The Brain Trust: Danny Price Head Baseball Coach

Danny Price begins only his second season at the helm of the Florida International University Sunblazers squad, yet, the 29-year-old native of Rocky Mount, N.C., is by no means a stranger to the strong baseball traditions which have begun to emerge here.

Following a successful high school and junior college playing career, Price starred on F.I.U.'s initial baseball squad of 1973. During that 41-25 season, he cracked 79 base hits to lead the team and establish a school record which stood for six years before it was broken last season. In recognition of his offensive prowess, Price was voted the team's Most Valuable Player award, and selected co-captain of the 1974 squad.

In September of 1978, Price returned to the Tamiami Campus diamond as the top assistant on Coach Tom Wonderling's baseball staff and immediately proved himself to be as adept a teacher as he was a player.

During the following spring season, while the team batting instructor, the Sunblazers broke or tied 36 offensive records enroute to a team batting average of .318. Last season, his expertise was once again evident. The club broke or tied another 45 offensive categories and raised the team average 19 points higher than the year before enroute to F.I.U.'s most successful season ever.

Price's hard work and ever-positive attitude was not to go unnoticed. The Florida Diamond Club selected him as its State Division II Coach of the Year for 1980, while the City of Miami City Commission honored him and his team with a Proclamation of Excellence after their 41-14 season record and a fourth place finish in the NCAA Division II National Championships. Later, he was named as an assistant coach on the United States Baseball Federation's 18-and-under team which competed in the Friendship International Juvenile Tournament in Venezuela, South America.

While Price subscribes to the coaching philosophy that motivation and hard work are the keys to winning baseball, he understands the fact that teams differ from year to year changing the mode of operation.

"Last year, we had a great deal of team speed and power so we played a wide open brand of baseball. But this year's team is different so we'll have to adjust our thinking and play a bit more conservatively."

Price was an outstanding athlete at Northern Nash High School in Rocky Mount. He went on to play at Indian River C.C. in Ft. Pierce, FL where he was selected a Florida All-Star outfielder.

After making his mark as a player at Florida International, he worked at coaching while continuing his education.

In September of 1974, Price joined the staff at Miami's Central High School and was named as an assistant coach for both baseball and football. He worked toward his master of science degree in Health Education which he earned at F.I.U. in 1976. In 1977, he was promoted to Central's head baseball coaching position.

Married to the former Betty Jean Taylor, of Whittaker, NC, the Prices have two daughters, Sandy 10, and Kacey, 1.

Team Prospects

Entering his second season in charge of the Florida International baseball Sunblazers, Head Coach Danny Price has taken on a wait and see attitude toward this year's club.

With the loss of 15 letterwinners and only one starter returning from last season's 41-14 defending nationally ranked squad, all of 1980's impressive statistics and record setting performances can be thrown out the window.

Gone are All-Americans Joe Hughes, Rusty McNealy, and Marc Serdar. Gone are All-Region performers Pete Dawes and Jorge Llano. Steve Kerian, a third-string infielder who, because of several injuries, came on to become the All-Tournament second baseman of last year's NCAA Division II World Series, is the lone returning regular.

"For the most part, our team is an untested one," stressed Price. "These players have only performed against local junior college competition last fall in situations containing little or no pressure."

Pressure will be applied early and often, however, as the 1981 Sunblazers open a 60-game schedule against cross town rival Biscayne College. From there, the team faces stiff challenges from tough opponents like the University of Miami, the University of Michigan, Florida A&M University, Jacksonville

University, Bowling Green State University, Miami University of Ohio, Glassboro State College, and Lewis University. Add to this Florida Division II powers like Eckerd College, the University of Central Florida, Rollins College, plus St. Leo College and you have reason to believe in Price's low-keyed optimism.

The pressure will be on too with the fact that FIU. has yet to suffer through a losing season on the baseball diamond in its eight year existence. In fact, over the last two seasons, the Sunblazers have played at a .761 winning clip.

Despite all the question marks, Price hasn't conceded anything in his program's quest at a fourth consecutive trip to the NCAA postseason playoffs. He recruited hard last spring, especially throughout the State of Florida, and believes his efforts will pay benefits come May.

This year's Sunblazer's will rely on a potent hitting attack with several legitimate long ball threats, a staunch defense with plenty of depth, and an improved pitching staff under the tutorage of a new pitching instructor. Team speed will be lacking, however, the results of which being more bunting, hit and run, and gimmick plays all designed for moving base runners along.

"With the players we've recruited and have had come in, I think it's a very realistic goal that we return to at least a regional tournament in 1981," said Price.

Assistant Coach

Steve Bomse will begin his initial season as a Florida International University assistant baseball coach.

Bomse, who will work closely with Sunblazer pitchers, was himself a hurler at Miami's Coral Park H.S., Miami-Dade C.C. North, and the University of Arizona. While a member of his junior college staff, Bomse posted a two year record of 15-1 with a 0.75 ERA. Following his collegiate career, Bomse played three seasons for the Tucson Latins of the Mexican League.

A lifelong resident of Miami, Bomse has been associated with coaching since 1974 when he was named a junior varsity coach at Central Park. In 1977, he was selected coach of Miami's Post 300 American Legion club and a season later, joined Coach Red Barry's staff at Biscayne College.

Bomse, 32, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bomse of Miami.

Ed Rose

Graduate Assistant

A former member of both the Boston Red Sox baseball organization and the Inter-American League's Panama Banqueros, second year graduate assistant Ed Rose will aid the infielders in addition to handling base-running and weight training.

A native of Wareham, Mass., Rose graduated from Wareham High School then attended Miami-Dade C.C. South where he became a member of the Jaguar "300 Club" with a .333 batting average in 1975. That summer, before signing his first professional contract, Rose was named to the Cape Cod League's All-Star squad for both the first and second halves of the season.

Rose 25, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Rose. His brother, Steve, is presently an assistant baseball coach at Providence College in Providence, Rhode Island.

Rick Wade

Assistant Coach

Rick Wade starts his first season at Florida International University and will take responsibility for infielders.

Wade played his high school ball at Miami's Christopher Columbus then moved on to Miami-Dade C.C. South and Virginia Tech. While at Tech, Wade helped the Gobblers to two NCAA Division I Atlantic Regional Tournament invitations and was himself named All-Region in his junior season.

After a stint with the Seattle Mariner professional organization, Wade returned to his Alma Mater where he was an assistant coach for the past two seasons.

Wade, 25, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Wade of Miami. His father, "Sparky" Wade, was a three-time college All-American who was later inducted into the Louisiana Sports Hall of Fame.

365 DAYS OF BENEFITS FOR 38 DAYS OF DUTY.

You can enjoy the benefits of being an Army Reservist all year long, in return for part-time duty that adds up to just 38 days a year.

Your monthly Reserve check is a dependable income which could help you pay bills or buy a few extra luxuries.

If you enjoy traveling, take advantage of space-available flights on military planes around the continental U.S., Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico.

If you're starting or continuing college, you can earn an extra $100 a month during two years of school under the Simultaneous Membership Program (SMP). If you qualify, you attend Advanced ROTC and receive the extra monthly income, in addition to your pay for serving part-time in the Reserve. You learn to be an officer and finish the program with a commission as a second lieutenant.

You can also take correspondence courses to continue your education while you're a Reservist. Each course may add points toward your retirement. The more points you accumulate, through drills and courses, the higher your retirement income. And you may qualify to learn a second skill.

The weekend drills and yearly training give you a change of pace from your usual routine. And it's a good way to meet people, as business contacts, as references and as friends.

Florida International University

Florida International University had quite a beginning. Established by the Florida Legislature on June 22, 1965, classes opened on September 19, 1972, with an initial enrollment of 5,667 under graduate and graduate students, the largest first-year enrollment recorded by any of the more than 2,000 universities and colleges spawned during more than 300 years of higher education in the United States.

Today, there are more than 11,000 students enrolled in the University's College of Arts and Sciences, and School of Business and Organizational Sciences; Education; Health and Social Services; Hospitality Management; and Technology. A fully accredited member of the State University System of Florida, the University offers upper division and graduate level courses for degrees at the Baccalaureate and Masters levels.

An urban and internationally-oriented institution, Florida International is the first state university to serve Florida's largest population center, which includes Greater Miami and Ft. Lauderdale. By the 1980's, the University, with its two campuses at Tamiami and North Miami, will grow to an enrollment of 30,000 students making it the largest in the state system.

The student body is comprised of a wide range of ages and backgrounds. More than eighty per cent of the students hold full or part-time jobs, and many attend on a part-time basis. The average age is 28, and there are many older students who have come to feel that education is a lifelong learning experience. In this regard, Florida International administers the External Degree Program for the State University System, which gives students the unique opportunity to earn a degree without regular oncampus attendance.

Florida International's faculty and staff are making many and varied contributions to community service. There has been a special emphasis given to applied research projects, those programs that identify public needs and act on them. The Division of Continuing Education, FAU—FIU Joint Center for Environmental and Urban Problems, the Institute of Women, and the Institute of Labor Research and Studies, conduct many non-credit programs, workshops, and conferences that benefit the public.

In addition, these University agencies sponsor research and other kinds of academic and faculty activities. The FIU Foundation, Inc. also sponsors academic research, both on a local and international basis.

With the Greater Miami area serving as the crossroads to the Caribbean and Latin America, Florida International University has placed a great emphasis on hemispheric programs. From the beginning, the University's faculty and staff have been making effective and steady contributions in the field of international affairs. Florida International's students, from all parts of the U.S.A. and 76 foreign countries, are an amalgam of the different cultures that exist at the University.

Florida International University has three main goals: to provide action-oriented education for students so they can live more personally satisfying lives; to serve the Greater Miami and South Florida region in meeting the ecological, cultural, social, and urban challenges it faces; and to achieve a greater mutual understanding among the Americas and throughout the world.
