FLORIDA INTERNATIONAL RECEIVES UNIVERSITY WITHOUT WALLS GRANT

Florida International University has joined with the Union for Experimenting Colleges and Universities, a group of 17 institutions of higher education, to plan and develop a University Without Walls (UWW) program to meet the needs of low-income and disadvantaged students.

The University received a planning grant of $20,000 to carry out the planning and development of the UWW program, which will be done in collaboration with Miami-Dade Junior College. It will be called the Florida International-Miami Dade UWW Program.

The joint effort is an undertaking to provide low income and disadvantaged people with new tools to enter college or to continue their studies. This is the first time such a program has been established between a community college and upper-level university.

Representing Florida International on the task force which will oversee planning of the program are: Dr. Jules O. Pagano, Dean, Special Programs; Eric Katz, Assistant to the Dean, and James Reid, Coordinator, School of Independent Studies.

UNITED FUND CAMPAIGN: "IT'S WORKING" TOWARD GOAL

At the half-way point in the University's United Fund Campaign, more than 50 per cent of Florida International's employees had already made their contributions or pledges. November 16 is the campaign deadline and each member of the faculty and staff is encouraged to participate in the University's effort for the 1972 Campaign.

A special feature of the United Fund Campaign this year is the option offered to participants of selecting a United Fund agency to be the recipient of their contributions. Further information about the United Fund and pledge cards are available from the Personnel Office.

CLUBS REPRESENT STUDENT INTERESTS

With the first quarter at Florida International in full swing, many students have expressed the desire to establish student interest clubs, thus beginning the building of a student-involved tradition at the University.

Dr. Robert Pekarek, Assistant Dean, Student Services, has released the following list of student interest groups which have completed the preliminary process of making application to his office for sponsorship, the first step toward becoming a recognized student organization. They are:

American Marketing Assn.	Pre-Law Club
Assn. for Humanistic Psychology	Psychology Club
Campus Crusade for Christ	Social Fraternities (Greek)
Chess Club	Student Occult Society
Circle "K"	Student Newspaper
Criminal Justice Assn.	Student Committee for the Visual and Performing Arts
Cuban CPA and Students Assn.	Students International Meditation Society
Delta Sigma Pi	Students Political Club

RECYCLING SERVES ECONOMY, ENVIRONMENT

The Physical Plant Division has taken a solid step ahead in Dade County in the reprocessing of waste paper.

"We have a baling machine that enables us to make waste paper and corrugated boxes ready for sale directly to a local waste paper company," said Wayland Slayton, Director of Physical Plant Operations. The bales, 30-inches by 30-inches by five-feet, are sold and eventually recycled for use again.

"The proceeds from this sale are returned to our waste control operations to reduce our cost of total waste disposal," Slayton said. "By our practical and economically beneficial application of this recycling technique, we hope to encourage others to move in this direction."

FREE CONCERT

A free lunch-time concert will be presented by Nick Russo and Gabriel's Brass, Nov. 14, at 12:30 p.m., in front of Primera Casa.

STUDENT-FACULTY TEAMS COMPETE FOR TOUCH TITLE

The student-faculty sports program is currently playing a schedule of touch football games with three teams. The Scrapers are leading the field 2-0, followed by the Tursairs 3-2, with the Out-of-Towners 1-4.

Bob Delgado, team captain for the Scrapers, is also coordinating the intramural sports program for the University. He looks forward to more participation by students and faculty in intramurals. Those interested may call him at Ext. 2631.

The Tursairs, a combined student-faculty team, is led by Dr. Bill Kraynek, Assistant Professor, Mathematics Department, who, while proud of their 3-2 record, feels "we should be first." Asked about the practice schedule for the team, Dr. Kraynek responds with unbounded optimism: "We don't practice at all; we show up for the games."

Other faculty on the team are: Dr. Bill Franklin, Assistant Professor, Economics; Richard Klimmer, Assistant Professor, History; Dr. George Samuels, Assistant Professor, Economics; Dr. Anthony Shershin, Assistant Professor, Mathematics; and Dr. Jim Slifker, Assistant Professor, Mathematics

DEAN WAUGH APPOINTED TO INTERNATIONAL STUDIES PANEL

The U.S. Office of Education has appointed Dr. Butler Waugh, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, to a panel on the International Dimensions of Education on the undergraduate level.

The Institute of International Studies panel will meet in Washington, D.C., Nov. 14-16, to evaluate proposals for strengthening the international perspective on the college level. This is the second time Dr. Waugh has been asked to serve on the panel.

DR. TIKOFSKY AIDS IN HAITIAN EDUCATION STUDY

Dr. Ronald Tikofsky, Chairman, Psychology Department, will visit Port-au-Prince, Haiti, for four days beginning Nov. 12 to discuss the establishment of a program to assess the intellectual capabilities of Haitians toward the improvement of their educational system.

In addition to meeting with representatives of Haitian government and education, Dr. Tikofsky will lecture at the Center for Psychiatry and Neurology in Port-au-Prince and meet with the University of Haiti Faculty of Ethnology.
