today relation of the globe-girdling coastal command to the Royal Navy leaves some uncertainty as to how well the senior service has learned the truth. France never did learn, nor did Germany, Italy or Japan.

Admiral King knew and built accordingly. So did the great General Marshall, and General Arnold knew best of all. The keen insight of these three, with that of Air Marshal Portal and his British conferees of the air, has meant the survival of a free world.

Had the Jap conserved the fleet air arm which he frittered away, while keeping inviolate his battle wagons, the story of Leyte might well have been a closer thing. Just as Hitler could have sacrificed fifty divisions better than his air power so Tojo could have risked his surface might in preference to his air arm.

The part of air reconnaissance which is a corollary of air supremacy was once more vividly evident in the Philippines. Admiral Kinkaid and his deputy, Admiral Sprague, in charge of the jeep carriers, put up a show which will rank with the best genius of this war. Their disposal of force to meet the pronged Japanese attack was perfection and the genius Building New Bridges . . . .

By DuBOIS MORRIS JR.

Telephones were buzzing on a Friday morning in the executive offices of 70 or 80 of Toronto's leading industries. "Hello, Jim—did you get one of those letters from the Convention Committee? . . . You did? . . . Are you going? . . . I don't know, I thought I might."

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada—Canada's A. F. of L.—was holding its Diamond Jubilee Convention at the Royal York Hotel. And members of the Convention Committee had held out their hand to management in a courageous and unprecedented step.

There was those at the convention who had tried opposing tactics. They had tried to play upon class feeling and to drive a wedge between management and labor. They had leaders in the gallery sending runners with instructions to certain of the delegates on the convention floor. And a representative of this minority clique had been one of those loudly applauded at the annual banquet.

It was therefore a bold action to invite the city's chief industrialists to attend as guests of labor a performance of "The Forgotten Factor," the Moral Re-Armament drama of industrial teamwork. "We are looking forward to the important part 'The Forgotten Factor' can play in creating and maintaining sound industrial relations," wrote G. Russell Harvey, Secretary of the Committee on Arrangements, in a special letter of invitation to these management leaders.

"This is something new for labor," said one of the convention officials, looking around the crowded hall the night of the performance and spotting in the audience of 1,000, alongside the union delegates and their wives, the executive heads or plant managers of such companies as General Electric, General Motors, Shell Oil, Canada Packers, John Wood, John Inglis, Maple Leaf Milling and the Ontario Hydro-Electric

Commission. "And it's something very much needed," he added.

"You could have bowled me over with a feather," said one of the industrial guests.

President William Green of the A. F. of L. himself sent a message congratulating the Canadian labor leaders on arranging the performance. "I commend you on securing a presentation of 'The Forgotten Factor,'" he told the delegates. "We must now be conscious of our responsibility in the building of a new world. Service in this direction will be just as important as our contribution to the war effort. We will be called on to demonstrate the same qualities of faith, courage and sacrifice."

Following the performance many of the unionists and industrialists stayed on for an informal reception where they had a chance to meet each other personally over tomato juice and sandwiches. Company executives rubbed shoulders with the international heads of various unions—plumbers and seamstresses, railway clerks and carpenters, bricklayers, masons and plasterers and civic employees.

Here was a definite and practical step in creating the kind of understanding and teamwork necessary to build the "new world" to which President Green referred.

Labor's reaction to this program is indicated in the Montreal "Labor World" which commented: "'The Forgotten Factor' is another invaluable contribution of the Moral Re-Armament group to better understanding between labor and management, and unity in the nation which is so vital at the present time when the forces of reaction and radicalism are striving for control."

This battle for control meant that every union leader in the country is subjected to constant pressure from nationally organized extremists trying to force him to take action favorable to their objectives. The net result is to spread suspicion and build up bitterness and class hatred. There has been far too little sustained and strategic support from the forces that are out for teamwork.

So it is encouraging to note events like this Toronto performance which mark the emergence of joint labor-management leadership for a constructive program. The future of industry on this continent depends not so much on whom the millions of workers and employers vote for in a Presidential election—it depends on whether they choose teamwork, or are forced to accept class warfare.

This is not just my idea, nor is the Toronto example an isolated instance of the answer. Not long ago the Canadian Minister of Labor, Humphrey Mitchell, made this statement: "We need a new spirit of teamwork between labor and management if industry is to weather the difficult days that lie ahead. My department has received considerable evidence of the valuable contribution that the forces of Moral Re-Armament are making to produce this essential factor."

Construction Hits $68-Million In State So Far

Construction contracts awarded in Florida reached a total of $68,000,000 in the first nine months of 1944, the research division of the State Chamber of Commerce reported today in its weekly business review.

While the nine-month volume was 56 percent under the $184,000,000 awarded in the same period in 1943, it still bids fair to reach the $100,000,000 annual total previously predicted for 1944.

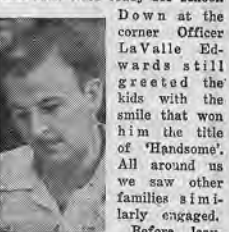

Florida construction accounted for 11 percent of the sixteen Southern states total, and ranked third in the group, being exceeded by Texas with $121,000,000 and Virginia with $70,000,000.

The most significant trend in the construction field in Florida continues to be the increase in contracts awarded for private building. A total of $9,394,000 in this category, representing a gain of 17 percent, was registered in the first nine months of 1944 over the comparable period last year. During 1942 and 1943 private and industrial construction contributed less than 5 percent to total construction volume.

Our Town

By AL HARUM
ON NOVEMBER 8th we arose at our accustomed time. The sun was shining in the City Beautiful. Our children ate their usual luscious breakfast and soon were ready for school.

Down at the corner Officer LaValle Edwards still greeted the kids with the smile that won him the title of 'Handsome'. All around us we saw other families similarly engaged. Before leaving the house we shaved and showered. We found our razor no sharper nor duller than the day before; the water neither hotter nor cooler than the day before.

We drove past the City Hall and peeked anxiously into the office of City Manager George N. Shaw and found that no Communist had taken over the reins of City Government. We saw Mayor Tom Mayes and he was his happy self—indicating that the insidious forces had not yet seized the reins of his office.

Over at the Police Station Lou Reeve still held forth and order reigned on the highways and byways as it had on Tuesday.

We had no more nor less work to do on this particular Wednesday than on any other Wednesday. The same folks did much the same things they had done on other days.

All these little observations stacked up to mean one thing. This is America!

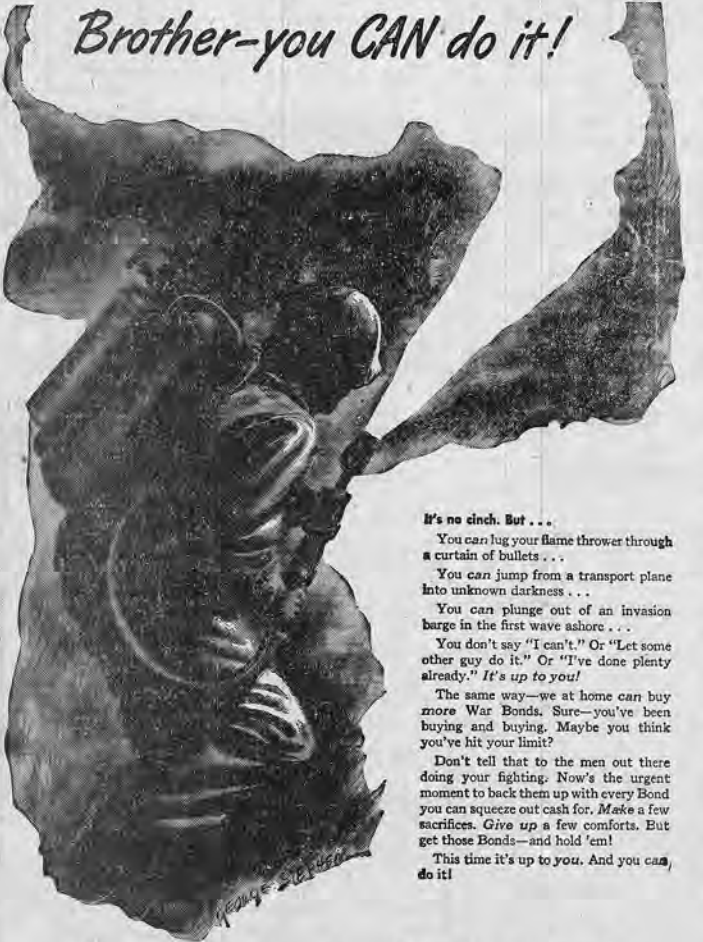

There seemed to be a feeling of relief extant that our elections were over—that the matter had been decided by the wish of the majority. The feeling extended a little further than that—it was more to the point, as though everyone were saying:

"We've had an election. Yesterday either I agreed with you or I disagreed with you. Today it is over. We have elected a President. Whether I voted for him or not, he's our President. Let's knuckle down and win the war!"

Yes, let's win the war—a war to hold this fine essence of Democracy so ably and well displayed on the day after Election Day, 1944.

Brother—you CAN do it!

It's no cinch. But . . .

You can lug your flame thrower through a curtain of bullets . . .

You can jump from a transport plane into unknown darkness . . .

You can plunge out of an invasion barge in the first wave ashore . . .

You don't say "I can't." Or "Let some other guy do it." Or "I've done plenty already." It's up to you!

The same way—we at home can buy more War Bonds. Sure—you've been buying and buying. Maybe you think you've hit your limit?

Don't tell that to the men out there doing your fighting. Now's the urgent moment to back them up with every Bond you can squeeze out cash for. Make a few sacrifices. Give up a few comforts. But get those Bonds—and hold 'em!

This time it's up to you. And you can, do it!

Buy your Invasion Bonds today!

FOND HOPE

Oh, for a land where there are no cops, No traffic posts with their "Go's and Stop's" And no such thing as a tax on gas, With roads so wide one can always pass And get full use of the motor's power— No signs that read: "Twenty miles an hour."

Oh, for a land where dumb drivers stay Elsewhere than out on the broad highway; Where whirring wheels sing a merry song, As shining cars go swiftly along, With no signboards that glare and glower: "Speed limit here twenty miles an hour."

Oh, for a route having no detours, Where no billboards the landscape obscures; With service stations on every hand, And a pretty girl at each hot dog stand; No legends like this to turn one sour: "Maximum speed twenty miles an hour."

—J. L. Beers.

$400 Pledged To Permanize Safety Drive

In an effort to reduce the high yearly toll that Dade County pays in lives and money for preventable accidents, a group of civic leaders in the county pledged some $400 at a meeting of the Dade County Safety Council this week. The pledges were a first step in a campaign for sufficient funds to place the council's safety drive on a permanent basis.

Preston B. Bird, chairman of the county commission, was selected chairman of a promotional committee, with James T. Wilson, county school superintendent, as co-chairman. Faber A. Bollinger, Southeastern area director of the National Safety Council, pointed out that in communities where safety councils have been organized on a permanent basis, accident losses have been sharply reduced.

"Dade County exceeds other communities of a similar size by from 16 to 25 deaths per 1,000,000 population," Bollinger said. "Unless a permanent Safety Council is organized to combat the situation, Dade County can look forward in 1945 to 197 deaths from accidents, 22,000 injuries, and $6,160,000 loss in money."

Bollinger pointed out that every community is different and no standard plan of preventing accidents will fit, but a plan individually prepared for Dade County has been submitted.

A man must be able to manage his own family and appetites before he can manage public affairs.

ted, prepared by a representative from the National Safety Council. The national council offers its services to local communities without charge. The proposed safety plan incorporates the research work of three people for a month, he said.

"The only answer to Dade County's high accident rate is establishment of a permanent safety council to carry out a well organized program on a continued day to day basis," he said. He showed slides that told the story of Dade County's high accident toll in comparison with that of the nation.
