Dear Sir:-

I am in receipt of your letter of February 8th and note contents.

You are advised that the market for dasheens is limited, but I use a considerable quantity of this product each season and I am also the largest dealer in the merchandise here or elsewhere to my knowledge and have been for a good many years. Any one planting out a few acres of this product in your section would not make any mistake.

Regarding the air potato, you are advised that the air potato itself which grows on the vine is not so desirable as the root itself, and if you have the proper variety of this particular product, you may send to me a sample of the root for my inspection and I will advise you further on the subject. There are different kinds of air potatoes, some are marketable and some are not, and the market is also limited on this product, but there is a much better market for the dasheens.

Hoping to receive your sample of the air potato root by return parcel post, also your reply, I am,

Very truly yours,

W. Rehm
