Sometime ago we had communications on air potatoes and I have not received any further letter from you on the subject. At the present moment I have an inquiry for the air potato and I can use a good quantity if you are in a position to supply the stock of this particular variety.

The tubers of the air potatoes which you have and are attached to the vine are very bitter, therefore, there is no market for the air potatoes attached to the vine. But there is a fairly good market for the root of your air potato, therefore, if you have any roots of your particular air potato available you may send to me a sample for my inspection by parcel post at once, and mention the number of barrels you can furnish, also your lowest price for the product f.o.b. your shipping point.

I have a splendid market for dasheens and would be pleased to have you make a proposition to me for planting out a certain number of acres this coming spring.

Awaiting your reply by return mail with the compliments of the season, I am

Yours very truly,

W. Rehm
