

Cocoanut Grove Fla.,

February 7th. 1910.

Dear Mrs. Willson:-

Of course you may use anything appearing in my recent letter to you, that in your judgment will aid the sale of the book. I am only too glad to thus contribute my mite towards arousing favorable sentiment in behalf of my Seminole friends. Of course I fear it is all too late and that nothing will be done, other than perhaps a monument to their memory after the last of the tribe has been gathered to his fathers. In fact ^{it} is most difficult to formulate a definite plan for the relief of people who persistently refuse to be aided.

For a new cover design I would suggest a picture of a Seminole standing in the stern of a cypress dug-out and poling it through the Everglades. I think I can find such an one among my own collection, and it would be at your disposal if ever you should want it.

With regards, I remain,

Yours very truly,

Kirk Munnell
