Mrs. J. M. Wilson,
Kissimmee, Fla.

Dear Mrs. Wilson:-

Immediately upon receipt of your letter of Jan. 26th I wrote to my young friend in Georgia about his moving picture, and am today in receipt of a letter from him stating that he is sending it to me; also that he is writing to have the negative sent to me also, and am wondering how we can arrange it so that you could see it, and also show it to the party interested in the purchase of it. He spent all his savings getting this picture, somewhere between $3000.00 and $4000.00, and as he did not have finances enough when he got through, he has not even had it copyrighted, and naturally I am anxious to protect his interests to the extent of not letting it out of my hands until I get the negative and have it copyrighted for him. He writes me that he would of course be glad to get back what he put in the picture, but if not possible to get that much, or more, he would take less.

Would like to have some suggestions from you as to how we might handle this proposition, that is, how we can arrange for you to see it, and show it to any prospective purchaser, and at the same time protect my friends interests. He writes me that he also has a DeVry machine for showing, whatever that is, which cost him $200.00, which he would like to dispose of if he sells the film, and will be glad to hear from you, so that I may know what to do when the film reaches me.

Very respectfully yours,

L. A. Wingate
